Idle as a Painted Ship. Equal, If You Have $10. Interpreting the Lord. Pity Small Birds.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

THE LOWER END of Manhattan, where this was written, was quiet on July 4. Bulls and bears were all away, sorrowing or gloating. Everything was "as idle as a painted ship, upon a painted ocean."

At the deserted corner of Broad and Wall streets, the Stock Exchange looks on Morgan's office, and Morgan's office looks on the United States Treasury. To rewrite Byron, and "musing there an hour alone," you dreamed that stocks might still go up.

Speakeasies, always plentiful near a big newspaper office, or any factory paying good wages, were open, selling explosives more powerful than fireworks.

Americans that have long known how to work, are now learning how to play. This experiment, for many, will last until next Monday morning.

ACTING MAYOR ALLEN, of Atlanta, Ga., saying: "I have wanted to do something for my fellow beings all my life," released 200 prisoners from Atlanta jails on Thursday, at midnight, that they might celebrate July 4 in freedom.

IT IS UNDESIRABLE to take laws and their punishments lightly, but the acting mayor, with the approval of his superior, Mayor Couch, had a good answer for critics.

The prisoners freed were not felons, but jailed because they lacked from $5 to $20 to satisfy fines for petty offenses.

If, as we allege on July 4, men really are created equal, it seems strange to keep one in jail and set the other free, because the other has $10.

DOCTORS TOLD Justice Hanson, in New York, that a 13-year-old boy, name not revealed, must die unless an operation were performed.

The mother would have no operation. Her son might be dying, but she had no right to "interfere with the Lord's plans. If He wanted to take the boy back, He had a right to him."

Justice Hanson, deciding that the Lord had no such plans, ordered an operation, in spite of the mother, and the boy will recover.

THE ATTITUDE OF the mother, strange to us, in 1930, would have seemed natural some time ago.

When the use of anesthetics was first introduced in England, the clergy almost without exception, denounced it, saying the Lord wanted us to suffer, and doctors had no right to make patients unconscious and free from pain while their legs were cut off. That was cheating the Lord.

A YOUNG SCOTCH doctor produced the right answer, advising clergymen to read, in Genesis, how "the Lord caused a deep sleep to fall upon Adam" before he took out his rib.

Since the Lord had operated on Adam, first making him unconscious, the young doctor said he had the right to do the same. He won.

A noblewoman and a midwife were both put to death because the midwife had endeavored to diminish the woman's pains in childbirth.

AT THIS TIME of year, in many places, you see on the ground young birds feathers not fully grown, wings very weak.

It is a time to keep cats indoors, and tell small boys that to injure such a bird is as cowardly as it would be to hurt a baby, too young to walk.

GONE ARE THE DAYS of happy and practically tax free great estate owners in England.

Not one bid was offered.

The provident duke, sixth to bear the title, wanted to raise money, in advance, to pay his own death duties. MacDonald's Socialist-Labor government had refused to take land now, instead of cash later, missing a chance to experiment in land socialism and single tax.

M. POINCARE, formerly president and premier of France, describes our new tariff as "selfish."

If true, that is really TOO bad. Everything that European nations have done, from their war of 1914 to their refusal to pay us what they owe in full, is so entirely UNSELFISH, that we really ought to be ashamed of ourselves.

How shameful to enact a tariff to protect our labor and industry, when we might be throwing our markets open to cheap labor abroad.

MUSSOLINI THINKS ahead, encourages Italian flying, and builds up Italian safety at the same time.

Young men that want to fly are provided by the government with instructors, airplanes and flying fields, but the government establishes a hold on the fliers, a right to the services of every one of them in time of war.

That is an advance on England's long established system with fast passenger steamers, giving them subsidies with the right to use them for transport in war time.

PUBLIC SCHOOL No. 38 in Brooklyn complained of a speakeasy close to the school entrance. The children saw drunken men and women coming from the place during school hours. The Parent-Teacher Association threatens to picket the place until police, prohibition authorities, or somebody takes action.

FLIERS REST AFTER 553 HOURS

Hunter Brothers Prepare To Cash in on Their Feat, Following Sudden Descent

International News Service.

CHICAGO, July 5.—Two tired, conquering youths, who had startled the world by flying about in the skies for more than three weeks, rested today in contemplation of their new record for continuous flight—553 hours 41 minutes and 30 seconds.

Just when the crowd at Sky Harbor Airport last night had decided John and Kenneth Hunter would remain in the air another night, their plane, the City of Chicago, swung into a long glide toward the landing field.

At 21 minutes and 30 seconds after 6 o'clock, the orange and blue Stinson-Detroiter touched its wheels and tail-skid to the ground in a perfect three-point landing.

CROWD HAMPERS LANDING

The unexpectedness of their landing was fortunate, the fliers agreed, otherwise the vast holiday crowd would have poured onto the runways and into the path of the propeller, with possible fatalities. Even as it was, police lines and heavy ropes could not hold the throng so the City of Chicago had to spin about, first in one direction and then in another to reach the hangars in safety.

The Hunters landed with a "margin of victory" of 133 hours and 30 minutes over the previous world endurance record, set last year by the St. Louis Robin—420 hours 21 minutes and 30 seconds.

Tired and dirty, the brothers, once coal miners at Sparta, Ill., emerged from the cabin of their monoplane to face a milling throng, pose for photographers

STOWE SLAYERS ELUDE POLICE

County detectives today were without a clue in their investigation of the murder of Tony Rugari, 35, an ex-convict, whose body, peppered with shot, was found in a clump of bushes in Park way, Stowe Township, yesterday.

Patsy Rizzo, 14, of 3 Frazier avenue, Stowe Township, was taking a "short cut" to his home when he discovered the body. Running to the township police station, Rizzo informed Chief Thomas Saunders. In the victim's coat pocket Saunders found a .32 caliber revolver. A discharged shotgun shell lay a few feet from the body.

The murder, attributed by detectives to gang warfare, occurred not far from the home of Tony Cucarese, of Frazier avenue, for the bombing of which in January 1928, Rugari served 16 months in the Allegheny County Workhouse. He was paroled in July, 1929. Cucarese's home was bombed following his refusal to pay $2,000 blackmail. A few days later police arrested Rugari and Ross Ficara, 34, in connection with the affair. Ficara, acquitted, was shot to death in Ohio Township, several months later, according to police.

Save for his conviction for the bombing, Rugari, detectives said, had no other police record. His assailants were believed to have lured him to the spot Thursday night. Rugari roomed at 922 Page street, McKees Rocks.

U. S. Beaten In Thames Regatta

HENLEY-ON-THAMES, Eng., July 5.—(INS.)—America's hopes of winning the Thames challenge cup were doomed here today when the powerful crew of Worcester College, Oxford, swept over the mile and five-sixteenths course and defeated Kent School, the only United States crew left in the semi-finals of the Regatta.

The strong Kent crew, favored to win, trailed the Worcester eight by a scant half-length after a terrifically paced race.

The time for the winner was 7 minutes and 14 seconds. The course record is 7 minutes and 6 seconds.

POTTSVILLE, Pa., July 5.—(AP.)—Jesse Halderman, Jr., 8, of Pine Grove, was fatally injured while playing ball with other boys. He was struck on the head by a batted ball.

Balloons Race Across Texas For U. S. Title

DALLAS, Tex., July 5.—(INS.)—Anxious eyes scanned the skies here today for sight of the first of 15 balloons which took off from the Bellair Speedway at Houston in the twentieth national elimination balloon race late yesterday.

Floating away into a starlit Texas night the big bags were drifting almost due North last night, gaining altitude slowly. The steady wind was expected to bring them into the Dallas region.

Lieut. T. G. Settle, of the United States Navy, winner of last year's race, was first to take the air. Flying with him was Lieut. R. G. Myer. Settle cleared the field at 6:08 p. m. George Hineman, of Cleveland, flying the balloon purchased from Capt. H. E. Honeywell, was the second to take off. Lieut. M. L. Ford Danik accompanied Hineman. Honeywell, balloon veteran of St. Louis, watched his ship take off.

WIMBLEDON, England, July 5.—To her magnificent array of titles and championships, unequaled by any woman in the history of tennis, Mrs. Helen Wills Moody added the doubles championship of Wimbledon today.

Mrs. Moody, already singles champion, and Miss Elizabeth Ryan won the ladies' tandem title of the great British tournament by defeating the youthful American team of Miss Edith Gross and Miss Sarah Palfrey, 6-2, 9-7, after the latter had put up a plucky and gallant fight against one of the strongest women's double team ever to play the center court at Wimbledon.

U. S. TO SET RECORD IN BUILDING

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHISON

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, July 5.—The Hoover administration, through legislation enacted by Congress, was embarked today on the most ambitious construction program ever undertaken by the government in peace times.

Recommended by Mr. Hoover and passed by Congress, during the session just ended, to remedy unemployment conditions, the program will include new public buildings, new Army developments, river and harbor improvements and new federal roads. Every state in the Union will share in the program.

An additional boom to business may result from the Republican tariff law, which will begin to have effects during the next few months. Regardless of its economic merits, the measure was enacted to protect American industry and agriculture against cheap foreign competition.

ROAD BUILDING PROGRAM

The government's building program, however, will overshadow all other activities of the Hoover administration. Within the next three years nearly a billion dollars of new roads will be built, with the federal government contributing $452,500,000 to their construction. Of this sum, the government will contribute $375,000,000 at the rate of $125,000,000 a year to the states, which raise like sums, for construction of state roads.

Then, spending $12,500,000 a year, the government will add $37,500,000 in the next three years to construct roads in the national forests, and still another $50,000,000 to build new roads in the public domain of the West.

The new federal building program will also scatter Uncle Sam's cash far and wide. The Congress authorized a $230,000,000 public Amphibian Tank Being Built For U. S.

RAHWAY, N. J., July 5.—(AP.)—An amphibian war machine, a tank that can swim 10 miles an hour and go 50 miles an hour on rough ground, and 70 on a good road, is being made here for Uncle Sam.

The rambling fortress is supposed to be bomb proof and gas proof. It can carry 12 tons of gas bombs even through swamps. The cost of the machine is $38,000.

FIREWORKS INJURE 70 NEARBY

Ban Entirely Disregarded; Traffic, Drownings Swell Long List of Casualties

A mounting list of dead and an army of injured is the toll today of the one hundred and fifty-fourth anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence.

Two are dead and more than 70 injured in Pittsburgh and vicinity as the result of fireworks accidents.

Four residents of this district were drowned at bathing beaches.

Two were killed and many injured in automobile crashes.

The national toll of dead is placed by the Associated Press at 178 dead and many hundreds injured.

In New York alone, the International News Service reports 14 dead and 300 injured.

Councilman Robert Garland urged the banning of both sale and use of fireworks throughout the county next year.

A man and a boy are dead today and almost 70 others injured, many of them seriously, as a result of accidents with revolvers and fireworks during the celebration of Independence Day. Most of the victims were children who suffered burns while playing with firecrackers and other explosives. No arrests were made by city police despite a general police order to enforce an ordinance banning fireworks. A policeman was among those injured.

The parents of seven children were notified to apepar in police stations with their children, who, police say, set off fireworks.

Stating that his prediction police would fail to enforce the ordinance against use of fireworks in the city had been borne out, Councilman Robert Garland declared the only means of preventing a casualty list on the Fourth lies in banning sale and use of fireworks throughout the county.

He urged that the County Commissioners request all boroughs and townships to place the ban next year and that Pittsburgh follow New York and Philadelphia

Coolidge Scores Senate Cliques and Spending

NORTHAMPTON, Mass, July 5.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

After a session of about 15 months the Congress has finally adjourned.

It will be subjected to considerable criticism which will be largely useless. With the direct primaries in most states and the popular election of senators, the present perversion of legislation is unavoidable. But the Congress has much of accomplishment. It has reduced taxes, revised the tariff, extended the public building program, made liberal appropriations for highways, allopted a rather ambitious river and harbor bill, and passed a farm relief measure which is still in the experimental stage but can be made helpful. Prohibition enforcement has been reorganized and a commission appointed to study the general subject of crime prevention.

CALVIN COOLIDGE

Even those who criticize its decisions must admit that the record of the House has been dignified and businesslike. It is regaining its former prestige. The work of the Senate, with all the ability of its members, has been too much impaired by a petty spirit of factionalism and obstruction. The expenditure of money has been too large. Often a combination of Senators destroyed party responsibility without instituting any of the virtue of independence. The resulting loss to good government could only be retrieved in part by the House and the President.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

This is the fourth of a series of daily articles Mr. Coolidge is writing exclusively for the Sun-Telegraph in Pittsburgh.

FOURTH'S TOLL HEAVY IN U. S.

CHICAGO, July 5.—(AP.)—America paid its inevitable price in human life yesterday to celebrate the one hundred and fifty-fourth anniversary of its independence.

The dead numbered 178. Many other hundreds were injured, property damage was unusually high and ran into many thousands of dollars.

Deaths due directly to fireworks totaled 12. A year ago there were seven deaths from fireworks. In 1928 there were 11.

The automobile took the most lives—81. In 1928 it took 54 lives, last year, 70.

There were 57 drownings yesterday, a decline of 14 from a year ago and of 49 from 1928, attributable to cool weather.

In New York, where the sale of fireworks is forbidden, 275 persons were treated for burns from bootleg firecrackers, Roman candles, pin wheels and rockets. At least 17 persons were seriously injured in Chicago, where celebration of the day with firecrackers went on virtually unrestricted.

Chicago had celebrators who employed firearms and even dynamite for their noisemaking, and five persons were injured by stray bullets.

Flier Gets 'Ticket' For Park Landing

CHICAGO, July 5.—(AP.)—Grant Park is Chicago's front yard, and the front yard is no place to land an airplane.

J. L. McGrady, a pilot, dropped his plane there yesterday when the motor began acting up. A policeman gave him a ticket. Mr. McGrady tinkered with his motor and finally flew away.

4 DROWN, AUTOS KILL 2 ON 4TH

Bathing beaches and crowded highways took a heavy holiday toll, four drownings having been reported here yesterday. Two fatal automobile accidents were reported, as well as many other serious motor mishaps.

The Ohio River claimed the lives of two Aliquippa boys swimming near that community; a Wilkinsburg man was drowned at Conneaut Lake and a Brookline boy lost his life while swimming near Elkton, Md. A Pittsburgher was killed in an automobile accident at Portsmouth, O., and another fatal accident occurred in Crafton last night.

Aerial Cupid Kept on Wing At Bettis Field

Camile Venet, Pittsburgh Airways pilot, is allaring it with comely Sally Griffith, of Philadelphia, today, while preparations for Pittsburgh's first aerial wedding are being rushed by John R. Basley, operations manager at the field, who will take the sky leap into matrimony tomorrow afternoon with Helen Grace MacLeod, of Boston.

Venet, a native Philadelphia, has been flying the Pittsburgh Airways passenger route between this city and New York, with frequent stops at the City of Brotherly Love, but it appears that all of his stops have not been made in the interests of his brethren. Thursday afternoon he returned with two attractive young women, both wearing bridal corsages.

"You see," he explained to questioners, "Miss Griffith will soon be Mrs. Venet and this is Miss Maryonne de Benedictie, our maid of honor."

"Well, that a surprise—going to make it a double wedding up in the clouds Sunday afternoon?"

"We are not," the future Mrs. Venet spoke up. "We're going to stay on the ground—anyway until after the wedding Saturand then we're going to fly away together."

Miss MacLeod qualified as an airman's mate with:

"Just crazy about flying—wish we were going to stay up in that airplane after the wedding. We could make it another endurance flight."

The Skowronski boy was shot accidentally, police say, by his brother Adam, 21, in their home late last night. The boys had planned to use a revolver to shoot blank cartridges and were trying it without knowing it was loaded. Adam Skowronski was ordered to report to the coroner today.

STRUCK BY BULLET

Lali was killed, police say, by James Gardner, a neighbor, while Lali and a companion were setting off firecrackers near the Gardner home. Police say that Gardner objected to the noise and attempted to frighten the men by firing a revolver. A stray bullet struck Lali in the abdomen and he died three hours later in the McKeesport Hospital.

Miss O'Shea and Miss Enright were burned about the legs when one of a crowd of boys threw a torpedo at them while they were walking in Dearborn street. Mrs. Neads was struck by a firecracker tossed out of a downtown building while she was walking in Wood street.

The Weiss girl's clothing caught fire when a firecracker was set off near her. Her brother, Joseph, was burned when he tore the burning clothing away from the little girl.

THE PRICE OF CELEBRATION By Quin Hall

Saturday, July 5, 1930.

Entered as second-class matter at the postoffice at Pittsburgh, Pa., under the Act of March 3, 1879.

Leroy Hetherington, of Braddock, had been refused permission to buy a pistol. Using his own money, he purchased the gun and a short time later shot himself in the left hand, police report.

Mrs. Elway tried to keep her boy from shooting fireworks and to keep him indoors she hid his clothing, it is said. A few hours later she discovered he had left the house. She began a search and found him coming home, burned about the eyes from firecrackers.

Patrolman Haid was burned about the face when struck by a firecracker while walking at Carson street and Arlington avenue. Hasen was looking out his second floor window when a firecracker burst in front of him. He was burned about the eyes.

The West Penn Hospital reported treating eight persons for burns and lacerations, but did not take names of those treated. The Ohio Valley Hospital also reported treating a victim.

AUTOIST BURNED

Alvin Johnson, of Lodi way, was driving his automobile in Sixth street when he was struck on the head by a torpedo. The torpedo exploded, burning him about the eyes.

James Dick, 5, of James street, was playing with a flare last night. His clothing caught fire and before his parents could beat out the flames he had been severely burned.

Several homes in the Squirrel Hill district were damaged when several young men discharged a cannon from a field between Raymond and Lucelle streets. No injuries were reported but shrapnel crashed through several homes. Betty Lou, 1-year-old daughter of R. W. Harshberger, 312 Lucelle street, and Henrietta Isles, 17, daughter of James Isles, 7200 Whipple street, narrowly escaped injury when the shrapnel broke windows in their homes.

The Isles and Harshberger residences were damaged $50 and $25, respectively, and the home of Walter Domhoff, 306 Lucelle street, suffered $100 damage. Several other homes were damaged, police say.

GREET REST OF FAMILY

Ten minutes later, police cleared a path for the fliers to the little office where the other Hunter brothers, Albert and Walter, were waiting with sister Irene, "quartermistress" of the flight, and their mother, Mrs. Ida Hunter.

They hurriedly told of their sudden decision to come down:

"For hours we had been having trouble with the oil supply. The oil screen was clogged. Next time we'll have two oil screens so one can be in service while we take out the other and clean it.

"As it was, we were constantly losing oil, and there was a strong possibility that if we had tried to stay up all night, there might have been a crack-up, shooting hot oil all over us and the plane and forcing an emergency landing in the dark."

HARD TO SLEEP AT FIRST

Reviewing their feat, they declared:

"For the first few days it's hard to sleep. You have to learn the trick of relaxation. But by the end of the first week, we were pretty good at it and we began to feel better and better."

John complained that visiting planes had made air traffic dense about them during the last few days. He explained:

"Ordinarily, we wouldn't mind the traffic, but it's difficult after you've been up in the air a few weeks."

Exactly how the Hunter family will benefit by the flight cannot be told for some time, as litigation is pending. If allowed to keep all they get, it will be approximately $25,000.

COULD NOT SERVE PAPERS

Plans were to serve papers on the two brothers in connection with a suit brought by the backers of a former flight, but it was believed the deputy sheriff could not get near enough.

An offer of $100 for every hour of flight beyond the former record gave the brothers $13,300. Then there was a second offer of $1 a minute, beginning early Sunday.

Besides, there were several miscellaneous offers, including fees for broadcasting. Approximately $5,000 will be their share of the gate receipts. Vaudeville and motion picture contracts also have been offered them.

PLAN TO BREAK RECORD

NEW YORK, July 5.—(INS.)—Two planes are scheduled to take off from Roosevelt Field here tomorrow, in an effort to better the endurance record made by the Hunter brothers at Chicago.

If the Department of Commerce gives approval, the aviators will change pilots every 48 hours. Relief fliers will arrive on rope ladders, let down from another ship, and the men relieved leap in parachutes.

PACTS USELESS, LLOYD GEORGE WARNS

Former Premier Pleads For Real Understanding Between U. S. and Britain

BOURNEMOUTH, England, July 5.—(AP.)—A grave warning that the international atmosphere is "poisoned with mistrust and suspicion" was delivered to the banquet of the International Congregational Church council last night by David Lloyd George.

The Liberal leader declared world peace depended on the goodwill of Great Britain and the United States. He declared:

"We have covenants against war, we have pacts that there shall be no more war, and we are spending more to prepare for war.

"If a drunkard signs a pledge and you heard he was filling up his cellars with the choicest wines, you would know he was preparing for another spree.

"Let us have brotherhood. It is only the Christian churches that can do it."

OCEAN FLIERS END FLIGHT

Kingsford-Smith was the only member of the crew that left Oakland May 31, 1928, for Australia, the start of a world-circling flight which carried the blue-winged plane into both the north and south hemispheres, and across the south seas.

Thousands cheered as the great plane dropped swiftly to the field, bearing the flight commander, Radio Operator John Stannage, J. Patrick Saul, navigator, and Evert Van Dyk, co-pilot.

The party crossed the North Atlantic two weeks ago from Ireland to Newfoundland.

FREIGHT BOOST FOES TO MEET

Traffic representatives of concerns opposed to the increased short haul rate scale will meet Tuesday in the Chamber of Commerce to prepare for the hearing to be held there the following day before the Public Service Commission.

A tentative schedule for presenting the objections to the new scale will be drawn up at the meeting, Donald O. Moore, Chamber traffic manager, said. Accommodations for several hundred witnesses and others have been prepared.

JUDGES VOTE 6-1 AGAINST FREEDOM

Court Asserts Pair Holds Knowledge of Bombing; Another Appeal Planned

SAN FRANCISCO, July 5.—(AP.)—Their latest efforts to end a 13-year-old sentence for the Preparedness Day bombings here in 1916 frowned upon by the California Supreme Court, Thomas J. Mooney and Warren K. Billings said today they would continue their fight for liberty.

The California Supreme Court yesterday presented to Gov. C. C. Young an adverse recommendation on Billings' application for a pardon, holding he had a fair and impartial trial. Gov. Young has indicated his action on Mooney's application for pardon would be guided by the court's recommendation in Billings' case.

He said the testimony of Frank C. Oxman, Durkee, Ore., cattleman, was false, as it had been proved he was asleep at Woodland at the time of the fatal explosion. Billings said he was considering two future lines of action, one habeas corpus proceeding, leading perhaps to the United States Supreme Court.

The court's decision pointed out Billings and Mooney were associated with a San Francisco group engaged in plotting against law and order. It continued:

"If Billings did not prepare and plant the deadly time bomb of the preparedness day disaster, he and his associates and co-defendant, Mooney, knew and have always known, who did prepare and plant the bomb and the deadly purpose for which it was prepared and planted."

ONE JUDGE DISSENTS

The decision was six to one, Associate Justice Langdon dissenting, saying:

"I am not so free from doubt of petitioner's guilt as to withhold a recommendation for executive clemency."

3 FIRES CAUSE MILLION LOSS

BOSTON, July 5.—(AP.)—Wharfs, coal and lumber yards and warehouses along Mystic Creek in the Charleston district were burned last night. Estimates of the damage range to almost $1,000,000.

Starting in a small blacksmith shop at the rear of the Pacific Coast lumber yards on Mystic Creek, the flames spread rapidly to lumber yards and coal pockets up and down the narrow waterway for a quarter of a mile.

HARRISBURG, Pa., July 5.—(AP.)—The business section of Wiconisco in Northern Dauphin County was swept by fire last night with a loss estimated by authorities there at $125,000. A warehouse, furniture and clothing store, a garage and two houses were destroyed.

Fire department officials said an automobile being run into the the garage backfired and ignited a tank of gasoline. The explosion scattered the flames and several nearby buildings took fire almost simultaneously.

POTTSTOWN, Pa., July 5.—(AP.)—A rubbish fire which got beyond control yesterday destroyed six buildings in Barto, with a loss etimated by the principal owners at $30,000. Barto is a small village in Southeastern Berks County.

building program, of which $115,000,000 will be spent in the states and a like sum in the District of Columbia. Some $50,000,000 will be available at once for federal buildings in the states. More will come from year to year, until every city has a modern federal postoffice.

MILLIONS FOR HARBORS

The $144,000,000 rivers and harbors bill will pour more gold into the states. The projects authorized under that act were scattered through 40 states, including such important developments as the upper Mississippi, the upper Missouri, the Illinois Waterway, the Erie and Oswego canals, the connecting canals between the Great Lakes and intracoastal canals along the southeastern coast. The bill made $30,000,000 available at once to start work on most of these projects within the next month, with another $30,000,000 available for Mississippi flood control.

The $15,000,000 Army construction program will also get under way at once. This measure authorized new Army buildings at forts and posts in a score of states. It will help 50 localities by putting more men to work.

All in all, the federal government probably will spend $300,000,000 in the states during the next 12 months in public improvements.

Flat Tire Caused Crash, 2 Die, 7 Hurt

SISTERSVILLE, W. Va., July 5.—(AP.)—A flat tire, which caused an automobile to swerve into another head-on, brought death to two women and injury to seven other persons.

The dead are Mrs. Margaret D. Martin, 68, Paden City, and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. May Martin, 35, of Clarksburg.

It was reported a tire went flat on the car, driven by Mrs. May Martin, and the machine ran to the left side of the road in front of the car of Harry Kaufman, of Wellsburg. The two machines rolled down an embankment.

BLAST WRECKS TOWN, KILLS 12

LONDON, July 5.—(INS.)—At least 12 persons were known to be dead and more than a score injured as rescue squads today continued to search the ruins caused at the town of Castleford, Yorkshire, by an explosion in a chemical factory.

Five hundred persons were homeless and nearly 300 houses were wrecked.

There were about 100 workers in the building when explosions followed a sudden outburst of flame that shot up from the plant.

Fame Reveals N. Y. Marble Shooter to Be Runaway

NEW YORK, July 5.—(INS.)—Fame's penalty today struck at Vincent Lavan, New York newsboy, who came into prominence when the world's champion marble-shooter refused to accept his challenge for a tilt. Newspaper publicity disclosed that Vincent had been missing from his Fall River, Mass., home for three months and his foster-mother, Mrs. Samuel Phillips is en route to take him back.

He said he would plead with her to permit him to take the boat trip through the Panama Canal promised him by a steamship company for his prowess with the agates.

There was some sunshine, however, for "Vinny." His photograph, showing picturesque freckles, proved so attractive several motion picture companies were said to have offered him jobs as a child-actor.

Nation Greets Coolidge On His 58th Birthday

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., July 5.—(AP.)—Since the days when his mail came addressed to "His Honor, the Mayor of Northampton," until today, two years after his retirement as President, Calvin Coolidge has received a card of greeting from a woman in a little backwoods town in Vermont. For the past 20 years she always remembered that July 4 was Mr. Coolidge's birthday.

When the former President went to his office he found a bundle of greeting cards which, he said, in their scope represented a cross section of the American people. Former members of his cabinet, Washington officials and many of the rank and file of the country remembered his fifty-eighth birthday. All pleased the former chief executive but the one from the woman in Vermont, whose identity he declined to reveal, was of especial interest. Included in the number were several from children who called attention to the fact that they, too, were celebration a birthday in addition to the birthday of the United States.

Many families here sent flowers picked from their gardens, old friends made personal visits and Mr. Coolidge's former chef on the presidential yacht Mayflower sent a large cake from New York.

The former President said his mail also contained several responses to newspaper articles he has been writing. Some of these, he said, came from "high sources."

3 TOWNS FAVOR SUNDAY CHANGE

The results to date in the poll of Tarentum and Turtle Creek will be published Monday.

An overwhelming sentiment against the closed Sunday prevails in Sharpsburg, Springdale and West Homestead, three boroughs yielding a substantial vote in the Blue Law poll of the county by the Sun-Telegraph. Repeal of the Blue Law is demanded by better than a 5 to 1 majority in each borough. The totals are:

	Sharpsburg	Springdale	West Homestead
Enforcement	63	64	25
Modification	21	10	5
Repeal	169	705	110

The total vote to date in the poll of the three boroughs is 645 or 36 per cent the total number of voters, 1,782, in the three boroughs at the May primary election.

The total vote in the county poll to date is 60,161, with a ratio of nearly five votes for repeal to one for enforcement. The divisions are:

	Men	Women	Total
Enforcement	5,767	4,119	9,886
Modification	3,046	1,663	4,709
Repeal	32,156	13,910	46,066

The poll of Pittsburgh is concluded and the final city results will be published tomorrow. The poll in the county outside Pittsburgh will continue another week and the final results will be published a week from tomorrow.

VETS JAM PARK RAIL HOLDINGS' FOR PICNIC

Aged veterans of the Civil War chatted with members of the A. E. F. today at Kennywood Park, where thousands of Western Pennsylvanian ex-service men and their buddies were guests of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. The picnic, the eleventh annual outing the Sun-Telegraph has extended to veterans, looked like the best ever held as early in the day the soldiers began arriving at the park in large numbers.

All veterans, no matter in what war they saw service, were given a chance to unite with their old friends at the picnic. Salvation Army workers greeted the soldiers with doughnuts and coffee as they entered the park. The picnic was for persons of all nationalities who served in the World War and to Americans who served in all former wars.

A feature of the outing was to be the big dinner for disabled veterans and the veterans of the Civil War. Tickets for this affair already had been distributed. Mingling with the veterans were many persons now serving in branches of the United States service.

Allegheny County Council United Spanish War Veterans: William J. Best, chairman; Oscar T. Taylor, Robert S. Cain, Edwin A. Reed, Gilbert Cloonen, J. Clark Mansfield, C. F. Armstrong, A. H. Bunderman, George F. Collins, Homer Carpenter, W. H. Hamilton, John W. Collins, C. H. Bennington, Edward Carr, E. J. Power, J. Harry Elder, Thomas J. Williams, O. O. Meckling, Joseph Beckley, Edward H. Richards, John P. Clancey, W. S. Haddock, B. L. Borrop, James Costello, W. W. Groves.

American Legion of Allegheny County: Charles O. Lane, Jr., chairman, S. B. Foster, H. S. Douglas, Judge R. M. Ewing, R. J. Windgasser, Col. Eric Fisher Wood, Col. W. R. Dunlap, Dr. T. H. Snowhite, Sidney Hagerling, Thomas A. Joyce, Edward S. Crump, Jr.

HOOVER TACTICS HARRISON FLAYS

WASHINGTON, July 5.—(AP)—Asserting that "Never before has the country witnessed such a lack of leadership and a shifting of responsibility," Senator Harrison (Dem.), of Mississippi, said last night that Congress adjourned amid a fog of dismal failures and broken promises."

In a statement issued through the Democratic National Committee, the Mississippian said that when President Hoover "should have spoken he has remained silent" and that "when he should have acted he has sought recourse to a commission for investigation."

"When unjustifiable increases in tariff rates were sought, he refused to interfere, but when the debenture, as the instrumentality to make effective rates upon agricultural products, and aid to the Spanish-American and World War veterans were sought, he awoke from his lethargy and, through the influence of his position, undertook to defeat those proposals.

"Constant co-operation was extended to the Congress when his power was sought to be increased, and when curtailed, as in the flexible provision of the tariff act, he made himself very audible."

19 HELD AFTER CHICAGO RIOT

CHICAGO, July 5.—(INS)—Seventeen men and two women were held on charges of disturbing the peace today and a score were being treated for injuries suffered in a riot yesterday between police and 3,000 Communist sympathizers and organized unemployed who tried to stage a demonstration in defiance of police orders.

Four hundred reserve policemen rushed to Union Park late yesterday when the Chicago Council of the Unemployed and their followers attempted to hold their meeting at the park despite the fact that a permit had been denied them.

The policemen finally resorted to use of their night sticks when the crowd attempted to push them aside and hold the meeting. Several officers were injured.

VETS JAM PARK RAIL HOLDINGS' SECRETS BARED

WASHINGTON, July 5.—(AP)—Representative Rayburn (Dem.), of Texas, says "startling facts as to the far-reaching control of some of the nation's major railroad systems by uncontrolled holding and investment trust companies" have been disclosed by the House investigation of railroad ownership.

The Texan is ranking minority member of the Interstate Commerce Committee, which is conducting the inquiry. His assertion was based on a report submitted to him by a special committee investigator.

This document, he said, shows that on January 1, 1930, investment trust companies held 36 per cent of New York Central securities, 33 per cent of the Pennsylvania, 20 per cent of the Baltimore and Ohio, 18 per cent of the Chesapeake and Ohio, and 15 per cent of the New York, New Haven and Hartford.

Of the holdings of individual investment trust companies, the report disclosed, he said, that one held voting securities in 50 lines, 23 held securities in the Allegheny Corporation, six in the Pennroad Company and three in the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Holding Company.

PLANT TO GIVE AIRPLANES OPEN HUNDREDS JOBS MONESSEN PORT

Several hundred men will be given employment at the Lawrenceville works of the Crucible Steel Company of America following the completion of plant improvements.

Work has been started on new buildings and equipment which will be completed in the latter part of August at a cost of several hundred thousand dollars.

The new equipment will be used for the production of Rezistol, a corrosion resisting steel which is being used by the makers of automobiles and in other industries.

The product is being produced in smaller volume at the company's existing plants. Experiments covering a long period of time have resulted in the development of a large variety of steels which are being sold under this trade name.

The plant additions follow modernization work which has been under way at the company's plants in this district during the past two years. This has included the electrification of machinery and the installation of more modern production facilities.

MONESSEN, Pa., July 5.—Celebrating the official opening of Monessen's municipal airport, Pittsburgh Airways pilots on the New York run yesterday kept the skyways humming with an exhibition of stunt flying, parachute jumping and sight-seeing tours.

Four big transport planes, including a Ford tri-motor and one of Clifford Ball's air mail planes participated in the air carnival which lasted almost until dark. Another program today and still another tomorrow will bring the dedication celebration to a close. Races and balloon strafing are on the program for today with parachute jumping and sight-seeing tours over the country.

Helen Richey, Pittsburgh's first licensed woman pilot, gave an exhibition of her flying skill at the controls of the Ford as co-pilot with Ted Taney, regular New York-to-Pittsburgh pilot. Bob Dake, another Pittsburgh Airways pilot, flew a Travelair cabin ship and Camille Venet gave an exhibition of stunting in a sport Travelair biplane.

Lumberman's Body Found in Burned Car

KINSTON, N. C., July 5.—(AP)—The body of a man believed to be J. C. Causey, Suffolk, Va., lumberman, was found in a burned automobile nine miles from here. Police expressed belief he had been murdered and robbed.

Causey, reputedly wealthy, had been seen in this vicinity, and it was understood he was about to begin logging operations in Lenoir County woods.

Three Brave Lake In Skiff, Drown

ST. THOMAS, Ont., July 5.—(AP)—The fate of three men who attempted to navigate Lake Erie in a frail skiff was revealed yesterday when fishermen, hauling up nets, brought the bodies of two of them to the surface and found the third floating nearby.

The victims were Stanley A. Winters, 30, of Cleveland, salesman; Ray Carroll, 30, of Detroit, salesman, and Oscar Layne, 21, of Fairview, Ky. The fishermen found their overturned boat.

Movies Made in Land Of 160-Degree Heat

MOSCOW, July 5.—(AP)—Movies have been made of one of the hottest countries in the world, the kingdom of Yemen, where the temperature is sometimes as high as 160 degrees Fahrenheit.

A Russian expedition could work only between 8 and 10 a. m., and at times it was impossible to touch a camera with bare fingers. Sand burned the feet despite thick soles. The population consists of Arabs.

NEW YORK, July 5.—(AP)—Evidently there will be disappointment in Hollywood. Ronald Colman, screen heart-breaker, has returned from his native England without a divorce from the wife from whom he long had been estranged.

'Al Jolson Wins $68,900 at Races

NEW YORK, July 5.—(INS)—Al Jolson was $68,900 richer today, they said.

The singer visited Aqueduct track yesterday and won $53,000 on Mr. Sponge in the fourth race. Then he bet $6,000 against $8,400 on Nevopoli to place in the fifth and won that bet. Finally he won again when he bet $500 against $7,500 on Ormesby in the sixth race.

Girls Keep Source Of Injuries Secret

Police today were seeking to learn how Helen Milar, 15, and Catherine Dardinio, 15, both of Curtisville, sustained injuries last night which resulted in their being taken, unconscious, to the Allegheny General Hospital.

The girls regained consciousness hours later, but refused to tell how they were hurt, according to a hospital report. Both suffered head injuries, police said.

Mrs. Corey's Prince Weds 70-Year-Old Princess

PARIS, July 5.—Mrs. Mabelle Gilman Corey's prince, Don Luis de Bourbon, whose affairs d'amour demanded excessive cash consideration, is married, according to well founded reports.

The prince, who is aged 41, was married to a princess—Amedee de Broglie, aged 70. She comes from a long line of French nobility.

Mrs. Corey, former wife of William E. Corey, Pittsburgh millionaire steel man, has devoted herself to the social whirl since breaking off with Don Luis about a year ago. She has taken up residence in the Hotel Ritz since giving up her chateau near Versailles and spends her time and money on most elaborate social functions. She entertains most lavishly.

In 1907, the former musical comedy star married Corey, who then was president of the United States Steel Corporation. They spent most of their time abroad. They were divorced in 1924.

When she broke with Don Luis, Mrs. Corey revealed the prince's demands included a cash settlement of $200,000, an annual income of $10,000 together with "pin money" of something like $2,000 annually.

Gas Firm Fails to Report Still, Faces Charges

KANSAS CITY, July 5.—(AP)—William L. Vandeventer, United States district attorney, said he would seek to indict the Kansas City Gas Company as "a manufacturer of liquor," in connection with the recent confiscation of an 800-gallon still in the basement of a garage here.

Vandeventer said the gas company's meter was in full view of the still and he considered the company culpable in that no report had been made concerning the liquor manufacturing apparatus.

Water, electricity and gas are necessary in operation of stills, Vandeventer said, adding that the gas bill for the place where the still was located amounted to $138 for May.

"That should give anybody an idea that something was wrong at that place," he said. "The Kansas City Gas Company's conduct has been such as to aid and abet the men found in possession of the still."

C. E. MEMBERS VOTE ZONES

HERSHEY, Pa., July 5 (AP).—Dr. Royal J. Dye, of Indianapolis, addressed the closing session of the biennial convention of the state Christian Endeavor Union. It was estimated 10,000 people were present. Dr. Dye spoke of his experiences as a former medical missionary in Africa.

The delegates approved a plan for district conferences during the summer. The state will be divided into 11 districts and each section will select the time and place for its meeting. Among the resolutions which received approval was one voicing strong support of the laws and pledging the influence of the union to prevent the legalizing of commercial sports or amusements on the Sabbath. Another resolution gave the union's support to the Eighteenth Amendment and to candidates pledged to enforce the prohibition laws.

Department superintendents named included Army and Navy, the Rev. O. N. Tressler, Philadelphia, efficiency, Mary Bartusek, Greensburg, Frank Montgue, Butler, and Charlotte Cleveland, Grove City, were appointed secretaries.

BROADWAY AND HOLLYWOOD NEWS; FILM REVIEWS

SIDE WALKS of PITTSBURGH

by WILLIAM PFARR

Movie ushers salaam you, hotel telephone operators insist on "good-morning" you, and now attendants at gasoline service stations have fallen victims to the politeness fever. Drive your car into a gas station one of these days, just for fun, and order a gallon of gas. One attendant will wipe off your windshield while another cleans the hood, a third pours unexpected water into the radiator and a fourth asks politely if there isn't something he can do. Obviously, the next step is to add a fifth attendant who will grind your valves and clean out the carbon while you wait—and all for a gallon of gas.

If Jack Hollister, well-known lefthander, is planning a history of Dormont (he moved there the other day), we can contribute a short and snappy paragraph to his volume, which will undoubtedly be written in the first person. It seems that before Brookline joined the city (that was many years ago) one was able to stand on a certain spot on the John Gilfillan farm and be in four different places, so to speak. If you were an acrobat, you could reach one hand into Mt. Lebanon and one into Dormont, while one leg rested in Brookline and another in Pittsburgh. A perfect haven for an octopus, we say, clever as ever.

Mike Muldowney, the Soho Councilman, who is City Council's most dapper dresser (Councilman Harry Little will object to that), contributes a fiery speech about the newspaper photograph taken when he was nominated.

"That photographer," Mike says, "did a terrible job. I never saw anything like it.

When I got out of bed next morning and saw that picture in the paper I couldn't eat breakfast. It looked just like me."

Newspapers, too, make mistakes. One notable error not discernible to all was that of a Pittsburgh journal in its account of the death of H. C. Frick. The account listed a wrong number to designate the particular portion of the Bible read at the funeral service. It so happened that the paper referred to a paragraph which said something of fire and brimstone.

Mr. Frick's survivors, with intelligent appreciation of the fact that it was a regretted typographical error, accepted the paper's private apology in good grace.

Those young men who parade the roof of the Downtown Y. M. C. A. in bed sheets are taking sun baths . . . A Pittsburgher who is represented in "The Spring Anthology, 1930," international compilation of modern poetry, is Marie Tello Phillips . . . Pilot J. T. Stevenson, who hopped off from Altoona for Wilkes-Barre on that good-will trip, found himself over Butler an hour later . . . Wasn't the Toby McClean, of "Young Man of Manhattan," the same Jim Resley who graduated from Tech drama school and took to the stage as Norman Foster, now the husband of Claudette Colbert?

MINNEAPOLIS, July 5.—To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

We sure had a great Fourth, especially after we picked up our morning papers and found that Congress had adjourned the night of the third. That gave us a cause for having a Fourth, but our enthusiasm was immediately dampened, for the Senate is to meet again Monday, so that means that prosperity will pick up only 50 per cent.

This country has come to feel the same when Congress is in session as we do when the baby gets hold of a hammer. It's just a question of how much damage he can do with it before you can take it away from him. Well, in 18 months these babies have left a record of devastation. Yours,

WILL ROGERS.

ANTIA PAGE MAY GET WAR NURSE ROLE IN PICTURE

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, July 5.

Having served a long apprenticeship as an ingenue, Anita Page is in line for her first big lead in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's film version of "War Nurse."

This novel by Rebecca West attracted wide attention as a serial in the Cosmopolitan Magazine. It drew a picture of the World War from the viewpoint of a woman serving in the hospitals, and it told a dramatic story as well.

The role of Corinne Andrews, heroine of "War Nurse," calls for a maturity of characterization that hasn't been demanded of the pretty, blonde Anita to date. If she gets it, however, and does it well, she will have taken a long step towards becoming the actress that some of us have insisted she can be.

Perhaps she won't get the chance after all, but the studio has talked to her about it, and she is the only person under serious consideration right now.

MUSICAL POSTPONED

"Her Wedding Night" an operetta, which was to have featured Jeanette MacDonald and Robert Chisholm, the Broadway singer, has been postponed by Paramount. The studio attributes it to the fact that Mr. Chisholm was called back to Broadway, but it is freely rumored that the real motive was the increasing ban on musicals.

This is growing more pronounced every day. Understand that the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer musical department is stripped down to a shadow of its former self. Conditions are the same in other studios. Only the composers who were signed to long-term contracts are being retained.

HERSHOLT'S AUCTION

The auction of 200 volumes from Jean Hersholt's library of first editions brought $4,000, which the film star promptly invested in six more expensive volumes.

All the books that Jean sold were duplicates in his collections. He plans to go in with several other bibliophiles and establish a regular auction market. James Cruse will offer part of his library at the next sale.

Strangely enough, the auctioneer is J. C. Chadwick, who, not so long ago, was a quickie producer in Hollywood.

AFTER CROWN

Lorraine Graham, Mt. Washington girl, is one of the first entrants in the Greater Pittsburgh Beauty Contest to be held in the Stanley Theater July 16.

CHANEY BRINGS NEW TALK, OLD FACES TO THE PENN

By MILDRED FILLMORE

Lon Chaney has found his voice. In fact, not one voice but about five. Which looks like he is out to accumulate as many voices as he has faces.

Mr. Chaney tries out his vocal talents for the first time on the talk screen in a new version of that old silent thriller of his "The Unholy Three." It is now being presented in the Penn.

This film, you recall, was entertainment in the quiet days. And you can take our word for it that it has been enhanced somewhat by all the chatter. Of course, the hint of mystery and the element of suspense is lost on a second view. But, in such cases, the novelty of a talking Chaney is sufficient to hold interest.

The current production keeps well to the original in detailing the story of a strange trio—a midget, a muscular giant and a ventriloquist—that operates outside the law. It builds steady to its climax.

NICE OLD LADY

Naturally, Mr. Chaney dominates the entire picture, just as he does the other two members of the trio. And when he masquerades as a nice old lady, he is the very breath of respectability—in appearance. And when he finds he is being doubled-crossed by his confederates or becomes jealous over a girl, what a demon he can be!

The film's big smack comes when a man-eating ape goes riproaring after Mr. Muscular Giant. And then comes the bright skies for a happy girl and boy. And handcuffs to Mr. Chaney. But he's smiling as the Law leads him off and he calls back to the young sweethearts:

"I'll drop you a postcard."

THE STEPPERS STEP

On the stage is "Step Lively." Collins and Peterson dominate the affair, acting as masters of ceremonies and throwing the patter back and forth. In about the middle of the revue, Wesley Eddy comes in and does some songs and makes music with a saw. He is the best thing in the show. Other entertainers include Louise Bava, radio soprano; Georgie Tapps, a tap dancer, and Samuel Brothers, who also go in for the stepping.

The calm Wild Oscar appears at the organ. And David Pesetzki is billed for an overture. However, he nor orchestra didn't bob up at yesterday's opening performance, among the absent.

THE LAW IS PURSUING WILLIAM POWELL IN STANLEY

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

William Powell, thrice the Philo Vance of the screen, is now the pursued and not the pursuer. In "Shadow of the Law," current Stanley talkie, this thing called Law is out to get him—for murder. And it does get him. Only, aided and abetted by a climax-creating director and a film script, decorated with traditional movie gestures, he makes his escape. Out from behind jail bars he skips. And out after him skips Old Man Law, hounding him all over the place, wanting to bring him back.

Of course, if Mr. Powell were guilty of this movie murder, we wouldn't feel sorry for him. But, poor lad, he's innocent, the victim of circumstances. So we're all for him.

But at Mr. Powell our sympathy stops. The film itself deserves little. It has a freight train that moves with as great dispatch as a crack passenger express. The locomotive is all hitched and steamed up and as soon as a box car door is locked, away gallops the train. Which is some railroading! And this is but one of the film's eccentricities.

JUDGE IS BORED

There is a courtroom scene that has the presiding judge sketching pictures on a pad during a supposedly important moment in a murder trial. But don't censure the judge for his boredom. Too bad, though, he isn't a better artist.

Aside from Powell, the only other member of the cast that claims much attention is the fellow who carries the semi-comedy convict part. The ladies present, Natalie Moorehead and Marion Shilling, are just present. And as for the hounding sleuth, who pops in and out like a Jack-in-the-Box, he creates some interest for us personally because we used to know a shoe salesman with socialistic ideas, that looks like him.

Oh yes, Regis Toomey is prominent—for about two minutes.

The stage offers Horace Heidt and his Californians. No girls are about. But the boys manage a lively time. They play a number of tunes, sing anything from "Three Blind Mice" to "The Bells of St. Mary's" and are on the move every moment, except for an episode that introduces Lobo, one of those German police dogs that has felt the lure of the stage.

David Broudy takes his orchestra through a patriotic overture. And it is patriotic. And the music is O. K. But the scenic trimmings that go with it recall old nickelodeon days.

"LUMMOX" FEATURES NEW BILL IN ALDINE

"Lummox," picturization of the Fannie Hurst story, is current in the Aldine. It is a United Artist picture and was directed by Herbert Brenon—two factors that might have meant something, but, as it turns out, don't.

The film story has to do with a servant girl who has an affair with the young master of the house in which she works. A baby comes and she is forced to give up the child, forced to watch him grow to manhood from the outside, as it were. And, as she watches, she sees developed in this son some of her unexpressed yearnings for music and the aesthetic things of life. The boy becomes a musical genius.

New Picture Opens In the Harris Today

"Not Damaged," talk film featuring Lois Moran, opens today in the Harris. There will be a Victor Graff show on the stage.

WALTER WINCHELL On Broadway

Portrait of a Man Thinking Out Loud

Well, it servec Gina (Janet Flynn) Malo right . . . She's carrying that gag about "no spik English" too far . . . Over at the costumer's, the fitter no spik Franch, it appears, and believing that she couldn't mouth or understand American, he made a profane crack about her charms to his assistant, and did she open up in New Yorkese! . . . Well, it serves us right, too . . . Mustn't clown over the air any more . . . The crack about the lad who punched the girl in the night club only to be walloped by a defender half his size served as a boomerang . . . Shouldn't have said "down he went the way he should have went!" . . . Strictly clowning, but you can't kid with radio listeners, who take their grammar seriously . . . Wonder if the Cleveland nurse who wrote that letter which caused all the excitement here is happier now, and if the Cleveland News editor can do anything further, considering that the hosp out there fired her for speaking her mind . . . Wonder if J. G. Ryder's only rival knows that the gel he financed all these years, and probably still is, was married secretly last week.

The bird who approaches locals for coins, saying: "I am Fighting Jack Moran, the former welterweight champion," has his nerve . . . Never was such a ringman . . . So Peggy Allenby is going to marry him in Paris via the Europa . . . Nice girl, that Allenby, and a good actress . . . Never would have known Dolores Brown in that color hair . . . She wasn't that pretty, anyhow, when she was a blonde . . . Patou said a tongueful, at that . . . "The trouble with the American women is that they bleach their hair, which robs them of the personality God gave them" . . . Too bad about Betty Burns and her husband losing all that coin in Sarasota . . . John Ringling doesn't know yet that he was indirectly responsible . . . Mickey Alpert sings delightfully . . . So they tried to kidnap Connie for coin . . . Lucky to escape those four shots.

Lou Holtz certainly has the best act of his career at the Palace . . . Plenty comical and a sweet routine . . . The stooge being the funniest of the "plants" in anybody's act, too . . . Ruth Etting's torch tales stopped the proceedings cold, but she always does, anyhow . . . And what a person! . . . Gus Edwards hasn't aged at all . . . My, my Gus, it's 20 years ago! . . . The lads who dress the electric bulbs on the front of the theaters must arrange them purposely to be flip . . . Loew's State frixample . . . "Clara Bow in 'True to the Navy' and 'Three Sailors'" . . . So Mary Masher, of "Frenchmen," and Ray Adams have Called It a Day . . . Wonder if she returned his jools . . . Georgia Payne, once a Ziegfeld clothes-horse, now Abbeying it in this many beads . . . Say, lotsa girls haven't as many reasons to parade that way . . . Jean Mallin should watch those last high notes . . . They call that constructive criticism, old boy.

Oakie will do anything for a laugh, at that . . . At the "Flying High" chorus-boy call, they say, he went back stage to mingle with his old mob and got in line for inspection with them . . . And wasn't picked! . . . That Agnes (Washington) Hill eyeful is back again, with a new six-karat kleig light on her fingers and a mess of sunbern . . . And we wish her gentlemen admirers here wouldn't call up to ask "Inasmuch as you are always mentioning her, can you tell me where she is?" . . . This means you! . . . So the Pathfinder is claiming the simile: "As tiresome as a nice girl who brags about it," eh? . . . Somebody down there is paying for material they may borrow by merely using a set of quotation marks . . . It was nice to bump into the Fred Stones . . . Been married over 20 years . . . Add Broadway records! . . . Nothing unusual in the Lindberghs not naming him . . . The William A. Drakes haven't named their 3½-year-old son yet, preferring to let him select his own later on.

Wish that the Mr. Moore who lost all that coin in the recent crash, and whose beautiful car (light-green-colored) was parked in front of the Stork Club on 58th Street tother eve'g, would call us . . . Understand he wants to peddle the handsome thing for reasonable dough . . . We know a prospect who will pay spot cash. . . . This is the time of the year when you meet so many people who have made changes in "hearts" . . . Marushka and Leta, a pair of Polish pretties, who would amaze you with their tales of when they were nine or ten and the armies invaded their home towns over there . . . Over here they have learned to grind their thighs and do "snake-hips" and sink sad sonks . . . Funny never thought of it before.

Wonder why Laverne Lambert, the Guinan gel who was beaten up by the "mysterious Mr. X" in a hotel room from which she leaped two stories doesn't tell the press his tag . . . He is a prominent realtor . . . 55 years old . . . His pash is busting girls on the jaw and his initial tag is Freddie . . . We know his other tag, too, but it might embarrass his frau . . . Ray Goetz is back from Paree where he left Peggy Joyce . . . I can imagine her getting terribly lonesome for him, or anyone else . . . George Marshall, of Washington, lost the decision to LeRoy Prinz, the "Vanities" executive in a night place . . . Prinz, an Ace in the Big Quarrel, was cited 18 times for felling that many German planes and he can hit with his paws, too . . . Faith Bacon, the 19 yr old who dances in the absolute nude at the New Amsterdam has white hair—kept lily white by the use of bluing mixed with peroxide . . . Incidentally, Mr. Carroll, who doesn't adore Ziegfeld and vice versa, has finally produced a hit in Ziegfeld's former "home" . . . And Carroll's usual sign over his stage entrance, viz: "Through these portals pass the most beautiful girls in the world," has been revised to read: "Through these portals NOW pass the most beautiful girls in the world" . . . There's sarcasm for you . . . A dirty trick—but it's "good Broadway!"

By HOWARD L. BROWNING, JR.

Intelligent persons will be wondering about the new picture with which the Enright is opening this week. The film revolves around one Admiral Byrd, of whom you may have heard, and a handful of men whom he took with him to the somewhat chilly Antarctic regions, on a journey of exploration and discovery.

Intelligent persons will, if they go to the Enright, go fearing a glorified news reel along the lines of Ingagi, filmed extensively in Hollywood. They will rather expect long-shots and closeups of glaciers; long-shots and close-ups of mountain ranges; long-shots and close-ups of the sled dogs.

But they will be pleasantly surprised when they see a two-hour film which includes all of these on a long list of exciting awe-inspiring scenes packed with thrills and conveying, as only pictures can, an excellent impression of just what Byrd and his crew faced when they ventured into the ice-bound fastnesses (trite, but pat) of Little America, flew over the South Pole.

There is no sense in attempting to describe this plotless, womanless picture. This corner believes it ranks with "Journey's End," also a womanless screening, as an encouraging sign that moving picture producers are finding the box office more responsive to artistic and educational presentations than ever before. Best shot: the whales play beneath Little America and poke their snouts through holes in the ice pack.

MT. WASHINGTON GIRL ENTERS STANLEY'S BEAUTY SHOW

Miss Lorraine Graham, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Graham, of 73 Ruth street, Mt. Washington, was one of the first of Pittsburgh girls to enter the Greater Pittsburgh Beauty Contest which will take place on the stage of the Stanley Theater the night of July 16.

Miss Graham will compete for the title Miss Pittsburgh, which carries with it a contract for one week's engagement on the stage of the Stanley, supported by 15 other beauties, who also will be given contracts with salaries.

Miss Graham attended the South Hills High School.

The girl selected as Miss Pittsburgh, following her Stanley engagement, will embark for Galveston, Tex., to compete in the International Pageant of Beauty for the title Miss Universe and $4,000 in cash prizes. All expenses for Miss Pittsburgh and chaperon will be paid.

Dance Orchestras Kennywood Feature

The Casa Loma Orchestra will play Monday night on the dance pavilion in Kennywood Park, in conjunction with Danny Nirella's Kennywoodians. The latter organization will open an engagement there Monday afternoon. The Casa Loma engagement is for one night only. Izzy Cervone's Playboys are at the dance pavilion today.

Camera Question Box

The Sun-Telegraph's "Camera Question Box" each day will ask a question of public interest to Pittsburghers and will photograph those interviewed.

Today's Question: The "Fortune" budget estimates that a private railroad car would cost about $33,000 a year. Do you think such an expenditure worth while for those who can afford it?

J. Kaufman

J. KAUFMAN, jeweler, downtown: Certainly. Why not? A private car is certainly a convenience if you can afford it, and why shouldn't anyone have one if he can afford to?

Alfred M. Mercer

ALFRED M. MERCER, paper, Knoxville: Well, it's all right for people that have a couple of million and can afford it. The rest of us can look in and wish we had the money too.

Miss Chell

MISS ROSALIE CHELL, secretary, East End: Well, if people have nothing more than that to do with their money I guess it's all right. But I think it's a foolish thing to do when the money could be used otherwise to much better advantage.

Miss Reed

MISS MARGARET REED, secretary, Wilkinsburg: I think that's an extravagance and not worth the money. Trains are quite good enough and have good accommodations and excellent service.

S. Oksner

S. OKSNER, store manager, Squirrel Hill: It's a pretty nice thing for anyone that has enough money. The convenience and comfort are enough to warrant such an expenditure any time.

A. J. Wagner

A. J. WAGNER, clerk, Morningside: Anyone who can afford a private car should by all means have one. I don't see any reason why a man with that much money shouldn't get all the conveniences he can.

HUNT FOR GEM ROBBERS ON

LOCUST VALLEY, N. Y., July 5.—(AP)—Nassau County police are hunting for robbers who stole $20,000 worth of jewels at The Cedars, the estate of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Blackwell in Brookville.

The robbery occurred within 24 hours after a $6,000 gem theft at the estate of George Sloane in Glen Head, a mile and half away.

The robbery at the Blackwell home, police said, occurred while the lights were on and while seven servants were in the house.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Jane Edson Marrying Today

There are, suddenly, so many things to tell you about debuts, weddings and even travelers. June, I see, has it altogether the honors in such events. And now I'm going to tell you about a coming bride, before I speak of a visitante of the fall.

What probably will be the prettiest bridal procession of the air of [illegible] tracts society [illegible] city, is taking place this afternoon at [illegible] Episcopal Church of Sewickley.

And the bride is Jane Edson, daughter of Mrs. [illegible] Edson, Jr., of [illegible] Sewickley, who is marrying William Livingston of Pittsburgh, son of the John Glaswold Livingstons of Lawrence L. I.

Summer flowers will decorate the church. The bride [illegible] is being given in marriage by her father, is wearing a chiffon net gown fashioned with [illegible] sleeves, a train and a [illegible] skirt. Her veil is held by [illegible] summer flowers to match the bridal bouquet.

Bridal Party

Kingsley Kahler of Princeton, N. J., is maid of honor and Mrs. John Jay Edson III, Virginia Wallock, Harriet Ramsburg and Margaret McCready as bridesmaids are wearing charming [illegible] tinted organdie frocks fashioned with high waistlines and long full skirts. They are wearing leghorn picture hats and carrying [illegible] flowers.

John C. Livingston, [illegible] of the brother's best man, and Robert Cambridge Livingston, another brother of the bridegroom; Alfred Lawrence, John Latimer, Albert Franke, all of Lawrence L. I.; John Kemp Goodloe, Fuller Potter, Guest, George Pomeroy Bassett III and Bennett Edson, brother of the bride, are ushers.

After August 1 the Livingstons will be at home in Orchard Lane, Edgeworth.

Last evening Harriet Ramsburg gave a dinner in her home honoring the bride and bridegroom, and recently Drummond Fitch entertained for the bride.

* * *

And now I want to tell you about a debutante for fall, in fact winter, as the date of the event, an important affair, is December 20. And on that evening the Richard B. Tuckers of Morewood avenue, are to present their daughter, Elinor Hillard Baker, at a dinner in the Twentieth Century Club.

Winter Debut

And now I must tell you about people who are traveling. Laura Collard has gone to a ranch in Wyoming to spend the summer. Neil Stewart Zang and Nancy Wise are spending several weeks at Hollidaysburg with a party, and later Neil is going to Pocono Manor and Cape Cod.

Mrs. J. E. Umbstaetter, Miss Sarah Bissell, Mrs. Roy Hunt and Mrs. Stewart Johnston are attending the annual meeting of the Garden Club of America.

* * *

Visiting Gotham

The James M. Clarks and their daughter, Peggy, are in Gotham and are staying at the Barclay. Mrs. George Hamilton Flinn, who has been at the St. Regis Hotel in New York, left Wednesday for her summer home in Easthampton, L. I. The Estep Taillard Gotts, of Beaver road, have Mrs. Gotts's sister, Mrs. Cromwell Lewis, of Washington, D. C., as their house guest. Mrs. Lewis has been honored with several luncheons and dinners during her visit here.

Miss Ampara Acosta of Havana, Cuba, is the guest of the George R. Hofmanns and has been extensively entertained. The Edward Grant Caugheys of Pine road, Edgeworth, have as guests their son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. George Martin Guest, of Cincinnati.

Mrs. Frederick Thatcher, of Maplewood, N. J., and her daughter, Elizabeth, are guests of the James E. Browns of Beaver road, Sewickley. And back to the South has gone Mrs. Joseph Willetts, Jr., of Anniston, Ala., who has been a guest of Miss Agate Brown of Academy avenue.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Clement C. Dubbs of Milroy avenue announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Martha Elizabeth Dubbs, to Harold Pard, son of Mrs. Ellen Cook Pard of Ridgfield, Conn. No date has been named for the wedding.

Pledge Troth

* * *

At a dinner given in the home of Miss Emma John, of Brentwood, the engagement of Miss Irene Dorothy Smith, of Crafton Heights, and John Kenneth Harris, son of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Harris, also of Crafton Heights, was announced. No date has been named for the wedding.

* * *

Miss Catherine S. King, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. P. King of Monessen, sailed last week on the Lafayette for a two-month trip abroad. After spending six weeks in Paris at the Sorbonne she will visit Oberammergau before returning home in September.

Visiting Europe

* * *

Mrs. John G. Price, of Hill avenue, sailed this week on the Saturnia for a trip abroad. She will visit Italy, Austria, Germany, Belgium and Holland and will attend the passion play at Oberammergau on July 26. She returns the last week in August on the Rotterdam.

* * *

In the lovely garden at Mrs. Frank Dravo's home, East Drive, Sewickley, on Monday evening an audience of about 100 persons witnessed the presentation of "Peter Rabbit" by the crippled children of the Sewickley Fresh Air Home. About 50 youngsters, all costumed to represent the residents of Mr. McGregor's garden, gave the charming pageant directed by Mrs. Bernadette Tetwiler with Miss Fannie Wood assisting. Between the acts Jack Craig of Wilkinsburg entertained with whistling solos and Mrs. A. F. MacDonald of Lark Inn Field played two violin numbers. Both were accompanied by Mrs. Naomi Struble.

* * *

Tuesday, July 8, will be ladies' guest day at the Shannopin Country Club. The affair will start at 9 o'clock and luncheon will be served from 11:30 to 3:30 o'clock. Mrs. W. J. Lacock is chairman of the golf committee and Mrs. Fred Unkefer and Mrs. William Boggs are assisting during this month.

* * *

Mrs. James Miller and Mrs. Paul Snyder, of Butler, entertained recently at a bridge party in honor of Mrs. J. M. Kottraba, who was Miss Georgia Binder, of Pittsburgh, before her marriage last winter.

* * *

Mrs. Frank F. Canuti, of Oakmont, left July 1 for her summer home in Ocean City, N. J. She will return in mid September.

* * *

Mizpah Chapter No. 49, Order of Eastern Star, will hold a garden party on Friday, July 11, in the home of Mrs. Elizabeth Lewis, of Oakland avenue.

Byrd Rests Before Middle West Tour

DUBLIN, N. H., July 5.—(AP.)—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, Antarctic explorer, and his family arrived here to rest at their summer home before the Admiral leaves for the Middle West to attend public receptions in his honor.

The party came from Boston by automobile. After his trip Byrd will return here to spend the remainder of the summer in writing.

Away 50 Years, Pays Visit to Scotland

GALASHIELS, Scotland, July 5.—(AP.)—After an absence of 50 years, Mrs. Margaret Hammond Foye, 70, has returned from New Orleans to her native town and has danced the Highland Fling at a festival. She worked in woolen mills here as a girl.

WASHINGTON'S FACE UNVEILED

RAPID CITY, N. D., July 5.—(AP.)—Gutzon Borglum's gigantic face of George Washington, carved on Mount Rushmore's granite cliff, was revealed as a reminder through the centuries of the historical foundation of the United States.

In Independence Day ceremonies in the heart of South Dakota's Black Hills, an audience of 2,500 witnessed the unveiling of the 60-foot head, the first unit of Mount Rushmore National Memorial.

"America's shrine for political democracy," the monument was called by Joseph S. Cullinan, of Houston, Tex., chairman of the federal commission in charge of the project.

Borglum, in his presentation speech, said it was a monument to the aspirations of a great people not to individual men. He said it would stay on the mountain half a million years.

Washington's head appears high on the granite cliff at an elevation of 6,200 feet above sea level. The stone face is easily recognized as that of the first president, and is visible a great distance.

Plane to Advertise Church Services

NEW YORK, July 5.—(INS.)—A modern method of inducing church attendance will be tried tomorrow when an airplane equipped with powerful amplifiers will fly over the beach and boardwalk at Long Beach, Long Island. From the plane church services will be announced and literature distributed.

The use of the plane is planned by the Rev. Dr. Samuel Trexler, president of the United Lutheran Synod of New York, and Dr. E. R. Hart, pastor of St. John's-by-the-Sea, which will dedicate a new church tomorrow afternoon.

Bell Company Vets Tendered Luncheon

In recognition of their long service, a luncheon was tendered C. I. Ullery, J. J. McClain and A. J. Flucker by the Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania. F. Chesterman, vice president and general manager of the company, presented the men with gold service buttons. Ullery and McClain completed 40 years of service, while Mr. Flucker has been with the company 35 years.

Pittsburgh Naval Reservists to Sail

More than 40 Pittsburghers, members of a unit of the United States naval reserves, were in Philadelphia today, ready to begin a 15-day service course on the high seas. The unit was to be taken aboard the destroyer U. S. S. Breckenridge and ship for North Atlantic waters. Shore leave will be granted at Boston and Newport.

CIRCUS TRAIN DUE SUNDAY

The trainload of cowboys, Indians and cowgirls of the Miller Brothers 101 Ranch Wild West Show will arrive in the city tomorrow for the Monday and Tuesday stand at old Exposition Park, North Side. The tents and equipment are expected in time for the crew of workmen to have them erected and in place before nightfall.

J. B. Jenny, "the 24-hour man," arrived at the lot today. It is his duty to arrange for the hay and grain for the 500 head of stock and enough eatables for the many Indians, cowboys and cowgirls. There will be shows Monday and Tuesday nights with matinees both days.

Girl Hiker Missing After Three Days

FRANKLIN, Pa., July 5.—(AP.)—Missing since Wednesday, when she went hiking and swimming with 20 other girls, the mystery of the disappearance of Frances Halsel, 15, of Rocky Grove, was unsolved today.

While police of Western Pennsylvania sought the girl, believing she may have accepted a "lift" from a passing motorist who drove off with her, friends searched along the banks of French Creek. The creek was dragged for a mile.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

These Modern Lovers

Love is like seasickness: after you have recovered from the pangs it is awfully hard to believe that you ever felt like that.

* * *

token, you can't rekindle the burnt-out flame in a man's heart with tears.

* * *

Why is it that a man gives his wife no peace until she learns how to drive the car, when he knows perfectly well that he will have no peace, himself, after she learns how the darned thing works?

* * *

When a woman is as impressionable as a sofa-pillow, it is scarcely a temptation to a man, to see how deep a dent he can make in her heart or her consciousness.

* * *

There always comes a time—usually after twenty-five—when the most fastidious girl gives up trying to pick a winner, and begins to look speculatively over the "also-rans."

* * *

A professional vamp knows how to play one man against another, just as a skilled golfer often plays one ball against another, and manages to win by a few dexterous maneuvers.

* * *

Gentlemen do not really prefer blondes and dumbbells. An intellectual brunette can always get a good job as easily as a blonde, if she will merely peroxide her hair and assume a fatuous baby-stare.

* * *

Somehow, the woman who seems to be "putty in a man's hands" always has an irritating way of sticking to him like chewing-gum.

You can usually tell who's BOSS in the family just by the way a man honks for his wife—whether the horn seems to say "Hustle, hustle! Step-on-it-I'm waiting!" or "If you're ready, darling—here I am."

Round Table Program Varied

From September 23, when it opens with president's day, until June 2, when it closes with the annual outing, the year arranged for the Bellevue Round Table holds promise of many good things. Mrs. Allan Cruikshank, program chairman, will outline these good things at the opening meeting which is to be held in Mrs. Joseph H. Caughey's home, Sheridan avenue. A talk on "An Adventure in Antiques" at the first October meeting will be illustrated by an exhibit of articles in possession of the members. A play review, a travelogue, a talk on "To Lhasa in Disguise," a paper on "Chicago," a presentation of a one-act play and the Christmas party are all scheduled for the first half of the year.

January will bring an address by the Rev. Dr. Ralph B. Urmy on "Atheistic Russia," and one on "An Approach to Biography," by Mrs. Ross E. Taggart, who will pay a second visit to the club later. Papers by the members on "Disraeli," "Emerson," "Morley," "Literary Criticism," "Literary Censorship" and "Modern Poetry" will come during the remainder of the season. Music and "topics" will be part of nearly every program, and for the annual guest day at the Highland Country Club, which is set for April 21, a special program will be arranged.

Mrs. Harry D. Howard has succeeded Miss Jennie Bruce as president of the club.

* * *

As speaker for the second in the series of summer travel talks being sponsored by the Congress of Clubs radio department, Miss Nellie La Fever, a member of the Tourists' Club, will talk over KDKA on Tuesday at 1:30 o'clock. She will discuss "The Ruins of Zimbawbe," a subject which she presented in a paper before her own club in January.

Radio Speaker

Mrs. Lena Powell Walkinshaw, soprano, accompanied by Mrs. W. H. Patterson, will furnish music for this period.

In order to avoid conflicting with several other affairs in the borough, the lawn carnival planned for July 15 by the Women's Civic Club of Duquesne has been postponed until September.

Postpone Carnival

Mrs. A. D. Elliott has been appointed to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of the treasurer of the club, Mrs. Nellie Haggerty. The weekly Wednesday afternoon card parties and the monthly affairs sponsored by the board the third Tuesday of the month will be continued throughout the summer.

A large delegation of Pittsburgh and Wilkinsburg members will attend the southwestern district inter-county institute of Women's Christian Temperance Union to be held at Ridgeview Park, Thursday and Friday. Nine counties, Allegheny, Indiana, Cambria, Fayette, Somerset, Greene, Westmoreland, Armstrong and Washington, will be represented at the meeting. Mrs. E. J. Gibson, Allegheny County president, is also president of the inter-county group.

A special meeting for the purpose of initiation will be held Monday evening in East End O. E. S. Temple by the William E. Gelstone Court, No. 89, Order of the Amaranth. Members of Schenley and Friendship Courts will be guests.

Eight Regional Flags Now Flown in Spain

MADRID, July 5.—(AP.)—Eight regional flags, representing former kingdoms or racial groups, are flying now in Spain. Primo de Rivera, when dictator, forbade display of the Catalonian flag because of independence movements, but King Alfonso has rescinded the ban.

The banners of Valencia, Galicia, Avila, the Basque provinces, Asturias, Aragon and Andalucia also flutter in the breezes.

PARIS SPONSORS MOIRE AS AN EVENING FABRIC

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, July 5.—Moire becomes more and more important with its representation in almost every important collection and its choice as an evening fabric by women of acknowledged chic. It is being cleverly and gracefully handled by the designers who are treating it with delicacy thus taking it from the slightly pompous and certainly heavy look that used to characterize it previous to its astonishing comeback. It is generally used for evening frocks that are meant to give service, for it has been found that the simply made, unembellished frock of good material will be fit for duty right through a season, for all save really big and important events. The light weave of moire used just now lends itself successfully to the flowing lines current this season.

* * *

THE MOIRE FROCK depicted here is of a very delicate shade of pastel blue, and is by Poiret, one of the couturiers responsible for the comeback of this material. It is of a soft crepe quality that is so suitable for frocks of the type shown here. It is cleverly flounced and has a one sided decolletage and a draped waistline. The buckle at one hip is in strass and blue enamel. The irregular line of the flounces is a bright note, suggesting the spiral and diagonal effects so much in use at present.

* * *

LINEN IS ANOTHER fabric that has met with much success this season, and many couturiers are stressing it in their summer collections are finding many purchasers of frocks of this material. Handkerchief linen is particularly liked for the type of little frock donned for all-day wear under a bright sun. The model sketched is from Jane Regny, who features handkerchief linen to a considerable degree. It is of butter-colored linen with short sleeves and flaring capelets which are decidedly youthful in effect.

TEACHERS TOLD OF WORLD TIES

COLUMBUS, O., July 5.—(AP.)—While members of the National Education Association celebrated the anniversary of American independence, John F. Finley, literary editor of the New York Times, called upon them to recognize that destiny is fast increasing interdependence among nations.

Finley spoke at the closing session of the association's sixty-eighth annual convention. The new president, Dr. Willis A. Sutton, of Atlanta, was installed and Los Angeles selected as the 1931 meeting place.

Finley quoted John Fisk as prophecying 50 years ago that it would become desirable at the end of a century for the states of Europe to enter into a federal union. He continued:

"We are only a half century on the way from the time when that prophecy was made, and Europe is already astir with that vision."

Massillon Legion Drum Corps Winner

MARTINS FERRY, O., July 5.—Massillon took first place in the $1,000 prize drill for American Legion drum corps, featuring the July 4 celebration here. Washington, Pa., was second, Kent third, Steubenville fourth, North Canton fifth, Ravenna sixth.

These organizations and others representing Weirton, Moundsville, McMechen, Fairmont and Elm Grove, W. Va.; Waynesburg and Sharon, Pa., and Bridgeport, Shadyside, Yorkville, St. Clairsville and Tiltonville, O., marched in the parade.

'Refined' Bandits Rob Bridge Party

DETROIT, July 5.—(INS.)—Three "refined" young bandits, who held up five women and four men guests at a bridge party in the palatial Royal Oak home of Mrs. Grace Burgis, wealthy society matron, after pinning a private policeman of the estate to a porch with his own handcuffs, are being sought.

Loot amounted to only $93 in cash. The bandits, who were described as "young and refined," returned diamonds and watches to the guests when pleas for them were made.

1,000 Childdren Go To Lutheran Camp

One thousand children will enjoy a vacation in the country at the Lutheran Summer Camp, at Zelienople, on the Connoquenessing River. For 12 years it has been the fresh air camp for the Lutheran Inner Mission Society of Pittsburgh. The camp opens today. The camp is under the direction of a committee of the society.

Retired Admiral May Wed Widow

CHICAGO, July 5.—(AP.)—Friends here heard today that Rear Admiral Predric Brewster Bassett, retired, soon will marry Mrs. Eleanor Stuart Blue, widow of Rear Admiral Victor Blue.

Attendants at Admiral Brewster's Fullerton parkway home said he had engaged larger quarters nearby. They declared the marriage was expected, but neither the admiral nor his close associates could be reached.

Lawyers Resent Gay Court Garb in China

SHANGHAI, July 5.—(AP.)—Chinese lawyers are objecting to new regalia decreed by the Nankin government. In court they must wear black gowns bedecked with white silk ribbons and headgear that looks like that of Nationalist soldiers. A petition sent to Nankin urges something less conspicuous.

TEACHERS FLAY OUTSIDE PAY

WASHINGTON, July 5.—(AP.)—The committee on ethics of the American Association of University Professors has found it undesirable for members of college faculties to accept funds from private sources for investigations of a controversial nature associated with public policy.

Its inquiry into this question resulted from the Federal Trade Commission investigation of public utility power companies in which it was asserted college professors had been employed by such concerns for the dissemination of propaganda.

The committee also found it undesirable that academic or research institutions accept gifts from any business source.

HOLIDAY THRONGS MAKE FOURTH GALA DAY HERE

DISTRICT FETES FEATURE OF CELEBRATION

Concerts, Sports, Fireworks, Plane Exhibits Attract Crowds to Communities

The July Fourth observance in the Pittsburgh district was made up mostly of community celebrations with speech-making, sports, band concerts and fireworks featuring. There was no general celebration, each community arranging the program for the residents of the immediate district.

Large crowds were in attendance at Forbes Field to see the Pittsburgh baseball club in action in two games. Many hundreds visited the airports, parks, swimming pools and amusement centers. The Pittsburgh-Butler Airport at Butler and the Curtiss-Wright-Bettis Airport reported large crowds witnessing their aerial programs. Automobile races also drew large numbers.

In the county parks, huge crowds witnessed the fireworks and attended the band concerts arranged by Director Paul B. Ritts. In Schenley Park the city sponsored an amateur aquatic meet, witnessed by more than 1,500. Swimmers representing various clubs in the county competed for honors in a variety of events.

AVALON

Avalon's new $60,000 swimming pool was dedicated during the community celebration yesterday, borough officials addressing the large gathering. Burgess Grant Ritchey made the dedicatory address and formally opened the pool. Other speakers were Charles Newell, president of Council; Councilman P. L. Jarett and W. D. Kelly, treasurer of the Avalon Fire Department.

BROOKLINE

The Brookline Board of Trade took charge of the celebration in that community yesterday. A parade through the district opened the program which included morning and afternoon athletic programs, and vaudeville and movies at night.

WOODS RUN

Children of the Woods Run District paraded through the streets of the community under the auspices of the Woods Run Settlement. The children, led by a band, marched to the settlement's playground where an entertainment was held. A street dance was held at night.

SOHO

Former Assistant United States Attorney Ralph H. Smith was the principal speaker at the community celebration staged by the Soho Community Association. Officers of the association were hosts to the children at the Soho playgrounds. The children were entertained with sports and refreshments, after which the speaking program was started. A street dance was held at night.

CRAFTON-INGRAM

Crafton and Ingram united for their annual celebration on the Crafton Athletic Field. A parade at noon through principal streets of both boroughs opened the celebration. During the afternoon there were patriotic addresses, the principal speaker being Joseph N. Mackrell, register of wills. Baseball games, races, band concerts and fireworks completed the program.

BRENTWOOD

Brentwood firemen held a street dance last night to complete the day's celebration. Sports, a band concert and fireworks also were included in the program.

BRASHEAR SETTLEMENT

A picnic at the Brashear-Trees camp on the Harmony route featured the celebration of the Brashear Settlement. A picnic lunch and an athletic program featured the outing.

WEST PARK

Patriotic exercises by girls from the field house of Troy Hill and Manchester, featured the celebration in West Park of the Playground Vacation School Association of Allegheny County yesterday. Several hundred girls participated in the program.

TWENTY-FIFTH WARD

A street dance and fair was held last night in Sampson street by the Republican Club of the Twenty-fifth Ward. Free refreshments and dancing were included in the program.

LINCOLN PLACE

More than 2,000 persons, most of them children from the Thirty-first Ward, attended a celebration at Betenkolb Field, Lincoln place. The affair was staged by the Republican committee of the ward. Speakers were Senator Frank J. Harris, President of Council John S. Herron, Burgess John Cavanaugh, of Homestead, C. J. McBride and Paul Rogers.

Similar celebrations were held in Edgewood, Wilkinsburg, Dormont, Mt. Lebanon, Beechview, Mt. Washington, the Eighteenth Ward and Crafton Heights. Athletic events and military drills featured the celebration at the Western Pennsylvania Training School at Morganza.

Hit by Motorcycle, Asks City to Pay

Mrs. Mary B. Frazier, 5163 Penn avenue, knocked down and hurt internally by a motorcycle driven by Lieut. of Traffic A. L. Jacks has sued the City of Pittsburgh for $50,000 damages, because, she says, "Jack failed to regard the rights of her safety." The accident occurred November 9, 1928, while Mrs. Frazier was crossing the street at Penn and Negley avenues.

BROOKLINE'S RISING GENERATION CELEBRATING THE FOURTH: 154 YEARS LATER

MACKEY URGES DRY REPEAL

PHILADELPHIA, July 5.—(AP.)—A plea for tolerance and an attack on the Eighteenth Amendment were made by Mayor Harry A. Mackey in addressing a great crowd in Independence Square at Philadelphia's official celebration of Independence Day.

Standing in the shadows of historic Independence Hall, Mayor Mackey said that those who contended that the Eighteenth Amendment "was a great mistake in fundamental government," were the choicest defenders of the Constitution.

"For it is they," he added, "who seek to defend the Constitution against ruthless mutilation by an amendment that regulates private conduct rather than addressing itself to the great principle of fundamental government.

"I plead for a return to the states of the right of local option.

"Out of this attempt of the nation to enforce the law has grown a new generation of liars, hypocrites and false pretenders in high and low life, in official life and among our civilian population. Disrespect for the law has been engendered. The plain people are waiting the dawn of tolerance."

Alights from Car, Hit by Auto, Sues

Fletcher Grubbs, struck by an automobile owned by L. Riemer as he alighted from a street car at California and Bainton avenues, North Side, has sued Riemer for $25,000 damages for bodily hurts. The accident happened March 10 last.

HOMES BURNED, BLAME ROCKET

A blazing skyrocket today was blamed for one of three fires that caused serious damage during the night. The rocket ignited a frame dwelling in West Roseridge avenue, Bellevue, destroying the two-story structure and making homeless five Negro families. The owner of the building is Jacob Wolff, of Orchard avenue, Bellevue. The damage is estimated at $10,000, Bellevue police say.

The structure, a landmark on the old Burki farm, was discovered on be on fire by motorists on the Bellevue High Bridge. The blaze was very spectacular. Traffic was tied up on nearby highways as a result of the fire.

Two persons were injured in a fire which early today caused $5,000 damage to the Morris Theater building, 3033 Preble avenue. The fire seriously damaged the second-floor apartment of Mrs. Morris Goldstein, owner of the theater, which is located on the first floor of the two-story building.

Wagonman Robert Purvis, of the Woods Run station, was burned slightly when he broke into the Goldstein apartment, believing members of the family to be asleep. The apartment was unoccupied, the family being away over the holiday.

Battalion Chief Martin Loebig estimated the damage.

Laughlin Steel Corporation, Daniel M. Murraco, 12, of 493 Hopewell avenue, Aliquippa, and Joseph Stafanie, 14, of 505 Philip street, Aliquippa, drowned in the Ohio River. The body of the Murraco boy was recovered at 10:30 p. m., but the Stafanie boy was not brought out of the river until 6:02 a. m. today.

BROOKLINE BOY DROWNED

William Jones, 11, of Brookline, was drowned in the Elk River off Green Bush point near Elkton, Md., according to word received here. He sank as he was swimming to a boat where his uncle, with whom he was spending the day, was waiting. The body was recovered within 10 minutes.

Harold D. Pryor, 27, of 730 Hill avenue, Wilkinsburg, was drowned in Conneaut Lake, where he was spending the holiday with a party of friends. He was bathing with several companions, who did not note his absence until another bather found his body near a pier. The body was brought home last night.

Searchers yesterday recovered the body of Daniel Loy, 16, of Dale street and Fifth avenue, from the Monongahela River near Dravosburg. The boy was drowned Wednesday while swimming with several companions.

CRAFTON MAN KILLED

Harry Vaughan, 60, of 54 Rodgers avenue, Crafton, died early today in Allegheny General Hospital, several hours after being struck by an automobile while crossing the Thornburg Bridge, Crafton. J. G. Allison, of Steubenville, driver of the machine, was to appear before the coroner today.

A report from Portsmouth, O., today said George Winzo, 50, of Pittsburgh, had been fatally injured and his wife and two children cut and bruised in the collision of their car with another machine at that place. Winzo's skull was fractured. Occupants of the other car fled after the accident.

THREE HURT IN WRECK

Three persons were injured this morning in a collision of automobiles on the Butler plank road near Glenshaw. They were Sidney Katz, Mrs. Helen Lichstein, 36, and her son, Milton, 14, all of 516 Second avenue, Pittsburgh. Katz was admitted to the Allegheny General Hospital with injuries to the left shoulder. The others received treatment and went home.

Hit by an automobile near his home early today, John Ontko, 14, of 241 Cherry way, Braddock, suffered a broken right leg. He was taken to the Braddock General Hospital. Police arrested Lonnie Payton, of 345 Braddock avenue, Braddock, as the driver.

ONE GETS SKULL FRACTURE

The injured are: Marie Lowery, 32, of 746 Maplewood avenue; Helen Cornelius, 34, of Maplewood avenue; Mary Dougherty, 32, of 7513 Hamilton avenue, and Dorothy Foster, 30, 812 Maplewood avenue. The Dougherty woman suffered a fractured skull and the others cuts and bruises. All are in the Brooks Memorial Hospital at Dunkirk.

Mary Catherine Shellenbarger, 4, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Shellenbarger, of 184 West Washington avenue, is dead in Alliance, O., after an automobile accident early yesterday. Her father's car collided with another, throwing the child through the windshield.

Struck by a machine while walking in the Monroeville road, Patton Township, yesterday, Samuel McCune, 5, of Oak avenue extension, Turtle Creek, received a skull fracture and is in Braddock General Hospital. Police arrested William Ryland, of the Sandy Creek road, as the driver.

TRAIN HITS AUTO

Four persons, including two women, escaped injury when their automobile was struck by an eastbound passenger train on the Pennsylvania Railroad at Shadyside station. Police say the occupants of the car disappeared. W. E. Smith, Jr., 30, of 2300 Wilson avenue, was arrested on a reckless driving charge. He denied knowledge of the accident, police said.

Robert Mrvos, 4, of 1813 Fifth avenue, McKeesport, suffered a broken right leg when hit by a machine in front of his home. He was taken to the McKeesport Hospital by S. H. Gallagher, of 2717 Fifth avenue, who, police say, was driving the automobile.

North Side police are holding Steve Bervacki, 27, of Straub's lane, who they say failed to stop after his automobile struck Joseph Waswacki, of 268 Forty-sixth street, yesterday at East Ohio street and the Herrs Island Bridge. Waswacki is in St. Francis' Hospital, seriously injured.

Struck by a street car at Fifth avenue and White street, McKeesport, Grant Elmore, 23, of 545 Ringold street, McKeesport, suffered a broken nose yesterday. He was treated at McKeesport Hospital.

3 DIE IN ROAD EXPLOSION

WINFIELD, W. Va., July 5.—(AP.)—A premature explosion of powder and dynamite on a road construction job near here caused the death of three workmen and serious injury of four others.

Two of the men, V. C. Moulse, 58, foreman, and Frank Bills, 60, blacksmith, were killed instantly. Conrad Cain, 35, died in a Charleston hospital.

The men were employed by the J. M. Cain Construction Company of Huntington. K. G. Webb, a powder man, said the explosion occurred as the last of a series of 10 holes was being filled with powder and dynamite, preparatory to firing a blast.

J. W. Anderson, circuit clerk of Putnam County, who witnessed the blast, said he believed it occurred when one of the workmen used an iron rod to dislodge a stick of dynamite, with a cap attached, which had become lodged in the hole.

PHILO, O., July 5.—(AP.)—C. W. Taylor, 45, Chicago electrical expert, was probably fatally burned and two employes of the Ohio Power Company were less seriously injured when a tank of oil exploded at the power plant. A spark from a ventilating fan motor was believed to have caused the blast.

LEADERS NAMED IN 3 WARD BATTLES

Organization Men Chosen Over Verona, Malone and Donley for Chairmanships

Officers of the Republican City Committee have declared Joseph Engelsberg, Harry Feldman and Lon MacIntosh were elected under party rules as chairmen of the Third, Fifth and Thirtieth Wards, respectively.

The city committee officers are Traffic Court Magistrate W. J. Soost, chairman; Mrs. Lillian Morgart, vice chairman, and Robert Murray, secretary. They are the selections of Mayor Kline.

Engelsberg was opposed by Alderman John J. Verona, political ally of County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong; Feldman by former President of Council James F. Malone and MacIntosh by John Donley.

Verona lost the decision because he was elected two nights earlier than the date fixed by party rules; Malone lost because he did not appear before the officers of the City Committee to present his case and thereby forfeited all his rights of recognition as Republican chairman of the Fifth Ward; Donley lost because, as temporary chairman, he did not permit the presentation of any candidacy for the ward chairmanship, excepting his own.

Falls in Doorway, Sues Store Company

Wilhelmina Bilger, Mt. Oliver, who slipped and fell in the doorway of the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company store at 124 Brownsville road, last January 27, has filed suit against the company for $50,000 damages for personal injuries to her back, hips and spine. She claims the doorway was left in a wet and slippery condition.

SUNBURN

Instantly relieves pain —prevents blistering

CANNOT STAIN CLOTHES

YOU NEEDN'T suffer a single day all summer with agonizing sunburn if you follow the advice of doctors and lifeguards at Atlantic City, Long Beach, Coney Island and other beaches and use Noxzema Cream.

Dr. Frederick Butler, Director of Lifeguards at Long Beach, shown above applying Noxzema on a sunburn patient says—"It has been proven by the lifeguards under my jurisdiction to be the most effective of all sunburn treatments we have used."

Noxzema relieves the smart and pain the moment you put it on and if applied soon enough prevents painful blistering.

Get a jar at any drug or department store.

Because Noxzema Cream is greaseless and stainless you can spread it on freely even under light summer clothes without fear of soiling or staining them. Put it on before going on business—it soothes while you work.

AVERAGE YEAR SEEN FOR STEEL

Improvement in Sentiment Noted in Past Week; Expect Tonnage Gain

By E. B. V. LUTY

In an ordinary, what might be called "normal," year in steel the lightest buying and lightest production fall in the first half of July. Taking this year as a whole it is not an ordinary year as it is distinctly off, but it may perhaps be called an average year since a guess as to the total production comes out only a couple per cent under the average of the last five years four of which were record years.

A careful survey of what has occurred January 1 to date indicates that on the whole this is an ordinary year as to seasonal variation. That is shown plainly by the statistics comparing production in the first and second quarters respectively. There was an abnormal bulge in production in February apparently due to an excess of confidence on the part of buyers and in the last few weeks buying has been unusually light apparently due to a deficiency in confidence.

GRADUAL UPSWING

Some observers assert that in the last week or two they have noted an improvement in sentiment. This would represent another reversal of the pendulum's swing and would be quite natural. It would suggest an early though mild relaxation of the summer dullness and as precedent indicates that when there is seasonal revival it begins in the latter part of July there is double reason for expecting an increase in steel tonnage shortly.

There is no reason to expect steel production in the second half of the year to come close to that of the first half or the second half peak rate to equal the peak rate of the first half. Neither of those things occur in an ordinary steel year.

HOLIDAY CUTS RATE

This week's holiday cut down steel production materially and finishing mill operations still more, so that the week's rate of production is not in point. Last week ingot production was at about 63 per cent and July as a whole may be guessed at perhaps a trifle below 60 per cent. That is a low percentage rate, but the tonnage represented is not so small, being in fact in excess of that of July, 1925, whereas 1925 was a good year in general and made a new calendar year record in steel production. In the five years, capacity has increased about 15 per cent, due chiefly to rivalry and efforts to reduce costs.

Fabricated structural steel lettings have been running quite uniform in the last few weeks. Taking all the records since the first of the year, there is no evidence of this business undergoing progressive decline or progressive improvement. It has simply been running along at a rate some 15 per cent under a year previous, but a trifle above two years previous.

Plant Which Had 81% Increase in Past Year

PLAN CREDIT REFORM

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 5.—National establishment of sound credit policies for the entire building construction industry is expected to be effected through one of two alternate promotional plans tentatively agreed upon by the ways and means committee of the Allied Building Construction Industries at its meeting here June 23, according to Edward J. Harding, a member of the committee and assistant general manager of the Associated General Contractors of America.

Both plans adequately provide for organizing, financing and maintaining nationally affiliated local credit bureaus in every important city of the country, Mr. Harding states. The plans will be submitted July 22 and 23 at Chicago to the next conference of the Allied Building Construction Industries, comprised of some 15 or more independent national associations of general contractors, sub-contractors and building supply dealers united for the co-operative utilization of both selling and buying power in the enforcement of standard credit policies.

TOOL MARKET LISTLESS

Machine tool markets are listless, an interest in the purchase of equipment among companies which normally are depended upon for the bulk of business is so slight that machinery sellers are unable to gauge the time when an upturn may be expected according to Iron Age. There is little hope that improvement will come until after the summer months.

The Chicago Board of Education is asking for bids on 14 tools, but otherwise there is no domestic inquiry of size in the market. The Amtorg Trading Corporation, New York, continues to inquire for tools for shipment to Russia. A company in Holland has ordered six production lathes from a Cincinnati builder.

Machine tool plants are curtailing production schedules, and a good many plants will be shut down entirely during the first 10 days or two weeks of July.

Better Times Seen For Business Here

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

OPTIMISM ABOUT THE FUTURE of business for this district is becoming more pronounced. This attitude is noticeable in nearly all producing lines. Improvement to any marked degree is not expected until the end of summer, but most business men believe that the bottom of the depression has been reached and that activity may reasonably be expected to gain in the latter part of this year.

The steel trade has seen operations drop to about 65 per cent of capacity and prices decline an average of $5 a ton. In recent weeks, however, prices in this industry have displayed a firmer tendency. Most makers of steel appear to have had their fill of price cutting.

Glass and coal still offer rather depressing pictures. There are few reasons to expect better conditions in the coal trade in this district unless the Interstate Commerce Commission makes a helpful change in the freight rate differential between Pittsburgh and West Virginia on shipments to the lake ports. The Lake Cargo case is again before the Interstate Commerce Commission but no change in the situation can be expected before the next lake season.

Glass Continues Dull

BUILDING ACTIVITY does not appear likely to improve during the present year. The glass producers and the makers of various types of building materials may be expected to work at a slow pace until 1931.

The glass trade has cut production to a low rate and stocks have been materially reduced. When demand improves this industry will be quick to reflect the change.

Automobile production is being curtailed rapidly. This industry is an important customer of the glass trade as well as of the steel makers. Detroit is not likely to need Pittsburgh products in any exceptionally large volume before next spring.

Prospects Improve

OTHER TYPES OF CONSUMERS are expected to keep Pittsburgh industry fairly busy as the end of 1930 approaches. The demand for pipe in the larger sizes is so great that most mills are booked six months in advance. The structural steel makers are fairly busy. The tin plate mills are working at a rate only slightly below that of last year.

It would not take any very pronounced change in the condition of the remaining industries, which ordinarily consume large quantities of steel, to start Pittsburgh's business on the upgrade so far as production is concerned.

Commodity Prices Lower

MANY ECONOMISTS BELIEVE that the world is entering a period of declining commodity prices. The downward revision in the prices of most of the fundamental raw materials which has taken place since last fall is said to be a forerunner of this movement. If such a belief is to be upheld by actual conditions, industry, with its great cash resources and its highly developed system for working on small inventories, is in an excellent condition to make the best of the situation. Gradually falling prices may mean the survival of the most efficient in industry. It will not necessarily indicate bad business for organizations which are keeping pace with the times.

STEELTEX LATH SALES GAIN

Sales of Steeltex lath manufactured by the National Steel Fabric Company, a division of the Pittsburgh Steel Company, here show an increase of 81 per cent for the fiscal year ending July 1, 1930, over the previous 12 months, according to E. L. Benedict, vice president of the National Steel Fabric Company. Mr. Benedict said:

"We attribute this sales increase to a consistent and growing demand for better building materials entering into residences and apartment house construction. This demand for better construction has been created by the consistent advertising done by manufacturers of qualified products and a reaction against the poor construction so much in evidence during the World War and a few years immediately following it.

DEMAND QUALITY

"Our selling and advertising program has been along educational lines in the belief that there is always a steady demand for a product of high quality. This policy has proven to be correct during this period of curtailed demand for cheaply built residences. There is still the desire and demand for a well built home, regardless how modest.

"A trip to any residential community should convince the observer that it pays to put good material and workmanship in a residence. Houses built only a few years ago that looked sound and substantial, but constructed of poor materials are now a liability and an 'eye sore.'

GETS U. S. ORDERS

"We are just entering an area of the greatest stability that this country has ever known in the construction field. Money is easy to obtain if the security is sound. Materials and construction must show stability so that the annual depreciation will not be too great."

The National Steel Fabric Company, world's largest manufacturer of welded steel fabric products, recently was awarded several large government contracts.

Cutler Hammer Co. Acquires New Unit

CHICAGO, July 5.—Cutler Hammer Manufacturing Company has acquired all common stock of Schweitzer and Conrad, Inc., of Chicago, through exchange of stock. The basis of exchange is not divulged. The Schweitzer Company, manufacturers of high-voltage equipment, does an annual business of about $1,500,000.

Net income of Cutler Hammer after charges and taxes for six months ended June 30 was somewhat less than the net income after depreciation, federal taxes, etc., of $1,123,152 in the like period in 1929.

Penn-Dixie Cement Gets Big Contract

BRISTOL, Tenn., July 5.—The Penn Dixie Cement Corporation has been awarded a contract by the South Carolina Highway Commission for 600,000 barrels of cement to be shipped from the company's Kingsport, Tenn., Richard City and Clinchfield, Ga., plants. The order involves about $1,500,000.

Sales Gain Shown By Mayflower Drug

Sales of Mayflower Drug Stores, Inc., are comparing favorably with those of a year ago. While general business conditions adversely affected some of the stores last month, this was more than overcome by exceptional gains in nine other stores. Sales showed substantial increases in the Oakland, Bloomfield, Braddock, McKeesport, Swissvale and Squirrel Hill stores.

Bradford Oil Field Operations Lower

OIL CITY, July 5.—During June there were 205 oil wells with a daily average initial production of 313 barrels completed in the Bradford and Allegheny oil fields compared with 249 completions with a daily initial average production of 408 barrels in May. At end of June there were 77 wells drilling in both fields as compared with 97 at the end of May.

Transamerica Corp. Expands in France

NEW YORK, July 5.—The Transamerica Corporation and Union des Mines, a leading French industrial bank, have acquired reciprocal share holdings in each other.

This acquisition by Transamerica is regarded as presaging further developments bringing the American Corporation into closer relationship with outstanding European industrial financial enterprises.

Three Boys Bitten By Dog, Animal Shot

Three boys, bitten by the same dog within a half an hour in Mt. Washington, were recovering from the attacks in their homes today.

They are James Schearer, 2, of 432 Climax street; Elmer Weinheimer, 4, of 310 Climax street, and Charles Allen, 5, 323 Loyal way. The dog was shot by Patrolman Charles Scherlein and its head sent to West Penn Hospital to determine whether the animal had rabies.

NEW CHAPTER OF MERGERS IMPENDS

Weak Companies to Attempt To Join Strong Firms For Abler Leadership

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER.

NEW YORK, July 5.—The country is on the verge of a new type of industrial mergers.

During the bull markets, mergers were set up with an eye to stock market profits. Bankers and promoters waxed busy in order to make commissions and speculative profits. When the next chapter opens, mergers will be actuated by different motives, chiefly by questions of personnel. Recession tests the quality of management, and there are cases where dominant stockholders are becoming dissatisfied with present management. The outcome will be attempted mergers with stronger and more successful companies, under whose abler leadership the owners of weaker companies will seek the umbrella of safety.

Industrial bankers tell me that the textile silk stocking rubber and evaporated milk trades are especially ripe for mergers. For industry in general the recession has not cut quite deeply enough to make recessions mergers frequent.

As for the textile trades, J. A. Miller, manager of the Exposition Cotton Mills, Atlanta, Ga., in a message to this column, pointed out:

"We believe that we can see a tendency towards greater co-operation among manufacturers. It is too bad that cotton goods manufacturers have to be forced into doing the right thing rather than seeing it in advance and acting accordingly."

FAVOR BIG UNITS

A leading textile manufacturer in Providence also writes me:

"There is a decided tendency to form larger units in the industry, and a majority of the people seem to think that it is necessary that there shall be fewer units."

B. B. Gossett, president and treasurer Chadwick-Hoskins Company, Charlotte, N. C., in a message to this column, asserts:

"There seems to be a decided evidence of a tendency to form mergers in connection with cotton textile manufacturing at the present time. Witness the fairly recent merger of the Berkshire Mills, with its 875,240 spindles, which is today looked upon as one of the outstanding groups of fine goods producers in the United States. Witness also the proposed formation of the Rane-america-Blair group to consist of from 1,000,000 to 1,500,000 spindles. In both of these groups it will be noted that they only put together mills that have proved their efficiency and earning ability. This, in my opinion, is fundamental in the consideration of any merger and I believe you may expect some further constructive moves in this same connection in some of the other classes of manufacture before the end of the year. Furthermore, we hear a lot of talk just now regarding the merging of selling agents which, in my opinion, is just as important and essential, if not more so, as the merger of mills. Indeed, there have recently been some important consolidations among the commission houses."

NOTE OF OPTIMISM

Sensing a note of optimism, Mr. Gossett added:

"The general outlook for the remainder of the year for the cotton textile industry in several important classes of manufacture that are influenced by the style element, particularly fine goods, print cloths, ginghams, chambrays and all other colored yarn fabrics, combed and carded yarns, etc., is distinctly favorable, due largely to the splendid efforts of our cotton-textile institute in bringing about a national recognition of the many improvements that have taken place in our industry in recent years in quality and design and in the increasing fashion importance of cotton. This has been done through national advertising, style exhibits, motion pictures and the radio, and I am confident that these efforts on the part of the manufacturers through the institute, which incidentally have cost us a quarter of a million dollars over and above the cost of running the institute, are largely responsible for the fact that the decline in the domestic consumption of raw cotton during the first half of the current year has not been anything like as drastic as that experienced by many of our other commodities."

Janitor Gets Skull Fracture in Fall

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., July 5.—Frank Fulmer, 62, janitor of the South Brownsville High School, fell 15 feet from a scaffold in the school building while cleaning windows and suffered a fracture of the skull. He was taken to the General Hospital.

LAND COMPANY TO DEVELOP BIG TRACT

Builder of Virginia Manor Decides Realty Market Will Absorb New Sites

The development of 170 acres south of the Cochran road near Bower Hill road, Mt. Lebanon, as an addition to the Virginia Manor plan, will be started in the fall, according to James H. Duff, president of the Southern Hills Land Company.

Decision to proceed with the development has been made because the owners believe that the real estate market is near the bottom and that renewed buying of home sites may be expected. The development is one of the largest to be started recently in the Pittsburgh district.

The entire tract lies on the top of a ridge and will be opened with a curving drive 1¾ miles to be known as Osage road. Bids for the paving will be taken soon.

WIDEN COCHRAN ROAD

The land is covered with large trees and commands a wide view. The plateau is almost entirely level. Lots will average 100x115 feet. Allegheny County is now widening Cochran road in the vicinity of Virginia Manor, forming an important traffic artery between the Bower Hill and Greentree roads.

In developing the new part of the plan the same control of architecture will be found that is used in the present plan. All of the work will be done under the eye of a resident architect.

A start has already been made in the grading of Osage road. An attractive home of French design is being built on the Cochran road frontage.

PRESENT DEVELOPMENT

The present plan consists of 26 acres and has been almost entirely developed. It includes French houses, English cottages of the Shakespeare period, Normandy village designs and Colonial houses copied from the historic homes of New England and Virginia.

Little vacant frontage remains in the present plan. The most of the property remaining is on Morrison avenue which was recently paved.

Virginia Manor plan may be reached by automobile from the downtown district by way of the Liberty tubes, West Liberty avenue, Bower Hill and Cochran roads, or by way of the West End, the Banksville road and Parker drive.

COLONIAL HOME IN VIRGINIA MANOR

MT. LEBANON PLAN SOUTHERN COLONIAL STONE HOME, MUCH LIKE WASHINGTON'S HOME

LOANS DECLINE $197,000,000

WASHINGTON, July 5.—Loans on stocks and bonds to brokers and dealers by reporting Federal Reserve Member Banks in New York City decreased $197,000,000 during the week ended July 2 to $3,219,000,000. This compares with $3,416,000,000 in the preceding week and with the high record of $6,804,000,000 on October 2, 1929.

Sales of Insurance Shatter Record

HARTFORD, Conn., July 5.—For the second time this year, sales of new life insurance by the Phoenix Mutual Life Insurance Company have broken all records in the company's history of more than 75 years. March, 1930, with a gain of 62 per cent over March, 1929, was the previous high mark. June with a gain of 100 per cent has now taken its place. The June total of $12,563,000 is almost exactly double that of last June is nearly $1,500,000 ahead of the best previous month, and brings the total for the year to date $12,000,000 ahead of the first six months of 1929, a clear gain of 25 per cent.

Look for Lower Third Quarter Car Loadings

Shippers of the country, through estimates just submitted to the shippers' regional advisory boards and made public today, anticipate that carload shipments of the 29 principal commodities in the third quarter of 1930 will be approximately 8,806,716 cars, a reduction of 613,603, or 6.5 per cent, below the corresponding period in 1929.

These estimates are furnished quarterly to the shippers' regional advisory boards, which cover the entire United States, and are based on the best information as to the outlook obtainable at the present time by the commodity committees of the various boards.

GENERAL TRADE SHOWS GAIN

WASHINGTON, July 5.—Business for the week ended June 29, as measured by the volume of checks presented for payment, showed a decline from a week ago but was slightly greater than for the week ended June 29, 1929. The volume of building for the latest reported period showed a gain when compared with the prior week and was higher than a year ago.

Wholesale prices declined slightly from last week's level and were more than 13 per cent lower than the same week a year ago. Iron and steel prices measured by the composite index, while showing no change from a week ago, were 9 per cent lower than the same period of 1929.

Bank loans and discounts remained at the same level of the preceding week and showed an increase of 2 per cent over the week ended June 29, 1929. Average prices for stocks registered declines from both comparative periods. Representative bond prices, still at the same level of last week, showed a gain of 2 per cent when compared with the corresponding period of 1929. Interest rates for both call and time money declined from the preceding week and the week ended June 29, last year.

Check payments, bank loans and discounts, and stock prices during the week ended June 28, 1930 showed increases, when compared with the corresponding week of 1929.

Bank Clearings Off During Past Month

In June, for the seventh consecutive month, bank clearings totals at the leading cities of the United States fell below the level of a year ago, although the percentage of decrease was smaller than in any one of the six preceding months. According to Bradstreet's, bank clearings at the full list of cities were the smallest for June and the half year ended with June since 1927, while at the cities outside New York, the chief speculative center, the aggregate was the smallest since 1924.

June bank clearings at 126 cities reporting to Bradstreet's amounted to $49,910,305,000, a decrease of 6.1 per cent from the like months of 1929, although there was an increase of 2.1 per cent over May.

RECORD SCOTT PAPER SALES

PHILADELPHIA, July 5.—Scott Paper Company's net sales for month ended June 28 were $1,005,125, compared with $756,562 in like 1929 period, increase of $250,563 or 33 per cent. Net sales for first six months totaled $4,621,524, against $3,912,254 in first six months of 1929, increase of $709,270 or 13 per cent.

June sales of Scott were not only the largest for any month in company's history but also marked the first time that company transacted over $1,000,000 of business during one month. First half year's sales also reached a new high mark.

Company manufactures mechanical wood pulp and tissues and transacts the largest volume of business in its phase of the paper industry in the world.

The unusual increase in Scott's business over June was accounted for in part by a special sales effort over the period, accompanied by a larger advertising program than normal. For the month a goal of $1,000,000 in sales was set.

Stock Exchanges Take Extra Holiday

Stock exchanges and most of the commodity markets throughout the country are closed today for a special holiday in connection with the celebration of Independence Day. All banks are open for the customary Saturday hours. The Chicago Board of Trade (Grain Pit) is also closed today. Business will be resumed in all markets at the usual hours on Monday.

RETAIL SALES CONTINUE ACTIVE

Producers Attempt to Rectify Pennsylvania Crude Oil Situation

Sales of seasonable merchandise, particularly of lightweight wearing apparel, continue fairly active at retail, although jobbers report business quiet and purchases almost entirely for filling in quickly, according to R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review.

JEWELRY SALES OFF

The demand for new automobiles is considerably lower than normal for this season, although dealers in accessories report business fairly active. The jewelry trade is still quiet with volume lower than for several years. Construction work particularly of residences, continues well below normal, although a large amount of road work is in progress which helps to maintain the demand for cement in particular. Lumber and other building materials continue in quiet demand. Hardware sales are only fair, although sporting goods and vacationists' supplies are in quite active demand. Sales of groceries and provisions continue fair but with prices averaging lower than for quite a few years.

There is no material improvement in the demand for plumbing and heating supplies, and the electrical equipment lines continue only moderately active.

CUT OIL OUTPUT

Production of Pennsylvania crude oil has been reduced and efforts are being made to further curtail output. Prices show practically no change.

Production of bituminous coal continues at a rather low rate with demand very quiet. Western Pennsylvania grades of run-of-mine coal are quoted per net ton at mines as follows: Steam coal $1.25 to $1.75; gas coal $1.65 to $1.75; coking coal $1.50 to $1.75; steam slack 90 cents to $1.10; gas slack, $1 to $1.25.

While a slight improvement in collections is reported in certain lines, the average continues slow and rather unsatisfactory.

Universal Tobacco Earns Dividend

NEW YORK, July 5.—Universal Leaf Tobacco Company in fiscal year ended June 30, 1930 earned sufficient to cover the dividend of $3 a share on 143,470 common shares outstanding, but the margin, if any, was slight.

Preferred and common dividend requirements now amount to around $950,000 a year.

President

HOLGAR J. JOHNSON

JOHNSON HEADS UNDERWRITERS

The newly elected president of the Pittsburgh Life Underwriters' Association, Holgar J. Johnson, has been tremendously active in the business the last few years, especially since he became general agent for the Penn Mutual in the Pittsburgh district two years ago. Lately, in addition to his regular work, Johnson has been making addresses before insurance meetings in various localities. He was one of the Penn Mutual corps of general agents sent out by the company on its tour this year. His election was announced last week.

Mr. Johnson taught for a time at the Rockwell School and lectured at the Y. M. C. A. He has always been active in association work and has served the Pittsburgh body in various capacities.

The other officers elected by the Pittsburgh association for the coming year are: First vice president, Robert N. Wadell, Massachusetts Mutual; second vice president, Jay H. Holmes, Travelers; treasurer, T. W. Pomeroy, New England Mutual. Following directors were elected: A. G. Ashbrook, Provident Mutual; W. R. Furey, Berkshire; C. W. Scovel, Northwestern Mutual; H. S. Sutphen, Equitable of Iowa; John A. White, Metropolitan, and W. B. Thomas, Aetna.

The Charming Bolero
Pattern 1861
Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

By ANNE ADAMS

This stunning frock with front bodice bolero and pleated skirt is the last word in fashion. Note how the joining of the skirt flare repeats the lower line of the bolero creating a slender effect, further emphasized by the long rolled collar. The model is sleeveless, a delightful style for warm weather.

Pattern 1861 may be cut from silk or cotton fabric . . . flat crepe, pique, shantung, dimity, etc. A pastel print with solid pastel collar would be lovely. All the raw edges may be bound in pastel tape, a smart and easy method of finishing.

May be ordered only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 requires 3¾ yards of 39-inch fabric and ¼ yard trimming.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins carefully wrapped, or stamps, for each pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, STYLE NUMBER and SIZE wanted.

FIRE HOSE USED AS RAID SIPHON

Mt. Lebanon police, led by Superintendent W. A. Kane and Capt. Benn, reported raiding a house at 267 Academy avenue, Mt. Lebanon, late Thursday, when township firemen used the fire hose to siphon mash and liquor from the top floor of the place.

John York, Josephine Davis and Cosimo Petti, were arrested, according to Kane, who released them on $1,000 bail each. The house was equipped for the distillation of liquor, Kane said, declaring police had been watching it for almost a week.

About 65 barrels of mash was destroyed, and 25 gallons of liquor, 50 pounds of yeast and a quantity of corn sugar were confiscated, police said.

Four Mt. Lebanon Brothers at Camp

Four brothers residing in Mt. Lebanon are attending the 1930 Military Training Camp at Fort Monroe, Vt. They are John G. Gray, 20; Paul, 19; Charles, 18, and Elmer D., Jr., 17, of 245 Park way drive, Mt. Lebanon.

The first candidate to report for training at Fort Monroe was Albert R. Noble, 19, of 311 Market street, Freeport. Noble is attending his third training encampment.

Southsider Shot, Two Men Arrested

Albert Lemolinatio, 36, of 126 Ida way, South Side, Ida., was recovering in South Side Hospital from a bullet wound inflicted, police said, while he was standing in front of a dwelling at 712 Sarah street, early yesterday.

Police arrested Anthony Gigliotti, 36, and Pasquale Felizze, 48, both of the Sarah street address. Magistrate John J. Sweeney held them for further investigation.

Foundry Employes Hold Picnic July 12

RATE OF GAIN IN GASOLINE SLACKENS

May Consumption 5.3 Over Previous Year Against 9.9 Increase Shown for April

NEW YORK, July 5.—Perhaps the most significant feature of the May report of the U. S. Bureau of Mines on gasoline was the reduced rate of increase in consumption over last year. Total consumption, both exports and domestic demand, showed a gain of only 5.3 per cent over May 1929, whereas the increase in April over the corresponding month of last year was 9.9 per cent. However, for the first five months this year the total consumption of gasoline, including exports, increased 12.6 per cent over the corresponding period of 1929.

EXPORTS DECLINE

Daily average production of motor fuel amounted to 1,267,000 barrels, a slight decline from the April average. There was a sharp decline in the exports of gasoline, which were 16 per cent less than in April. Indicated domestic demand for motor fuel amounted to 36,897,000 barrels, daily average of 1,177,000 barrels, representing an increase of 6 per cent over May last year. At the May rate of total demand, gasoline stocks at the end of the month represented 40 days' supply, compared with 41 days' supply a month previous and 35 days' supply on May 31 last year.

RUNS TO STILLS

Runs to still of crude petroleum totaled 85,647,000 barrels, a daily average of 2,636,000 barrels, an increase of 17,000 barrels in daily average over April, but 25,000 barrels below the daily average runs in May last year. The 352 refineries reporting to the bureau, with daily recorded crude oil capacity of 3,683,350 barrels, operated at 73 per cent of capacity during May, compared with 355 refineries operated at 73 per cent in April.

CRUDE STOCKS LOWER

Stocks of crude petroleum both in California and east of California declined in May. The decrease east of California amounted to nearly 1,000,000 barrels, that in California to over 1,200,000 barrels, the Bureau of Mines states. The storage of refined oils showed a much higher increase in May than in April, gas oil and fuel oil increasing slightly over 3,000,000 barrels.

Production of crude petroleum in United States during May totaled 80,176,000 barrels, a daily average of 2,586,000 barrels, compared with 2,573,000 daily in April and 2,723,000 daily in May, last year.

We Now Present

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

AN EXTRA ATTRACTION of the Goldman Band concert on KDKA at 8:30 tonight will be Cora Frye, soprano, who will sing Tschaikowsky's "None But the Lonely Heart."

WCAE will have another of a series of "Pop" concerts at 8 p. m. featuring the Salon singers and soloists.

His first trip through a newspaper plant inspired John Philip Sousa to compose "Washington Post March," which will introduce Arthur Pryor's Band concert over WCAE at 9:30. Reminiscences of Chopin will be excerpts of the better known works by that composer.

Welcome Lewis

Taking advantage of the exposition broadcasts put out every Saturday night by KDKA, Mr. and Mrs. S. Stanwood Menken of New York City will say hello to their son, Arthur Menken, who is a member of Dr. Herbert Spencer Dudley's Orinoco Expedition. This message will be delivered at 11:30.

Muriel Wilson and Welcome Lewis will be in the spotlight for KDKA at 10 o'clock.

Philippe H. Lord, "Seth Parker," is writing 65,000 words a week or an average of 10,000 a day.

SOFTEST JOB

One of the easiest jobs in the world—substitute guitar player with the B. A. Rolfe Dance Orchestra. For three months he has sat in the NBC studio for an hour two evenings a week, and never has played a note. The theme song of the orchestra requires a difficult rendition by a steel guitar and only one regular member of the group can play this instrument. Hence, the substitute player in case of an emergency.

Helen Nugent, CBS contralto, although she has lived in New York two years, continues to call city blocks "squares" just as she did in Cincinnati.

ODDITY

Helen Douglass, WCAE singer, is quite a sports girl. She plays a nice game of golf at Beaver County Country Club.

TODAY'S TID BIT:

Because people often refer to him as an ex-pugilist, Scrappy Lambert, CBS orchestra leader has changed his first name to Rodney.

JOSEPH BROIDO DIES IN WEST

Joseph Broido, 39, president of the Center Lumber Company and of the West Penn Mortgage Company, died yesterday in La-Vetta, Col., according to word received here at his home, 6554 Bartlett street. Mr. Broido, prominent in business and philanthropic circles, was a lifelong resident of Pittsburgh. At one time he was president of the Pittsburgh Lumbermen's Club.

Joseph Broido

He was a director of the Jewish Home for the Aged and of the Jewish Home for Babies. He was a member of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, the Westmoreland Country Club, the Concordia Club and the Rodef Shalom Congregation. He leaves his widow, Mrs. Bella B. Broido; two sons, Leonard and David Broido; a daughter, Miss Sarah Broido; his father, Morris Broido, of Pittsburgh and Atlantic City; three brothers, Louis, of New York, and Abe and Henry Broida, of Pittsburgh, and three sisters, Mrs. Maz Zeff, Mrs. Joseph A. Rubinstein and Mrs. Joseph S. Rosenbaum, of Pittsburgh.

The body is to be returned to Pittsburgh for burial.

Boy, 6, Hiding in Bush, Still Eludes Searchers

KAKUSKASING, Ont., July 5.—(AP.)—Victor Gareau, 6, who ran away from home Monday with his baby brother and sister, still eluded searchers who have been beating the bush country around his farm home for four days.

The little girl and the other little boy were found Wednesday after they had hidden from searchers for two days.

Traces of Victor have been found, but no one has seen him. He apparently is following the procedure all three adopted successfully, of dropping to the ground under a bush or in tall grass whenever searchers approach.

All the countryside has joined in the search. Airplanes were used until it was found they were of little aid, due to the wooded character of the land, which hides objects on the ground from searchers in the air.

A fund has been opened to prosecute the search and to care for the Gareau family, which was found to be in need of financial aid.

SHEET GLASS OUTPUT LOW

Figures for First Five Months Reflect Drop In Motor Production

The first half of 1930 has been extremely disappointing to the sheet glass industry of this country, according to National Glass Budget. Authentic reports from abroad indicate that foreign competition has fared similarly. One of the outstanding causes for the inactivity encountered by the window glass branch is the decided decrease that has taken place in the amount of residential building.

Another reason is that jobbers and others who handle glass for glazing purposes have carried on their business out of their own stocks or purchased glass for replacement purposes in the smallest quantities obtainable until now at mid-year inventory they find the glass on hand to be materially below the quantity they had in their warehouses at the comparative time a year ago. An early estimate was that there would possibly be a demand this year for 7,000,000 boxes. At present this mark would seem a trifle high.

The reduced schedule on which most of the automobile manufacturing firms worked during the past six months materially lowered the demand for plate glass. In addition the jobbing trade and mirror business have been extremely quiet. It is understood that business in many instances is being conducted on the minimum of expense.

BOTTOM REACHED

Now as business enters on the last half of the year it is believed that the bottom of the sluggish market has been reached. While no decided increase in volume of business is anticipated for some weeks to come there is, nevertheless, valid reason for anticipating some betterment.

Unofficial figures, but what are thought to be fairly accurate, place production of window glass at approximately two and one-half million boxes, each containing 50 square feet, during the first six months of this year. Imports of window glass, figured on the single strength basis, during the first five months of 1930 totaled 173,000 boxes. This amount compares with 544,000 boxes imported in the first five months of 1929; 517,000 boxes in the corresponding period of 1928 and 664,000 boxes in the same months of 1927.

STOCKS REDUCED

Stocks of window glass in manufacturers' warehouses have been reduced during the past six months. The producers appear to have seen the wisdom of keeping production down near to demand. This feature has undoubtedly been the salvation of the industry. Production at the first of July was thought to be running along at a monthly rate of nearly 450,000 boxes. Demand exceeds factory output.

Those interested in the manufacture and distribution of window glass anticipate an improvement in demand during the latter part of the year. The prevailing opinion is that conditions this year will be just the reverse of those encountered during 1929. Demand for glass during the first half of last year was fairly satisfactory. After mid-year a gradual decline set in and by December business was at a low point, where it has continued until the present. Taking into consideration the amount of construction and alteration work that is going on, along with the small stocks held by the distributing trade, demand with the manufacturers should gradually increase until a fair volume of business will be in evidence by the beginning of the fourth quarter of the year.

MOTHER KILLED SAVING CHILD

CORRY, Pa., July 5.—(AP.)—Mrs. Glenn Hepler, 35, sacrificed her life in an attempt to rescue her small daughter from being struck by a train. The child was hit and seriously hurt.

The mother was returning home with two small sons and the daughter, Jeannette, 4. The girl lagged behind as the group reached the East Washington street crossing just as the train approached. Mrs. Hepler turned around as she sensed the danger to the child and was struck by the train. She was hurled 25 feet.

Posts Bond Again At 12th Arrest On Same Charge

Mike Pavich, 42, confectioner of 919 Fifth avenue, McKeesport, today was to be arraigned in police court, the twelfth time in two months on the same charge, maintaining a disorderly house. Police say they have confiscated liquor on each visit.

On every occasion Pavich has forfeited his bail of $205. Yesterday he posted another $205 bond.

Hit by Brick, Man Dies; Liquor Blamed

Charles Berdett, 40, Negro, of 712 Roberts street, fell dead last night after being struck in the stomach with a brick during a fight in Rowley street, the coroner's office reported. An autopsy disclosed acute alcoholism as the cause, deputy coroners said. Berdett's assailant fled.

Big Men on Vacation; Expect Spurt.

—By B. C. FORBES—

Never before were so many big men off vacationing this early in the season. Every second executive you telephone or write has either just left or has been gone for several weeks.

What is the explanation?

Part of the reason is that vacations have come more into vogue among important men of affairs during recent years. Many who formerly stayed on the job all the year round now scamper off during the dull summer months, while others who used to take only one vacation now take at least two a year.

But the earliness of the exodus this year is due to the expectation that business may become quite lively before summer is entirely over. Bankers and brokerage houses in New York have moved forward almost every employee's vacation, in anticipation of a spirited revival in speculation at any moment.

WALL STREET TRADING tapered off last week to the slimmest volume in several years. Dullness is regarded in the highest circles as the market's greatest need at present. The reasoning is that, after a spell of rest, public uncertainty will be allayed and confidence will revive.

There are still hundred per cent bears, including some of notable strength, but their ranks have been rather freely deserted during the last week or two.

Mussolini, the new saber-rattler of Europe, has promptly hit back hard at the United States for adding a few additional stories to its tariff structure. Italy's levies on American automobiles, particularly the low-priced, have been increased as much as a hundred per cent. in some cases more. It apparently didn't occur to our tariff tinkerers that other nations could or would give us tit-for-tat. Infuriating your customers and prospects isn't quite the ideal way to induce them to buy more from you and less from others.

A few old-fashioned employers are still left—employers who look upon their work folks as more or less members of their family. Such employers feel a keen sense of responsibility towards those who have served them for many years. Not so very many large enterprises are still regarded as close family affairs, but a few do survive.

This week brought a delightful illustration of the kindly interest taken in faithful employes by the old type of family ownership. Richard T. Crane, Jr., president of the internationally-known Crane Company, of Chicago, announces a gift of $4,000,000 worth of stock to employes of 10 years' or more service. Two earlier similar distributions totaled $6,000,000. Each 10-year employe's share represents $450, while the oldest employe in point of service (60 years) gets $2,580.

More than half-a-score have been with the Crane Company half-a-century or over. The company itself celebrates its seventy-fifth birthday. Its founder, father of the present philanthropic president, was the total working force at the start; now there are some 25,000 employes, factories in the United States, Canada, England and France, and some 200 branches in all parts of the world.

Can you imagine Communists making any headway among employes of an organization headed by such a humane mortal as R. T. Crane, Jr.?

Are too many salesmen, executives and others busily resigning themselves to the thought that its impossible to get business? Instead of redoubling their efforts, are they relaxing effort?

One business man tells this column that he had occasion to telephone three concerns on Saturday forenoon for the purpose of deciding which could best supply him with several thousand dollars' worth of new equipment. One of the three—whose business has not been booming—failed to answer repeated telephone calls, the office obviously having been closed.

This business man suggests that the column today urge every man in the business world to ask himself:

"How hard did you work on Saturday morning?

"Our chart of business conditions shows just about 10 per cent below normal at the worst. Saturday morning would add just 10 per cent to a five-day week—and would probably go far to solve the problem of the lack of orders we hear so much about."

Well, how hard DO you work on Saturday mornings?

Packard to Earn 33c Share for First Half

DETROIT, July 5.—Packard Motors net income in the first half-year is roughly placed at $5,100,000, after charges, equal to 33 cents a share on 15,000,000 no par shares. Net income for the first half this year is after setting aside reserves of $2,036,000. Before this deduction, earnings for the period totaled approximately $7,140,000, which compares with $14,675,000 on the same basis in the first six months of 1929.

This year it is the company's policy to make monthly deductions from earnings for reserve account, instead of confining reserve charge to operations of the final quarter of the year as heretofore.

To the PROFESSIONS:

IF you are a professional man—lawyer, engineer, physician, architect—your earning power depends on your own abilities. Your income has peaks and valleys. . . Is your problem one of stabilizing your income?

This plan may appeal to you:

Set up a Living Trust. Put aside a sum of money now which we will invest for you in sound, income-producing securities. Add to this fund from season to season when your professional income reaches the high levels.

Before long you will have a second income, independent of your profession, which will provide for your own later years and can be handed on to others either under the trust itself or your will.

The careful management of such Living Trusts is a part of our specialized work and we invite you to consult us.

SPLIT SEASON TRIED ONCE IN MAJORS

IF THE CLUB owners of that big minor league had not changed their minds a few days ago and abandoned a plan which they had previously announced they would adopt, the American Association today would be starting all over again in the second half of a split season, the first of the kind tried in any of the larger circuits in a long time. As it is, the Association clubs will retain their present standings and fight it out to the finish in a single race, instead of having the two winners in a divided schedule play a special series in the fall for the pennant.

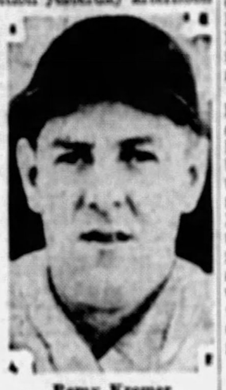
Cy Young.

The fact that a Class AA league considered such a project recalls to baseball's old-timers that the idea was once tried even in the majors. That was so far back that the original Cy Young, one of the prominent players participating, was only 25 years old at the time and was pitching only his third season in the big show. The National League split its season in 1892. The circuit then consisted of 12 clubs, including Cleveland, Baltimore, Washington and Louisville in addition to the present eight.

BOSTON AND CLEVELAND were the winning clubs and met six times in the play-off. The first game went 11 innings to a scoreless tie, and Boston won the others, 4 to 3, 3 to 2, 4 to 0, 12 to 0, and 8 to 3. For the complete season, Boston won 102 games and lost 48, while Cleveland won 93 and lost 56. Frank Selee managed the Bostons, then called the Beaneaters, and Pat Tebeau was the pilot of the Clevelands, known as the Spiders.

Famous names appeared in both lineups. Boston's catchers were Kelly, Bennett and Ganzel; the pitchers, Nichols, Stivetts, Clarkson, Staley and Viau; the infielders, Tucker, Quinn, Long and Nash, and the outfielders, Duffy, McCarthy, Low and Stovey. Cleveland's catchers were Zimmer and Doyle; the pitchers, Young, Cuppy, Gruber and Knauss; the infielders, Virtue, Childs, McKean and Tebeau, and the outfielders, McAleer, Burkett and Radford.

REMY KREMER became the first Pittsburgh pitcher to win 10 games this season when his masterful exhibition yesterday afternoon came within an ace of blanking the Cubs and gave the Pirates an even break for the day.



Remy Kremer.

Against his 10 victories, Kremer is charged with only five defeats, giving him an average of two games won out of every three pitched. In his last four games he has beaten the leading three clubs in the pennant race, the Cubs, Robins and Giants, and lost to the second-division Braves.

KREMER HAS NOT failed to reach double figures in the victory column in any year since he joined the Bucs in 1924. His lowest mark in wins was 15 in 1928. His highest was 20 in 1926. His complete Pirate record up to date shows 117 victories against only 60 defeats, an average of very close to two out of three for six and a half seasons, which spells remarkable pitching. This season Kremer has beaten every other club in the league except the Phillies. He has defeated the Cubs, Giants, Cardinals and Reds twice each, and the Robins and Braves once each. Two of his reverses were administered by the Braves, and the three others by the Robins, Giants and Phillies.*

THE BIG LEAGUE pennant races surely are a pair of sizzlers. The oldest fan will have some difficulty in recalling another season in which the completion of the Fourth of July games, supposed to mark the turning point in the fights, found the leading two clubs in each league practically tied.

But that's the situation that exists today. You have to run the decimals beyond three figures to find that Brooklyn is leading in the National League, the Robins having a percentage of .602941 to .602739 for the Cubs, though they are tied at .603 under the three-figure system, while in the American the Senators have climbed to within a single point of the top, the A's holding the leadership by only .649 to Washington's .648.

THOUGH CLARENCE BLAIR had his troubles trying to field the sharp raps that the Pirates sent at him yesterday afternoon, the Cubs declare he has been playing a game second to none at the midway, and give him much of the credit for the fine showing they have made in the absence of Rogers Hornsby.

Clarence Blair.

Blair is the biggest second baseman in the major leagues at present, and the biggest of any year since the days of Napoleon Lajoie. The Cubs' second sacker stands 6 feet 1 inch and weighs 190 pounds. Lajoie was of the same height and five pounds heavier in playing trim.

RALSTON HEMSLEY, Pirate catcher, pulled something out of the ordinary yesterday when he twice caught Kiki Cuyler trying to steal second base, once in each game. Previously, Cuyler had been caught stealing only once in 19 attempts, Jimmy Wilson, of the Cardinals, having been the only catcher to stop him. Cuyler still has a fancy record with 18 successes out of 21 tries, the closest approach in recent years to the stealing percentages rolled up by Bob Bescher in 1911 and Max Carey in 1916. Bescher was caught only four times in 84 attempts, and Carey only four times in 67 attempts. In addition to holding the base-stealing leadership, Cuyler tops the National League in runs scored, with 74 to his credit, and is second only to Babe Ruth, with 94, for the leadership of both loops.*

THE SENATORS HAVE not sparkled away from home this season, but on their own grounds they certainly have made up for their slips abroad. Their two wins yesterday stretched their latest drive to 13 games won out of the last 15 played.

The double win gave them a new jump on the Yankees, who had been pressing them closely. The Yanks, incidentally, after going through 35 straight games without being defeated twice in succession, have now lost four in a row.

DETROIT STAR WINS THIRD IN ROW

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

One of these days, Wilbur Shaw, 27-year-old race driver, of Detroit, may come here to compete in a race at the Bridgeville board speedway and not win. The chances are against it, though, as the thousands of fans who packed the stands yesterday to see him turn in his third consecutive victory there will attest.

Shaw's wife greeted him when he returned to the judges' stand after yesterday's victory. The winner is a dapper-appearing young man with a light mustache and is one of the most successful drivers on the American tracks. Last year, he won six of the seven races promoted by B. Ward Beam, sponsor of yesterday's event, and finished about 20 yards behind Deacon Litz in the one he didn't win. He won two at Bridgeville, on July 4 and Labor Day; two in Toledo, one at Raceland, Ky., and one at Cleveland, finishing second in another race in the latter city. He also set a world 100-mile record for dirt tracks at Syracuse. His pet hobby is golf.

Ideal weather favored yesterday's grind and there were no accidents, although Shaw ploughed through a fence in qualifying.

DRIVES STEADY RACE

Shaw drove his usual smooth and steady race in his black and red Seal Fast Special, bearing a large numeral 3, to win well within himself. Going into the lead when Shorty Cantlon, who had the pole position and set the early pace, was forced into the pits to change a front tire after his thirty-third lap, Shaw never again trailed and he almost made a non-stop triumph of his 200-lap chase around the saucer. He went to the pits only once, at the end of his one hundred and seventy-fourth lap, when he came in for a new left rear tire and was away again in 43 seconds for a loss of a little more than a lap.

At the finish, Shaw was three laps ahead of Russell Snowberger, of Philadelphia, who had dogged him throughout the race. Snowberger led Burt Karnatz, of Detroit, over the finish line by three more laps, with Dave Evans, of Evansville, fourth, seven laps farther back; Paul Bost, Detroit, fifth; Whiz Sloan, Akron, sixth, and Billy Arnold, Chicago, the favorite, seventh. Frank Brisko, Milwaukee, was eighth, and Jimmy Gleason and Mel Kenealy were flagged down.

The winner's time was 1 hour 29 minutes, 57 2-5 seconds, an average of approximately 67 miles per hour.

ONLY TWO FORCED OUT

An even dozen cars started, and 10 were on the track when a halt was called. The only ones to be forced out for mechanical trouble were the mount of Gene Haustein, of Detroit, winner of the Memorial Day race at the same track, who had to retire after only EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF THURSDAY—THERE IS ENOUGH NICOTINE IN ONE CIGAR TO KILL FOUR PEOPLE—Nicotine, distilled from tobacco leaf, is one of the most potent of poisons if taken internally, but the smoke of the burning tobacco leaf contains a mere trace of the volatile poison. WESLEY DICKEY LIVED IN TWO STATES WITHOUT MOVING—Mr. Dickey's home town was Klondyke, Green County, under sovereignty of the state of Texas. Eventually the name of the town was changed to Olustee, and the county was transferred by Act of Congress to Oklahoma Territory. A further transformation took place when Oklahoma Territory was raised to statehood, and Green County was divided, the part in which Olustee was situated being renamed Jackson County. MARIE O. ANDRESEN DID NOT WEAR A VEST IN THE U. S. SUPREME COURT—Miss Marie O. Andresen is the fifth and youngest lawyer in Chicago admitted to practice before the United States Supreme Court. My drawing shows Miss Andresen in the costume she wore when she appeared before that tribunal.

CORBETT WINS OVER THOMPSON

SAN FRANCISCO, July 5.—(AP.) — Sturdy, swift-punching Young Corbett, Italian boy from Fresno, Cal., added another bristling chapter to an already brilliant fistic career yesterday when he gave young Jack Thompson, world welterweight champion, a 10-round beating in a non-title fight at Ewing Field yesterday afternoon.

From opening gong until the nerve-tingling tenth round was over, Corbett was out in front. He combed the dusky ruler of the 147-pound ranks with raking lefts to the body and outboxed him practically all the way.

Eddie Jacobs, Hunter Clash for Bowl Today

NEW YORK, July 5.—(AP.)—Eddie Jacobs, University of Pittsburgh star, and Frank Hunter, of New Rochelle, reached the final round of the Nassau Country Club's invitation tennis tournament yesterday and will meet today for the Nassau bowl.

Jacobs eliminated the veteran Richard N. Williams II., in the semi-finals, 6-2, 6-4, 3-6, 6-3, while Hunter put out Sydney B. Wood, of Forest Hills, 6-1, 6-4, 5-7, 6-1.

THE LOWDOWN ON THE BUCS

By THE BENCHWARMER.

Well, folks, I'm glad that's over, and I don't mean the two games. Them daffy birds in the stands who was throwin' firecrackers down on the field had all of us thinkin' we was gonna get hurt.

Somebody threw one close to the third-base coaching line where Joe McCarthy was coaching'. The cracker exploded right behind Joe. A lot of people in the boxes gave Joe the laugh, but he didn't move much.

"What's the matter, Joe—Was you too scared to move?" some guy hollored.

"A little thing like that doesn't bother me," retorted Joe—"I'm from Chicago!"

The Cubs are a pretty fine gang, at that. I get a laugh outa Hack, and I believe he enjoys havin' the crowd on him. When he plays in Brooklyn he gets more razzin' than he does here. Every time he swings and misses in practice they hop on him and every once and a while Hack swings so hard at one that he falls down at the plate.

But Hack is one of the best drawin' cards in the league. If you ask me I think he's the best. And Kiki Cuyler is just about the keenest outfielder in the game. He looks like a champion goin' through his stuff. When he and Hartnett start to throw everybody runs for the nearest base.

I've heard a lot of talk among the ballplayers and scribes about the Cubs havin' a flock of pitchers who can throw that ball by you. Well, don't overlook Cuyler and Hartnett when it comes to throwin'. They won't throw any by the batters, but they keep everybody nervous about takin' extra bases.

Meager Turnout Greets Maxie's Homecoming

BERLIN, July 5.—(AP.)—A small crowd saw Max Schmeling, heavyweight champion, come down out of the clouds yesterday with the laurels he won in America from Jack Sharkey on a foul.

The fans waiting inside the Tempelhof Airport as the low wing monoplane bearing the titleholder and his mother from Bremerhaven could have been squeezed into a hangar and the crowd outside the fence did not endanger the railings.

A small army of police detailed to the airport to control the expected throng had nothing to do. Schmeling was cordially "hoched," however. Before leaving he received a belt, gift of the union of German boxers and spoke into a radio microphone.

BUCCOS SPLIT HOLIDAY BILL WITH CUBS

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

Well rested after the holiday excitement, the Cubs and Pirates will resume diamond hostilities this afternoon with a single battle. Both clubs are slated for double-headers tomorrow. Shortly after today's contest, the Buccos will hurry toward St. Louis, where they will remain four days, five games being carded at the Missouri city. Marse Joe will take his champions to Cincinnati for a dual engagement.

The Independence Day battles furnished a 50-50 festival in the Oakland Orchard. The Cubs knocked over the Freebooters in the morning, 10 to 1. In the afternoon, Remy Kremer pitched close to shutout ball against the Chicagoans, the home team winning, 5 to 1.

Lloyd Waner was among the missing throughout the day on account of a relapse. Apparently Lloyd is not in bad shape, but he was weak enough to be excused from a uniform. It was felt that he might have rushed his return to the game.

TO HONOR TAYLOR

Danny Taylor, of West Newton, will be honored at Forbes Field this afternoon. A big delegation of Danny's friends from the home district will occupy seats behind the Chicago dugout. Before the game starts, the Cub outfielder will be called to the home plate where he will be presented with a gift.

Larry French will twirl the last game of the series for the Pirates. He is likely to be opposed by Sheriff Blake, of West Virginia. On his last time out, the Sheriff downed the Giants.

Steve Swetonic was in uniform yesterday for the first time since

Jack Dempsey

A real authority on the subject, tells you in tomorrow's Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph what he thinks of the heavyweight championship situation. In an exclusive article he discusses Max Schmeling's titular status and sizes up Primo Carnera, vanquisher of George Godfrey. Don't miss this article by one of the greatest champions the sport has known.

Discusses American college football and the attitude of the players on the game in connection with the survey of Maj. Griffith, of the Big Ten, and Coach Bill Alexander, of Georgia Tech. Should the game "be given back to the players" and taken out of the hands of paid coaches? You'll find the revelations and deductions interesting. ATHLETICS, ROBINS HOLD PRECARIOUS LEADS

NATS, BRUINS CLOSE BEHIND LEADERS

Associated Press.

The traditional mid-season date for determining pennant winners, July 4, is past with the Philadelphia Athletics and Brooklyn Robins at the top of the American and National League standings, but their margins of leadership are so slim that the tradition must be discredited considerably if it is not to be tossed into the discard.

Brooklyn's margin daily grows slimmer as the Robins and the Chicago Cubs add more games to their totals without advantage to either, while the Athletics' lead was cut to almost nothing yesterday when they split a double-header with the Boston Red Sox, while Washington registered the day's most important gain by taking two games from the New York Yankees.

NATS WIN PAIR

As Sad Sam Jones and Fred Marberry hurled a pair of fine games to defeat the Yankees 6 to 0 and 7 to 3, Washington moved up in the standing to a place just one game and one percentage point behind the leaders, while New York dropped to three and one-half games back of the Senators.

The Athletics got only 10 hits off Boston's pitchers in their two games, but Ed Rommel held the Red Sox in the second to win, 4 to 2, where four Philadelphia mound aces had failed to keep the Sox from gaining a 7-6 victory in the opener.

Brooklyn's margin in the National League was cut to the small fraction of two-tenths of a percentage point and as games are counted, the Robins remained a half contest behind while both leading contenders divided their twin bills. The Robins dropped a 5-4 decision to the New York Giants in the morning when Hughey Critz connected with one of Vance's tosses in the eleventh inning to drive in the deciding run. But they came back in the afternoon to gain a 5-to-2 victory behind Bill Clark's effective pitching.

The Cubs reversed the process, battering out a 10-to-1 victory over the Pirates before lunch but failing to hit Kremer in the afternoon and losing, 5 to 1.

CARDS ROUT REDS

The St. Louis Cardinals brought about further complications in the standing of the elder league by taking two games from Cincinnati while Boston and Philadelphia were breaking even. The Cards, pounding the Redleg hurlers to the tune of 15 to 4 and 6 to 2, placed themselves only a half game behind the third place Giants, while Cincinnati dropped into another of those disputable positions, a half game behind the Phillies. Philadelphia took the first game from the Braves, 7 to 2, but lost the second, 9 to 7.

Detroit's Tigers also gained the honor of winning two holiday games but they had to go overtime both morning and afternoon. The Tigers required 10 innings to down Cleveland, 5 to 4, then went 12 frames to gain a 4 to 3 decision in the second game. The principal achievement of the Chicago White Sox was that of making six errors in one game and winning it. The misplays came in their second contest when Al Thomas held the St. Louis Browns to four hits for a 6 to 4 victory after St. Louis had pounded out 15 blows and an 11 to 3 triumph in the opener.

GUYS, SCOTS WIN TWICE

Charleroi and Scottdale scored double triumphs in yesterday's Mid-Atlantic League battles, which inaugurated play in the second half pennant chase.

Charleroi defeated Wheeling twice, winning the first game 3 to 2 and taking the second 12 to 11. Scottdale downed Jeannette 6 to 1 and repeated with a 12 to 4 victory.

Johnstown, victor in the first half campaign, defeated Cumberland 3 to 2 in the afternoon after losing a 17-inning battle, 5 to 4.

Fairmont and Clarksburg broke even, the Generals winning 10 to 4 and then losing 6 to 5 in 12 innings.

Del Gainer, former big leaguer, resigned as manager of the Fairmont club. His place will be taken temporarily by Tony Cyran, third baseman.

Nick Altrock Says:

WASHINGTON, July 5.—I know that spit is a horrid word, but a little of it on the end of pitchers' fingers would make baseball a better game. Between the rabbit ball and rules that favor the batter, the pitchers' box is now like a reserved seat in No Man's Land. You are liable to be stabbed through the stomach by a fast liner. And the way the ball acts these days, you can even be brained by a bunt. The game needs the old spitball or something that can get past the batter once in a while, even if they have to call it the saliva ball.

AWARDS FOR GOLF FIXTURE HERE MONDAY

FINE PRIZES FOR TOURNEY

When the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph stages its third annual Western Pennsylvania junior golf tournament at the Schenley Park municipal links next Monday, the boys who come through with the best scores will be awarded the beautiful prizes pictured on this page.

The matched set of five steel-shafted irons, the first five clubs at the left, will go to the winner, along with the 26-inch high William Randolph Hearst trophy, which is in the center of the picture, and a solid gold medal.

The silver loving cup on the left is the big prize for the high and preparatory school competition, while the silver placque on the right goes to the club with the best caddie team.

Gold and silver medals, also shown in the picture, go to individuals in the school and caddie team play. The runner-up in the tournament will receive the steel-shafted Hagen driver on the extreme right, with a gold medal; the third place boy gets the mashie, third club from the right, and a silver medal, while the fourth place boy gets the putter shown alongside the mashie and a bronze medal.

DUNLAP WINS RACE.

CADIZ, O., July 5.—(AP.)—Ken Dunlap, Canton, won the 75-mile automobile race yesterday on the half-mile Cadiz dirt track. His time was one hour and 40 minutes, and he won $400. Four of the 15 starters finished.

American League Again Changes Schedule

CHICAGO, July 5.—(AP.)—The American League has been forced to make another recapitulation of its doubleheader list to absorb 19 games postponed by bad weather. The revised list:

FRENCH SLAB CHOICE TODAY

he was stricken with appendicitis many weeks ago. The North Side athlete is well on the road to complete health, but he will hardly be on the slab inside of two weeks.

Ira Flagstead, owner of a broken rib which he sustained while making a sensational catch off the scoreboard more than a week ago, will return to the battlefield soon. The injury still gives him plenty of annoyance.

CUBS WIN FIRST

The Oaklanders had scant chance to win the early contest of yesterday. Southpaw Arthur Teachout had their number from the start, the Pirates scoring their solitary tally in the last inning.

Martin Lang, new lefthander from New Haven, made his debut in the ninth inning. Heine Meine twirled clever ball for eight rounds, but the righthander didn't have much chance of gaining the verdict in view of the weakness of the Pittsburgh attack.

Approximately 13,000 fans were delighted in the afternoon, after 11,000 had seen the home favorites doused in defeat in the morning. Kremer's pitching was a thing of beauty. He was opposed by another fast worker of the slab, Charlie Root, the game being reeled off in less than one and one-half hours.

KREMER IN FORM

Kremer's stride was remarkable. The Cubs' only tally came in the ninth on a slip of Dick Barteil. English was on first with one out when Cuyler hit a grounder straight at the shortstop. Dick may have been too eager for a double-play attempt as he failed to touch the ball, the hit sending English to third from whence he tallied on a sacrifice fly of Hack Wilson's bat.

Gus Suhr was the hero of the Pittsburgh victory. Making three hits and drawing a pass in four trips to the plate in the morning, Gus broke up a shutout party in the afternoon fray when he drove a thrilling homer into the deep section of the new stands.

JUNIOR GOLF EVENT LAUDED

By VERN SWARTSFAGER.

Declaring that the third annual Western Pennsylvania Junior golf tournament for the William Randolph Hearst Trophy, which is to be held at the Schenley Park municipal links Monday under the auspices of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, is a most valuable asset to our metropolitan area, Col. Frank Blackstone, executive of the Pennsylvania Society, Sons of the American Revolution, in a statement today praised the event and struck upon a patriotic note. Col. Blackstone said:

"The junior tournament for the William Randolph Hearst Trophy affords an opportunity to the boys who participate in it to enjoy competitive sportsmanship at an age when a thorough enjoyment of the game, played under the strictest adherence of the rules, will have an exceptional tendency to develop that feeling of self-reliance that is the foundation of true American manhood.

"The tournament will teach many players the futility of trying to 'wish' the little white golf ball into the cup or out of the hasards, and the absurdity of unnecessary remarks indicative of exasperation of disappointment when it does not go straight to its hoped-for destination; it will teach the close observer of his own play to calculate carefully every shot and to play it with deliberation and calmness. Later in life the good qualities thus learned will be of advantage to these boys. The very fact that they will realize that there can be but one winner will teach them to endeavor to do their best at all times.

"It is my opinion that the William Randolph Hearst Trophy tournament is a valuable asset to our metropolitan area."

Francis Brennan, general manager of the Bib-O-Link driving ranges in Aspinwall and Pioneer avenue, qualified a club team for that competition. The following boys made the grade: Carl Auth, 15; Philip Crist, Milton Adams, Jake Parks, Tony Antico, Chester Allen, Mike Hifali and Pete Marsico. The first team includes Crist, Antico, Allen and Marsico. The entering of Bob-O-Links in the tourney brings the club caddie team entry list up to 22.

Race Drivers Hurt In Spill at Clarion

CLARION, Pa., July 5.—(AP.)—Two drivers were hurt, one seriously, in a smash-up at the Clarion automobile race track yesterday. L. F. Carns, Youngstown, O., suffered fractures of both hips, a broken arm and other injuries and Joe Catone, Struthers, O., was badly cut and bruised. Something went wrong with Carns' machine and it turned over while he was racing. Catone's car struck the overturned automobile and another driver came along and ran over Carns who had been thrown to the track.

Harry Kinsey, Johnstown, won the 100-mile dirt track event, setting a new record for the speedway of 2 hours 2 minutes. The previous record was 2 hours 4 minutes held by C. A. Wall, of Oil City. Paul Miller, Akron, O., was second; Sam Gibson, Youngstown, third; Earl Johnson, Tarentum, fourth, and Shorty Drexler, Sebring, O., fifth.

TENNIS ENTRY LIST GAINS 100 MARK

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN.

With the closing of the entry lists still four days distant, nearly 100 contestants already are enrolled for action in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph revival of the Pittsburgh public parks men's and women's singles tennis championships. This probably means that an array of some 150 racqueters will square off on the courts of Schenley, Highland, Olympia, Riverview, West and Frick parks a week from Monday in the opening rounds of competition for the Sun-Telegraph trophies and the trips to the national public parks championships at Washington, D. C., which await the victors in the respective divisions.

Entries from Riverview Park have spurted remarkably the past week. There has been an impression abroad for several years that tennis has been about dormant in the North Side, but the fashion in which performers from the Perrysville sector have been signing on the parks entry blank dotted line of late rather explodes such an idea. The Schenley roster also continues to grow rapidly, while many netmen from Highland and Olympia have been added to the competing group.

Frank Broida, clever Harvard southpaw, has switched from his old Schenley stamping ground to the new layout at Frick Park, where he will seek honors and the right to break into the inter-park eliminations. On dope gleaned up to the current writing, Broida will not have an extensive field to wade through at Frick.

Solomon Albert, Schenley; E. G. Artzberger, Olympia; Norman J. Solow, Schenley; Dorothy Albert, Schenley; Robert McClurkin, Riverview; Nathan Albert, Schenley; Homer Byers, Highland; Louis Banos, Schenley; David McAfee, Highland; Irving H. Pearlstone, Schenley; Charles B. Watson, Highland; William A. Carney, Schenley; Robert C. Meyer, Riverview; William J. Vaughan, Olympia; Pat Moran, Riverview; Steve Cheh, Olympia; Ferdinand Strothman, Riverview; Jeannette Miller, Schenley; Joseph G. Findlan, Highland; M. J. Goldstein, Schenley; Jerome Stern, Schenley; William Strothman, Riverview; Eddie Medley, Schenley; Frank Broida, Frick; Irwin W. Porter, Highland; Harold J. Palmer, Highland; Harry Wald, Schenley; Jack Herrmann, Riverview; Eleanor Bartberger, Riverview; Leonard Sherer, Schenley; Irvin Goodman, Schenley.

M'TIERNAN ENDS TRAINING

Buck McTiernan, Swissvale near-middleweight, winds up his training today for his "vindication" battle against Farmer Joe Cooper, of Terre Haute, Ind., carded as the 10-round windup of the weekly boxing card at the Meyers Bowl, North Braddock, Monday night. Last fall, McTiernan finished on the short end of the decision in a bout with Cooper at Motor Square Garden which he always has contended he won. He will be out to prove his point Monday night, and, according to his trainer, Luks Carney, he never was in better condition for a test.

Cooper is due in town tomorrow morning and will put in his final light workout at one of the local gyms.

Jackie Wilson, North Side middleweight, hit too straight and hard for Young Saylor, veteran left hand star, of Charleroi, in their 10-round main bout at Hickey Park, Millvale, Thursday night, and easily carried off the judges' decision. Saylor won only one round, the ninth, and broke even in the eighth. He was accidently fouled with a right hand punch late in the fifth, but continued the bout after a rest period. In the other bouts, Walter Dickerson, of California, Pa., substituting on short notice for Mickey Solomen, of New Castle, in the scheduled 10-round semi-final, proved merely a willing punching bag for Lynn Jordan, Negro, of Akron, and the bout was stopped at the end of the seventh round to save him from further punishment. How he ever came to be passed by the boxing commission for a 10-round test is a mystery.

RACES CLOSE AT EBENSBURG

EBENSBURG SELECTIONS

2—Autumn Tint, May Bar, Somerset.
3—Battleshot, Stanton Chap, Five Oaks.
4—Melva Rose, Ultra, Roy Williams.
5—Sport Royal, Schumacher, Blumberg.
6—John Robert, Hindrance, Primp.
7—Appellate, Blanket, Terra Nova.
Dual Tot—Appellate.

EBENSBURG, Pa., July 5.—The most successful race meeting ever held in this state will come to a conclusion here today with the running of the sixth day's program of the Cambria County Fair Association's summer meeting.

The Loretta Purse, the day's mile and 70 yards feature, may see Battleshot, owned by Mrs. Bryan Harris, of Washington, D. C., taking down the purse.

Other probable winners are: Nellie Hewett, Autumn Tint, Melva Rose, Sport Royal, John Rebert and Appellate.

Blair C. Seeds, president of the host organization, said that yesterday's crowd was the largest in the history of racing here. There were close to 40,000 spectators on the grounds and they were treated to brilliant racing.

A six-day fall meeting, beginning September 1, will be staged. The majority of horsemen who raced here this week informed Race Secretary Edward J. Brennan that they would return for the meeting.

EBENSBURG ENTRIES

First race, purse $300, maidens, all ages, claiming, about 6 furlongs—Lunsky, 110; Island Creek, 120; Nellie Hewett, 118; Lotta Bar, 107; Barbara Brownsweg, 118; Diddy Riddy, 107; Primrose Mc, 113; Clara Pierce, 122; Alice Hughes—Lucky Mist, 120; Vivian Wright, 115.

Records Assaulted In Langhorne Race

LANGHORNE, Pa., July 5.—(AP.)—Two world's automobile records over a dirt track were claimed here yesterday in the annual Langhorne Speedway event.

Fred Frame, California driver, won the 100-mile race in 1 hour 19 minutes 4 seconds, and Frank Farmer, Philadelphia, shoved the old car of the late Ray Keech around the oval for a single mile in 37 2-5 seconds. Both were announced as new records. During the 100-mile drive Frame set a mark of 38 minutes 10 seconds for 50 miles.

GRAYS CAPTURE TWIN BILL

By TOM BIRKS

The Homestead Grays and the Allegheny Collegians led the parade of independent baseball teams able to score double victories in holiday games yesterday.

The Grays toppled the California, Pa., nine twice, winning the first game by a score of 11-to-4 and then taking the second, 17 to 7. The Collegians upset Pleasant Valley twice, taking the first game, 8 to 2 and the second 9 to 2.

Irwin defeated Greensburg 8 to 2 and 10 to 1; Allison Park upset the Phoenix Club, 7 to 6 and 6 to 5; North Side Elks downed the Etna Furnitures, 13 to 7 and 19 to 7; Dan Heeps trimmed Luzerne, 5 to 0 and 5 to 2 and the Homestead Jenkins won over Whitaker, 7 to 3 and 9 to 3 in other dual victories.

Homewood and Dormont broke even, Homewood winning 16 to 15 and then losing, 6 to 5. J. L. Thomas downed Verona, 7 to 5 and then lost, 8 to 4. W. O. W. nosed out Stowe, 6 to 5 and then Stowe blanked the Woodmen, 6 to 0. Conway defeated Ingomar, 3 to 2 and Ingomar secured revenge with a 4 to 3 win.

The Crawfords defeated Yatesboro, 6 to 2, and Yatesboro won over the Crawfords, 10 to 4. The D. J. Brodericks defeated the East End Cardinals twice, 10-4 and 15-9, at Marshall Field.

Homestead Library Wins Schenley Meet

By the extremely narrow margin of a single point, the Homestead Library Club nosed out the Willows Athletic Club for top honors in the Fourth of July swimming meet, staged at Schenley Park yesterday. Homestead swimmers scored 21 points to 20 for the Willows splashers.

The P. A. A. wound up in third place with 16 points; the Oliver Club had six; Duquesne Library five and the P. R. R. and University of Pittsburgh one each.

inning of the morning game at Forbes Field yesterday he broke the Pittsburgh club's longest runless stretch of the present campaign.

The Pirates went through 20 consecutive innings without scoring a run. They were blanked by Harry Seibold in the last three innings of Wednesday's contest, failed to get a marker in nine innings against Bob Smith on Thursday, and went scoreless for eight innings against Bud Teachout yesterday morning.

Billy Arnold.

BILLY ARNOLD, daredevil automobile racing driver, who won first honors at Indianapolis on Memorial Day and at Altoona on Flag Day, was not at all ruffled by the series of mishaps on the Bridgeville track yesterday that killed any chance he might have had to finish ahead of Wilbur Shaw and add the Bridgeville Independence Day event to his list of victories. He says he has forgotten the accidents and is ready for the next race. Like most other auto racers, Arnold is a fatalist. Asked to what extent the dangers to be risked in a big race weighed on a driver's mind, Arnold replied: "Why, he never even thinks of those things. I believe that if you're going to die, you're going to die, and it's going to happen whether you're driving in an automobile race or walking in the street." Arnold says he feels the effects of a physical strain rather than of a mental one in a big contest, recalling that during the 500-mile grind at Indianapolis on May 30 he lost three pounds.

ACTION, WINNER AT BRIDGEVILLE

THE CHASE

SHAW VICTOR IN LOCAL GRIND

20 laps, or 10 miles, when his motor froze, and that of Cantlon, which returned for only two laps after being forced into the pits for a new tire at 33 laps. When Shorty, who with Arnold, was the favorite to win, came in the second time it was discovered he had blown a piston and could not continue.

Twenty-three-year-old smiling and baby-faced Billy Arnold was the darling of the crowd which applauded his plucky driving in the face of hard luck all of the way. He met with the only mishaps of the race, twice turning around on the track early in the grind, but regaining control of his car and continuing. He also was forced into the pits several times to change tires, but, although he was far out of the running, he never quit trying and drew a big hand from the thrilled onlookers.

BILLY HAS TOUGH LUCK

The winner of the 500-mile race at Indianapolis on Memorial Day and later the 200-mile grind at Altoona was in third place when the flag to go desperado with Cantlon in the lead and Bost second. He passed Bost the second time around in front of the grandstand, and the crowd settled down for a duel between the favorites. Almost immediately Shaw went into third place, and on the fifth lap Bost had to pull into the pits. Wilbur Shaw and Jimmy Gleason followed him.

Bost had hardly got back onto the track before he blew a tire on the upper turn and hooked into Arnold's car and sent it skidding up near the top rail. It turned around a few times as the crowd gasped and the yellow danger flag slowed down the field. Before Arnold could get his car back down and resume racing, he was 10 laps behind Cantlon, who was whizzing along in fine style. Billy began to drive like mad and passed a lot of cars, but could not gain on the leaders.

When Cantlon stopped to replace a tire at the end of his thirty-third lap, Shaw shot into the lead with Karnatz in second place. Karnatz had to pull in on his thirty-eighth lap, but retained his position, and Arnold went to the pits for the first time on his thirty-seventh, changing a tire. Shaw was 10 laps ahead of Billy when the latter resumed.

SNOWBERGER HAS TROUBLES

On his thirty-ninth lap Arnold hit a hole on the south side of the track from the grandstand and had to do some fine maneuvering to keep from going into the infield, but he finally straightened out and kept going. That was the last time any of the drivers came close to having any accidents of a serious nature, although there was plenty of crowding and jamming to keep the fans thrilled.

Meanwhile Snowberger was creeping up, and, as Shaw passed the 25-mile mark the Philadelphian was in second place, two laps behind the leader. Evans was third and Brisko, who with Evans, was an added starter, fourth. Karnatz moved into third position on Shaw's sixty-fifth lap, with Arnold fifth and going strong.

Arnold was in the pits again on his seventy-second lap. As Shaw finished his eighty-seventh lap he was leading Snowberger by two laps and Karnatz by five. Bost was fourth, eight laps behind Shaw, with Evans fifth.

SHAW MAINTAINS PACE

At the halfway mark of 50 miles Shaw had a lead of a little more than a lap over Snowberger, with Karnatz third and Bost fourth. Nine cars were on the track at the time. At 110 laps Arnold was eighth, having covered only 89 laps. Bost was driving a good race, considering the fact that his car was sputtering and shaking badly on the turns.

Karnatz, in third place, went to the pits on his one hundred and fifteenth lap, and Snowberger, second, on his one hundred and twentieth, to take up the chase three laps behind Shaw. Karnatz lost two more laps on his one hundred and twenty-sixth, when he came in with a flat tire.

As Shaw passed the three-quarters mark of 150 laps of the half-mile track, he was leading Snowberger by two laps and Karnatz by six. Sloan and Karnatz were waging a battle on the turns that was giving the crowd the jumps. Bost was in fourth place, Evans in fifth and Arnold in sixth. Arnold began to cut loose at this stage and drew a cheer from the crowd as he passed Snowberger in front of the stands.

Snowberger lost a lap when he stopped to change his right rear tire on his one hundred and fifty-sixth lap, but maintained his position by three laps over Karnatz. On his one hundred and sixty-fifth lap, Shaw was leading by five laps and was driving by far the coolest and easiest race of any driver on the track. Arnold at this stage, was in seventh place, 20 laps behind the leader, but he was fighting hard and gained a lap as he passed Shaw.

Shaw's only stop came on his one hundred seventy-fourth lap, when he changed his left rear tire, for a loss of only 43 seconds. As he passed his one hundred seventy-fifth lap and had only 25 more to go, he was leading Snowberger by three laps, with Karnatz three more back. Evans fourth, Bost fifth and Arnold sixth. All of the cars with the exception of those of Cantlon and Haustein now were on the track, but Gleason and Kenealy had been in the pits so often that they were far in the rear.

Arnold and Bost both had to go in for repairs again shortly afterward. Snowberger and Karnatz continued their hot pursuit of Shaw right down to the finish, with Shaw having a lead of three laps when he was flagged down. Showberger had a similar lead over Karnatz, and the latter, in turn, was seven laps ahead of Evans, who led Bost by two laps. Sloan, Arnold and Brisko followed in order.

Shaw dragged down $1,500 as the winner's purse. Snowberger received $800 for finishing second, Karnatz $600 for third, Evans $400 for fourth, Bost $375 for fifth, Sloan $350 for sixth, Arnold $325 for seventh and Brisko $300 for eighth.

KENT OARSMEN DEFEATED

HENLEY-ON-THAMES, England, July 5 — (AP) — Kent School, of Connecticut, today went down in defeat in the semi-finals for the Thames challenge cup of the Royal Regatta when Worcester College, Oxford, led them over the course to win by half a length in a hotly contested race. The event, over a mile and 550 yards course, was rowed by the Worcester crew in 7 minutes and 14 seconds.

The American crew, a slight favorite, failed to repeat the victory of another schoolboy eight, Brown and Nichols, of Cambridge, Mass., last year.

The race was hot from the start, the Worcester crew finally nosing out in front and winning the heat by a full half length. Kent had not recovered sufficiently, it appeared, from its exciting race yesterday with Princeton after which H. Livingstone, Kent's stroke, collapsed and was carried back to his hotel.

The London Rowing Club won the grand challenge trophy, premier event of the eight-oared shells, defeating Leander Rowing Club, winner in 1929, by 3½ lengths, in 6 minute 59 seconds.

Lady Margaret College, Oxford, won the ladies' challenge plate, eight-oared, beating Pembroke College, Cambridge, by 1¼ lengths in the final, in 7 minutes 10 seconds.

MISHAPS MAR OPENING OF NEW TRACK

The district's newest greyhound racing track at Aspinwall suffered a series of unfortunate occurrences last night as it attempted to put across its inaugural card. The customers were sent home when after the third race the hounds had caught the electric rabbit, one dog had been killed and several injured.

A dog crashed into a board in the first race and was killed. In the second the hounds caught the mechanical rabbit, upset the machinery and caused a delay and in the third race several were injured when they ran into an obstacle on the track. Racing will be resumed Monday, after a new rabbit has been installed and improvements made on the track.

Henry the Great captured the feature event at New Kensington, finishing first in the American Legion cup race, beating Lady Cashmere and Golden Rock to the wire.

Eaton Upset by News That Anne Is Engaged

CHAPTER XXVI

That was a [illegible] that passed between Eaton and Anne until she was ready to [illegible]. He was still at his desk when she went in.

"Good by," Anne said with difficulty. "If—if I were you, I'd use Miss Danton until you fill my place. She's quick and she does good work. If you like, she could come to see me any evening, and I'll tell her what I can."

Eaton said [illegible] not good-by. You [illegible] you. You'll have to [illegible] me often."

Anne shook her head. "Not yet. Can't you see—[illegible]" asked in despair as she saw his face darken with disappointment. "Now that we've told [illegible] everything, if people saw me with you, outside, they'd [illegible] there wouldn't be any use in leaving the office, no use in anything."

"But I must see you," he argued.

Anne said, in a [illegible]. "Not yet. When everything is settled, but not yet. She gave him her hand. "Good-by."

He took the hand, [illegible] held it a long moment. "I won't say it," he told her. When she had gone he stared blankly at the closed door.

He said aloud: "But I need her. I can't lose her. I love her."

She had forbidden him to see her. He recognized with rebellion how wise she had been. Not for himself, though she had thought only of him, but for herself and he must think of her. He was bitterly grateful for his own sake that he hadn't told her how things were with him. If Jim hadn't come in he would have spoken. Now, for Anne's sake, he must follow his original plan and say nothing until the case was over.

Then he could go to her, tell her that he loved her, ask her to come back to him, not as the—what had Linda called her?—the office wife, but as the wife in his home, the one woman, his.

"Anne," his heart cried out after her, "wait for me, believe in me, love me!"

Visits Newspaper Office

"It doesn't matter about me," she'd said, "but it matters terribly about you."

There'd been confession in that. Confession of love. And on the heels of this realization he knew a humble gratitude and a rapturous certainty.

But there was one thing he must do for her sake. He went to the office of the Daily Star and demanded to see the editor-in-chief. After a little talk with that courtly and charming individual, he was turned over to Adams, the city editor, and stated his errand briefly.

"Oh, that's all washed out," Adams told him. "Nothing in it. Don't worry, nothing will be said; simply the bare statement of your wife's suit. You'll have to stand for that, Mr. Eaton. It's usual enough. People can't get divorces nowadays without telling the world."

"I didn't expect it would be kept from the press," Eaton informed him. "But neither Mrs. Eaton nor I desire any advance publicity. You appreciate my position?"

"Oh, quite," Adams answered carelessly; "but news is news. If John and Mary Smith decide to separate, that's one thing—nothing to addle the morning eggs, you know. But if Lawrence Eaton, of the Eaton Advertising Agency, and his wife, the former Miss Schuyler, agree to disagree after 10 years of married life—that's another. That's news."

"Yes, I get all that," Eaton agreed, "but the point is, why on earth try to drag an innocent woman into it? You'd nothing to base a story on, much less a sensational one."

"Oh, yes, we had," yawned Adams. "I see you don't follow the drift of the newspaper mind. Look here. I'll show you. You and Mrs. Eaton had a large, splashy wedding—that was news. Your position, your inherited money, Miss Schuyler's name—that was news. Then, for 10 years, you led a most exemplary life, that was news in this day and age. Mrs. Eaton was continually before the public—that was news, too.

"Then, suddenly, she beats it for Reno—news, more news. Now, why? The newspaper mind gets to work. It works like a detective, searches in—anything—man, woman, child. In this case we appeared to draw a blank. Mrs. Eaton's name has never been connected with any one." He looked sharply at Eaton.

Editor Explains

Eaton's face was a mask, but his heart pounded with relief. At least that much was gained, they wouldn't hunt down Linda and come on Jameson's trail.

"In your case," went on Adams, after a moment, "we drew an equal blank until one of our bright young men noticed your secretary. It was reported to me that she was an exceptionally pretty girl. Now wives and husbands, employers and secretaries are old triangles. They happen not only in the news but in real life."

"Why not? A busy man is [illegible] in contact continuously into the [illegible] a pretty and intelligent [illegible] a woman, a young woman who understands his business and incidentally [illegible] 900 per cent better [illegible] than his wife does. His wife [illegible] in his mind with [illegible] With busy executives [illegible] difficulties, personal problems, money—always money."

"It's secretary on the other hand, is connected only with his business troubles," said she shares them; she does not overhear them. She works in his interests, not against them. His wife sees in [illegible] mental idleness. Secretary [illegible] something to [illegible] pass in whatever little [illegible] and interests she has. His secretary, however, may see him bad-tempered, impatient or as a slave driver, but she sees also what he accomplishes and how he accomplishes it and why.

"He becomes in many cases a sort of god to her. And he knows it, after a while, if he isn't a fool. Add to all this a secretary who is easy on the eyes, well, have you arrived at the result which is, rightly or wrongly, hers?"

Shocking News

"I'm sorry we started you about this business. Before I saw you my chief told me to reassure you. We were quite justified in trying to smell out a good story, even if the scent was rather thin. That's out now."

"It was a coincidence that Jim Murdock happened to be your secretary's brother. Of course he'd protect her—and we think a lot of Murdock down here—but, as it happens, his story seems pretty straight. For it's true, I suppose, that she resigned some time ago?"

"True enough," Eaton answered.

"And that, coupled with the fact that she's to be married, makes our story deader than last year's murder."

Oh," he commented and succeeded in smiling, "I see that her brother told you. It was to be kept a secret for a time."

"We'll keep it," never fear," laughed Adams. "That's not news. It boils down to an unknown girl getting married. What's that to the public? With her skirts clear of your pending divorce case, Miss Murdock no longer interests us."

Eaton went back to the office. Miss Danton was at his disposal and he admitted to himself that she was alert and worked hard. But she was short and dark and had adenoids.

"Miss Murdock left word I might come to see her and she'd help me fit in more quickly, Mr. Eaton," she told him.

"By all means," answered Eaton vaguely and hit back a savage, "Felicitate her for me, won't you?"

It did not occur to him at once to doubt Adams' veracity or Jim's. What an ass he had been! Taking her love for him for granted just as he had taken for granted her work, her business integrity. Why should she love him?

Adams was all wrong. He'd let his story sense run away with him. Daily contact in an office did not engender any godlike illusions in a girl's mind. Her employer was her personal concern—in office hours. Afterward she was through with him, she'd turn to a young man for love, to a man she'd not seen in [illegible] shirt-sleeves wrestling with [illegible] with problems, nervous impatient, egotistical.

She'd want youth and laughter. She'd want dinner for two, dance floors, flowers and engagement rings and eventually a flat or suburban cottage, a gas range, a baby carriage, babies.

His heart hurt him until it was physical agony. To lose her and to lose her. The whole story. But he'd never had Anne. He'd lost her. Miss Murdock, secretary to the president.

Calls on Anne

But she might have told him! She'd promised she'd tell him if ever the situation arose. Surely they'd been good enough friends for that much confidence! She should have told him, not let him hear it in that noisy newspaper office. It hadn't been square of her.

He'd not thought of himself as a vain man, yet this had proved him vain to fatuity, he told himself bitterly.

That evening he worked in the office until 7 and went out to a solitary, tasteless dinner. Presently he pushed away plates and cup and began to seek loopholes to make excuses. Perhaps after all Adams had misunderstood something Jim Murdock said to him.

There was only one thing to do, and that was to find Anne at once and ask, no, demand an explanation.

Half an hour later he was ringing her bell with a sort of sustained savagery.

YOU KNOW I'D GIVE YOU THE SHIRT OFF MY BACK, KID, IF YOU NEEDED IT! NOW, HOW ABOUT ENDORSING THIS NOTE FOR ME, LIKE A PAL!
FAY-KING

By FAY KING

UNSOPHISTICATED youth stepping out into the world from a sheltered home is often completely carried away by the genial cordiality of new-found friends.

"Why, he'd give me the shirt off his back!" says a trusting young fellow, quoting and defending his new friend from family criticism.

Later in life he will learn that the fellow who is so prompt at promising the shirt off his back barely has a shirt to call his own.

Should the time acutally come when the trusting one demands the promised shirt, he will be surprised to find it is one of his own he hadn't missed.

The more shirts you have the more sincere his promise.

The Wayne Murder Case

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Silas Wayne, eccentric millionaire, is mysteriously murdered in the presence of eight witnesses. In the act of reading his will to his heirs, he crumples to his desk and a dagger is found stuck in his heart. Robin Dale, reporter on the Daily Journal, is assigned to the case. Dale learns that Dr. Bailey, attending Wayne's ward, had a violent quarrel with the old man. The unsigned will is found. It contains many motives for the crime. A mysterious warning notifies Gloria Dryden that she is to be the next victim. The will is read. Its terms give Sarah Boullet, a niece, and Miss Sheen, Wayne's housekeeper, apparent motives for the crime. Gloria Dryden and Robert Wayne, a nephew, are also given cause to hate Silas Wayne through their bequests. Finally, Claude Wayne, another nephew, is accused in the will of being a thief. When Claude is sought he is found strangled to death in the house.

Now go on with the story.

CHAPTER VI.

Gloria was soon released from the gag and it was discovered that outside of the added nervous shock she was unhurt. Her miraculous escape from the fate which had overtaken Silas Wayne and Claude Wayne she attributed to the fact that in her struggle with her assailant, after the lights had gone out, she turned and thus avoided the knife as the thrust was made.

During the excitement and the explanations Dr. Wattles had come in. Wilfred Sands had gone with him to a corner of the living room, where they remained for some little time in animated conversation. Dale permitted them to finish and as Dr. Wattles left, he intercepted the district attorney before he could make any announcement.

"It doesn't seem to be anything of value. He merely confirmed the fact that Silas Wayne died from the dagger wound. We half expected that poison played a part in this tragedy because of a sediment that was found in a glass of water that stood on Silas Wayne's desk. But it proved to be nothing more than a harmless powder in common use among persons who are affected by sleeplessness."

"That is about what I anticipated. The findings are of very great value because, if they had been anything else, it is possible that you would never have put your hands on the criminal, despite the fact that eight people actually saw the crime committed."

"Do you think you know who the guilty one is?"

"I know who it is, what the motive was and how the crime was committed."

"That covers a lot of territory, young man," said the district attorney with the trace of a smile.

"I wish you would announce what Dr. Wattles told you. I'd like to see the reaction on the culprit. I'll be watching the guilty one as you speak."

Dale stood half in the shadow in a corner of the room as the district attorney told of the finding of the police doctor. Dale was in a position that Wilfred Sands could not see at whom he was gazing. When the announcement had been made Robin Dale went to the telephone. He called for the office.

"Say, what are you doing?" asked Jardin, who had come to find out what Dale was doing.

"Barge, there'll be a lot of the boys arriving soon—if they come while I'm sending my story in, keep them out of the room, will you? . . . and Barge, I'd like to mention your name in this story but it wouldn't sound so good with you being present and seeing the murder committed and not knowing who did it . . . Hello, that you, Pop? Here's your story! Better get plenty of paper because it was plenty mixed up. Oh, wait just a minute . . . Mr. Sands, I'm sending this story in so the paper's sure to have it first. Is that okay? When I mention the guilty party you can have Jardin ready to make the pinch. I don't expect you'll have any fuss about it.

"Sort of unusual way to confront a criminal with the proof of guilt, Dale. Would be unfortunate if there happened to be some mistake and your paper was printing it."

Dale looked around and saw every one listening tensely. Only Capt. Blake was moving, slowly but surely toward the door, to block any possible move on the part of the criminal.

"Ready now, Pop . . . I'll give you the headline first and the explanation will come later. What? You'll write your own headlines? But this time please write mine . . . It'll look sweet across the top of that grand paper of yours. Ready? Silas Wayne killed by his . . . ?"

(Copyright, 1939, King Features Syn. Inc.)

(What was the ending of Robin Dale's headline? Fill in that line with the identity of the murderer or -ess. What was the motive for the crime? And how was the crime committed? The solution will be published in the Sun-Telegraph next Saturday.)

HER lover, a star of the stage, was found murdered in his dressing room after the first performance of the play that promised to be his greatest success. There was a noose tightened around his neck. It was plain he had not committed suicide, and yet no one had been seen with him in the dressing-room, which was in constant view of the stage hands and rest of the cast. The same mysterious enemy which accomplished the stage star's end descended relentlessly upon her, and Robin Dale had a double murder mystery on his hands.

NEARLY everybody reads mystery stories; and "MASTER MYSTERIES" is the most fascinating series ever devised. Is there anyone who hasn't paused again and again in a tale of mystery, as each clue is unfolded, striving to piece together the bits of evidence and identify the guilty parties before the inevitable master detective reveals them? Who hasn't matched wits with Auguste Dupin, Monsieur Lecoq, Sherlock Holmes, Dr. Fortune, Father Brown, Uncle Abner, Max Carrados, Philo Vance and others of their fictional legion of colleagues? Is there anything more thrilling than trying to answer the riddle, "Who's guilty?"

Convicts Plan to Escape From Penitentiary

CHAPTER XXII.

Down in the prison yard, Morgan found Butch—the same old happy-go-lucky Butch. He was talking to a group of his cronies. When he saw Morgan he slowly detached himself from the others and without any perceptible show of joy walked slowly toward him.

"Hello, ladybug, did you fly away home?" he greeted.

"How's all the dames, Morg? Did you give 'em my what's is?"

As they ambled along, this one and that sailed a greeting at Morgan. Most of them accepted in a matter-of-fact way his return among them. Morgan sensed an undercurrent of unrest in the air.

"There's something cockeyed, Butch, what is it?" he asked.

Butch indicated the prison postern with a slight movement of his head. Morgan turned and looked. He saw nothing but the closed grill and the armed guard pacing the other side.

"Six of us going to stroll through that gate."

"You're crazy!"

"I'm giving it to you straight, Morg. Me and Joe framed it."

"Joe? I thought he was a trusty?"

"He is—but he's a con like you an' me. His old bean has been hustlin'. It's his idea." Butch paused and looked around. "There he goes now—pipe him off."

Joe was double-timing toward the gate. When he reached it he rapped and the guard halted. Joe held up a bunch of flowers. The guard took them through the bars and Joe, smiling and nodding his head, walked away.

Butch Outlines Plans

Morgan shook his head. He could find no significance in this soft pantomime.

"Y'see?" Butch explained. "Every day for three months he's been going to that gate—with a bunch of flowers he picks in the garden. That screw's used to him now—don't think nothin' of it."

"Well? No more do I."

"Gee, you're dumb, Morg. Well, every once in a while there's a big bunch of flowers . . . and the screw has to open the gate—savvy?"

"I got it—some mornin' he'll open the gate and six o' you'll crash through—very simple." His tone was ironic.

"What could be simpler?" Butch spoke with all the naivete of a child.

"What comes off after you come through?"

"Then we bust through the outer gate—the car'll be waitin' on the outside."

Morgan looked at him in astonishment, but asked merely: "When does all this come to pass?"

"Thanksgivin' day, at noon! Most of the screws is off then, for that hot turkey. An' we'll give it to 'em cold turkey—a bellyful!"

Butch laughed long and loud, and then quickly restrained himself as one of the guards turned suddenly.

Kent Implicated

"Olsen . . . the Hawk . . . Dopey . . . Joe."

"Huh!" He croaked his own mother."

"Sure he did." Butch was sympathetic. "He cut the old blister's throat. But he was sorry for it—he plead self-defense—he ain't such a bad guy, Morg."

"Kent!" Morgan frowned.

"Listen, Morg." Butch was confidential. "Me an' Joe give him the lay-on plenty while you was yonder—an' he come clean. He's white."

"Me?" Morgan recoiled. "Not me, Butch. No, thanks. I'm goin' straight, pal. I don't know a thing about it—not a thing."

"Straight! You ain't turned queer, have you?"

Morgan Sees Kent

Butch apparently could not believe. He halted in his tracks and peered wide-eyed at Morgan. Then he grinned, knowingly.

"Some jane's pinned a pair of wings on you, Morg." He spoke slowly, accusingly.

"She didn't pin 'em on—she kissed 'em on. An' they stick!"

"Sweet lips! Well I won't let the boys know you're a quitter"—he indicated a group of convicts nearby. "Don't tell 'em you're headin' straight. I believe you. Lord help me. But they'll make a patsy out o' you."

The Hawk and Dopey walked up.

"So long, good luck." Morgan wafted away. He went to look for Kent. There was a set, convincing look on his drained face. He saw Oliver and walked up to him. Without a greeting he asked:

"Where's Kent?"

"Cell house No. 3," returned Oliver, staring after him. Morgan scraped on his way, forging through the crowd of men. At the door of the cell-house he saw Kent, coming out with a wheelbarrow loaded with books and magazines, for they had made him a trusty in the library. When Kent saw Morgan his face blanched and he suddenly set down the wheelbarrow. He looked about furtively, as though seeking some means of escape or source of rescue.

"I—I didn't plant that knife on you," his voice was trembling. "It—it was that greaser—"

A Warning

"You're a damned liar. But I don't want to discuss that," returned Morgan curtly. He signaled to Kent and drew him aside.

"Butch peached!" Kent parried.

"Yes—it's dynamite! Not that I give a whoop about you . . . but those others are my friends . . . this thing's a kickback. You're trapped. You ain't got a Chink's chance."

His steady gaze caused Kent to drop his eyes. He faltered:

"You . . . you don't think—Butch—Hawk—Dopey—"

"I don' have to think. An' you don' know how." Morgan narrowed his eyes, and the look was hard and penetrating. "Lay off—it's the pay-off." And he walked on.

As he reached a far corner of the prison yard, Wallace strolled along after him. Morgan paused and Wallace came close and said:

"What'd you and Butch have so important to talk over?"

"Lay off me, will you? I done my bit in the hole an' I'm doing my full in stir—"

"Pardon me—sir."

"Even the Gov'nor won't do that. An' no flipflops out o' you, Mr. Morgan, or I'll make you wish your old lady'd never met your old man."

"Yes, sir," said Morgan. "That would be no new wish. They both beat me to it."

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Appropriate Gift

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Will you please settle an argument for us? A says that it is proper for a girl to send flowers to a boy for his birthday, and B says it isn't. Which is right? A READER.

While this is "proper," it isn't particularly appropriate, and I suggest that the girl send a more suitable present, such as a book, a carton of cigarets.

The Golden Wedding Ceremony

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Is it suitable to have a ring bearer, flower girls and bridal veil when having a golden wedding ceremony at a hotel?

S. W.

No.

Sherbet and Salad Forks

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. Will you please tell me whether it is correct to eat sherbet, when served with the dinner, with a spoon or a fork?

2. Is it correct to eat the salad, when served with the dinner, with a salad fork, or with the same fork one uses for the meat? L. P.

1. With either, depending on the one that is served. Usually a spoon is not provided, and one eats the sherbet with the fork, as one eats the other accessories of the course.

2. It is better form to use a salad fork, to eat the salad that is served with a course. And the careful hostess will place the salad fork as well as the dinner fork.

ANNUAL MALADY—OH, WHERE TO GO?

DRAWN BY NELL BRINKLEY

The Two-Minds Girls strike their annual snag.

HERE it is again, countrymen, the season of that annual malady, "In-two-minds-about-my-vacation" Hitherward, along with crocus and anemone, April squalls that drown out the new grass seed and Glorette's new black and white snake-skin shoes, and a general break-down of the will to work, comes the old song, "Where shall I go for my vacation?"

You sing it with a "blues" color-tone, and yet with a lift. Just a rumor of gayety, too. For are you not having a vacation—with money to have it? That brings the cheerio lift to the otherwise drag of despair. You sing it from folders, the most "Follow-Me" things in all the world! Neat and bright, with little masterpieces of landscapes that look as if such things couldn't be—and in your own beautiful country, too. Purple mountains. Streams of silver. Pines as dark as Mavourneen's charcoal-black head. Skies like Italian lapis. Cars whisking over ribbon roads. Glad-free girls playing over the greenery of the scenery, with god-like young men playing cavalier. Sun and wind and beauty and idleness!

And some folders you sing your puzzled song from show the old mystery—the sea. Dark as strange dreams, laced with foam, carrying bright ships around the world, for oh-so-little, the folder says. Or again, the sea changing his snowy cavalry into golden or silver sands, with brown young men and girls riding it on frail surf-boards—all ivory smiles.

That's just the trouble. There are two folders. The mountains one, and the sea one. If you are two-minded you hear in one ear the piping of shaggy Pan—oh so sweet—and in the other the strange sound that is half-sigh, half-cry, the call of the many-chambered pink horn of the mer-child. The sea-urchin himself.

It says on both, in a regular cascade of rainbow words, that "this is the life!"

But which, ask you, which is going to be The Life for me when my two weeks come along?

What if you were a mountain-lady married to a boat-boy? Ah, then you would have the sorrows when the invitation to vacation came around.

Dicky Agrees to Madge's Plan for a Gymnasium

I did not look at Dicky as I said that Junior was old enough to have an air rifle. We had come so perilously near acrid dispute upon that point in the last two years that I wondered how Dicky would take my unexpected capitulation.

"That solves one of the gift problems," he said. "I wish I felt as optimistic about this other scheme of yours. Oh, I don't mean that I disapprove," he interpolated hastily as he saw the look of dismay I could not hide. "But, sweet impractical child, have you any idea how much work is involved in turning that empty basement room into a workshop—and what else—you only had one corner disposed of when we digressed into discussion on firearms."

"I want some up-to-date gymnastic apparatus in the place," I said stoutly, "and also please don't laugh, Dicky—I want a place fixed where the boys can box, even the little ones. You and Harry can continue teaching Junior the rudiments of the sport."

"Oh, ho!" he chortled. "So you were on last summer, when Harry and I were having our secret sessions."

"No, I wasn't then," I told him smiling, "but when William and Henry were remarking upon Junior's skill in hitting Roderick's nose, I remembered some puzzling incidents of last summer and put two and two together."

"If you'll kneel and bend your head, I'll dub you a knightess of deduction," he told me laughing. "But I can't give you any degree for practical planning. I'm sold on everything, the workshop, the gymnasium and the boxing arena. I'll even stand for a swimming pool, a squash court, bowling alleys and a theater—but—by Christmas—it can't be done!"

"You forget," I said, "that this is the off season for country workmen. Mrs. Ticer was telling me only yesterday that Jerry and his father didn't expect any work until Spring, for there was no building out here to speak of, and that all the men they knew were laid off, too."

"That's very true," Dicky returned thoughtfully, "but can Sam Ticer handle a job like that without somebody to direct him?"

"Behold the architect!" I struck my chest pompously. "And I shall be on the job every minute," I went on. "Sam and Jerry can get all the helpers they want, and you've no idea how much work can be accomplished when men are in the humor to do it. And can't you imagine how the Ticers will set the pace when they know the job is for Junior's Christmas?"

"My imagination is in good working order, but I can't conceive of anything save Gabriel's trumpet inducing Sam Ticer to set a pace for anything," Dicky retorted with warrant, for genial Sam Ticer's disinclination to hurry is a byword in the countryside. But I know that when under the spur of rare emergency he did bestir himself, he like other indolent men, could turn out far more work than the average man.

"Maybe so, maybe so," he said with a grin, "but I'll have to see him in action before I believe it. However, you're quite a miracle worker, so I'm game to try the plan. I'll write the checks although—"

"Not all of them," I interrupted firmly. "If you won't let me help with money, you surely can't refuse. Father. You'll not shut him out from helping pay for Junior's Christmas. You'd break his heart."

"When are you going to begin work?" Dicky asked.

"Tomorrow." I returned promptly. "I'll see Father first thing tomorrow morning, and then go down to the Ticers."

It was not until I had gone to my own room that I remembered the outing for Christmas greens which I had promised Roderick and Junior.

TELL IT TO SALLY

Are Second Marriages Necessarily Tragic?

Must children be doomed to hell on earth if a stepfather or a stepmother comes into the home?

I don't believe it. I'm sure that most of this fear of the new father or mother is poisonous prejudice. And I have seen many a stepparent whose love was as true and generous and deep as the love of the original parent—sometimes MORE true.

But Gertrude Bowers denies all this. She is sure that lives are wrecked by second marriages, and she thinks she should know—for she was "the victim of a second marriage" herself.

"Since you favor second marriages," she says grimly, "just you listen to this!" And then she tells one of the ghastliest stories that has ever come to this department.

"Dear Miss Martin—

"I have been reading all your answers to people lately, and usually you're right. But now I'm going to disagree.

"You say that people should welcome second marriages. Now this is a reply to that from 'the school of experience.' I know what I'm talking about. I am the victim of a second marriage, and so are my brothers. I dare you to print this letter, and warn people not to enter into any second marriage, ever, if they have small children.

"My mother married a man 13 years ago. She thought he would support her children. That she'd be bettering herself . . . and them. Well! On her wedding day he shook his fist at us! People felt sorry. Everybody warned her never to marry again, but she said no one could stop her, and she went ahead.

"Now she's spent 13 long, bitter, accursed years of tragedy and heartbreak and cruelty. If I told you everything that's gone on in those 13 years, you wouldn't believe it! Now, as I write, the brute is spying on me. My three brothers have been beaten and kicked around like animals. He beats all of us for no reason at all.

"I am only 25, but my nerves are shattered, and any place I go I see darkness. I am a victim of one of those second marriages that you praise so much. And so are my brothers. So is my mother. In all the 13 years of her marriage, she has never heard a decent word from my stepfather. I never go out with anybody. I'm afraid to marry. I see enough trouble here, without bringing in any of my own.

"I can see my stepfather now, standing glaring at us with one foot on a chair, stick in his hand. An everyday occurrence with him. And often we were even denied food by him. Every day when I come home I came wondering if I won't find my mother lying dead. Or maybe if he will kill me or my brothers.

"And my mother is talking about suicide. It's the only way she can end things.

"And you dare to tell people to 'love their second folks!' You talk without experience. You need advice from people like me who know what such things are. What do you think of this true story of a second marriage? I dare you to answer me. I will laugh out loud if you dare to tell me that second marriages are happy.

"GERTRUDE BOWERS."

What do I think of your story?

I think it's horrible and heart-breaking, poor child—but I also think that you are seeing the whole picture wrong.

I'll admit your stepfather is a brute. But it wasn't his brutality that wrecked yours and your brothers' lives. It was your mother's spinelessness. She has, by her cowardice, been as wicked as he has.

From the first, she realized his cruelty. Then it was up to her to protect her helpless children from that cruelty. Yes, it might have meant a return to poverty. But no poverty could have been as terrible for you as his abuse. She didn't need to divorce him.

But she could have left him—she could have found work, and put you and your brothers in charge of the juvenile court, where your stepfather could not have touched you. Or she could have had him arrested if he abused you—or her.

I pity your mother's suffering, my dear. But, as a mother myself, I heartily despise her. Any woman who, through cowardice and spinelessness, allows her children to be abused when she might, through her own efforts, protect them, is no better than the brute who administers the abuse. And she should be arrested with him.

How to Keep Well

By DR. COPELAND

Be Cautious in Treating Animal Bites

We are always afraid of the word "hydrophobia." It has a sinister sound and used to be the cause of a great many deaths. This was before Pasteur gave to the world the benefit of his treatment for the disease. By the timely use of his treatment by inoculation nobody need die of the disease at the present time.

DR. COPELAND

Of those who are bitten by dogs only about 15 per cent develop the disease. The large majority of bites are inflicted by healthy dogs, and such bites mean nothing beyond the ordinary dangers that accompany any wound.

Hydrophobia is an infectious disease caused by a particular germ which has been communicated by an animal to the bitten tissue. Most domestic animals are subject to rabies. This is true of cats, dogs, horses, cattle, swine, as well as skunks and wolves. Wolves seem to be the most dangerous of all animals in this respect, but few of us are likely to meet them.

In view of the danger of rabies it is important to find out whether or not the biting dog is really rabid. This is done by examining the brain of the animal after it has been killed. As soon as a person is bitten the wound should be allowed to bleed as much as possible. Then it should be cauterized with carbolic or nitric acid, applying it carefully so as to keep from burning a large surface of the skin.

When a person is bitten by an animal one should notify the health department or health officer at once for advice on what to do and for treatment. If it is found that the dog had rabies it will be necessary to take the Pasteur treatment, which continues over a period of about 20 days. Any local or state board of health will give you advice on what to do.

If a dog is suspected of being mad it should be kept under observation in a suitable place. Within five or six days it will give every evidence of the disease and quickly die. Then its brain is examined to verify the diagnosis.

Dog lovers do not like to muzzle their pets. But the only sure way to stamp out hydrophobia and make the public safe from the disease is to insist on dogs wearing muzzles in public places.

It takes from three to eight weeks, or even longer, for the disease to develop. Toward the end of the incubation period the bitten person becomes irritable, wakeful and depressed. He has headaches and fever, and soon his muscles become rigid. Swallowing becomes very difficult and he has great fear in drinking because of the pain it causes, hence the name "hydrophobia," the word meaning fear of water.

Answers to Health Queries

W. M. Q.—When flowers are left in the house do they take in all the good fresh air for themselves? Should flowers be kept in the house?

A.—No, they thrive on the carbon oxide of the air. I see no reason why you should not have flowers and plants in the house if you care to.

Horoscopes

Monday, July 7

Monday's astrological forecast shows some progress through strict attention and earnest application to the affairs in hand, especially to literary pursuits and to those occupations dealing with mining, machinery, real estate and agriculture. There is some danger of subtle undermining, treachery or sinister attacks unless a close watch be kept on affairs generally. New undertakings are particularly subject to this onslaught of cunning or duplicity.

Those whose birthday it is may reap a good year of substantial returns by strict application and industry with affairs in hand rather than in new undertakings. These have a menace of treachery, duplicity or cunning, which may only be circumvented by vigilance and close attention to such peril.

A child born on this day should be talented, industrious and faithful, but may be subject to subtlety and craft in its affairs. It should, however, succeed through its own merits and vigilance.

Sunday, July 6

Sunday's horoscope is not a very happy one, especially for those in the employment of others, or in social, domestic or affectional matters. There is prospect of strife, impetuous movements and general lack of discretion and tempered behavior, all of which may lead to regrettable circumstances and events.

Those whose birthday it is may have a troublesome year, which may be contributed to by hasty words and deeds, ill-considered changes and a general attitude of turbulence and disintegration, unless a firm resolution is brought to bear to defeat such modes of self-undoing. Temperance, moderation and conservatism are enjoined in both business and all personal relations.

A child born on this day may need a rigid schooling and discipline in self-control and moderation in all things, as it may be prone to restlessness, roving, passionate and intemperate demeanor, which may contribute to a general state of unhappiness and failure.

DAILY TRUE STORY

"Somebody's Mother"

Sigmund Bishop was very unhappy.

Sigmund was blond—of the exceedingly blond type so desirable in girls and so rather effeminate in young men.

Siggy, as his doting mother called him, had been most tenderly reared by his widowed mother. No public schools for Siggy.

Tutored at home at first and then at a private prep school.

When Siggy attended the private and select prep school in a distant country town Mamma Bishop went right along with him and took a cozy house the best obtainable. She didn't pretend to let him out of her sight.

Finally Siggy went to college.

Much as it wrung his mother's heart she had to leave him for a while. It was imperative that she go abroad on some financial matters. Her husband had left vast lumber interests in Norway and other interests in Spain. Mrs. Bishop was a very capable business woman.

She didn't look it exactly.

While she was no flouncing flapper of sixteen, neither was she old in appearance. One wouldn't believe that she had a son of 20. She seemed to be a charming lady of around 30.

The parting of mother and son had been difficult, but Mrs. Bishop wasn't entirely a fool nor selfish. She knew that she couldn't keep Siggy tied up to her at 20 and she felt fortunate in having been so close to him all these years.

So Siggy went to college.

He created no stir on the campus when he was first seen crossing it except that a couple of Sophs sitting on the fence sized him up and commented. Siggy was bareheaded and his pale, fine hair fluttered in the the gentle breeze.

"For Pete's sake," growled Stub Martin, "look at the lemon lollypop."

Siggy Watched

He was Sigmund Bishop.

This caused a little interest. Bishop Senior had married the Collander girl and their millions had merged.

When they found out that his prep school had been Leighton Lea, that was worth a snicker. Leighton Lea was noted for turning out scions of American dollar aristocracy in a most snooty and "lady-like" fashion.

Two or three frat leaders discussed him just long enough to say: "Call him out." "Tap him." "Be your age."

It was considered to be a rich joke when it was learned that Siggy had aspiration to be called out for Blat Gappa, which is near enough to the correct name for frat men to recognize.

Now not many could expect to become a Blat Gappa. This frat embraced all of the highbrow characteristics of the most brilliant literary of them and it also demanded athletic prowess.

It is well and good for a chap to be blessed with a high dome and a lot of intelligence.

And it is also well and good for a chap to be blessed with a somewhat lower brow and less eruditeness, so long as he is something of a modern Hercules.

Both types have their frats, both types have their glories.

But to rate extremely high in all of your classes and to be something of a star in athletics, on the track, the crew, the nine or the eleven, to rate both of these all in one is a rare and wonderful thing.

Little wonder that the Blat Gappas who rated thusly were not plentiful, were earnestly looked up to and envied.

And so when Siggy Bishop, the pale-faced, "ladylike" frosh so naively admitted that he really wasn't interested in anything except Blat Gappa, it was a laugh—it was a hot joke that went the rounds of the campus. It was like one of Ringer's midgets announcing that he sincerely hoped he would get a bout with Jack Sharkey!

Faculty Favorite

Did this help him any with the lads?

Siggy seemed to walk away with student honors. He attended classes, he took few notes, but his answers to all questions were the right answers, and every paper and thesis he prepared was mentioned as an example of perfection.

It is true that Siggy might have gone into "Q and T," which mean "Quill and Tome," a really highbrow society, but strange to say, Siggy wasn't interested.

True, Siggy did not display his money lavishly. On occasion he loaned money readily enough to the few with the temerity of gall to give him a touch.

Because he was known to be "lousy with money," as Stub Martin put it, he was watched carefully. If he showed any signs of sportiveness whatsoever, they might take him into that somewhat secret little organization, "G and R." It really meant "Gay and Ready," but the nickname also fitted it exactly—it was campus-called the "Gin and Rye."

One had to be able to drink his beer, carry his liquor to play poker close to his vest and to have a fairly good dating acquaintance with jolly town girls, itinerant show girls and such and such.

So far as any of the boys could see, Siggy wasn't interested in girls to any degree whatsoever.

Up in Jack Clark's quarters Siggy drank what was said to be a cocktail.

Horrible stuff," he calmly announced, which as all of us know, is a downright faux pas. No matter how poor the host's liquor may be, the courteous thing is to smack the lips and say: "Great, must be pre-war."

Siggy wasn't like that.

Still, because he was so wealthy, because he could afford to go easy on the organizations, a stunning new frat house without feeling the loss they were, and a bit disappointed that he didn't measure up at all, after.

Mother Returns

They are square-shooters, these frat lads, when it comes to their own frat codes. Money doesn't figure as much as one would believe, a chap has got to measure up to their standards. He cannot, as Hollis, the senior said, be just a lady-like wet smack, or as others said, An awful pill.

Some remembered Stub Martin's name for him and called him "the lemon lollypop."

He disdained the purely academic organization and he yearned mightily to become a Blat Gappa. There was nothing deceitful about him. He admitted his desire. A few kidded and told him to be patient, perhaps in his soph year—and so on and so on.

Then Siggy's mother returned.

Only a few financial powers knew the number of millions her trip abroad had added to her purse. But these didn't count now. She wanted to see her darling golden-haired little man-child, Siggy. She had been away nearly three months, like three centuries to her.

She came on to the college town and she stopped at the leading hotel. Siggy, hustled from his last class of the day to meet her.

It was a grand reunion.

Siggy didn't confide to her about his longing to be a Blat Gappa. He feared she might not understand, or, if she did, she would become indignant and perhaps demand of the college president that the Blat Gappa lads be given a talking to and made to admit Siggy. So he told her of his high standing in his studies, top of his class, which pleased her. She knew that it would take brains to handle the fortune that would be his.

They walked up Elm avenue before dark.

Mrs. Bishop wore a most becoming French afternoon creation. She was 42 and looked no more than 30, and no younger. Perhaps she used her make-up in the continental manner a little more than is used here. She may have looked a trifle painted, yet charming indeed.

They stared in surprise. They certainly gave Siggy's mother the eye, and dear mamma, considering them all friendly classmates of her adored son, gave them her very sweetest and coyest smile.

It looked phoney to Stub and some others.

Defends Mother

They discussed it.

"The sap falling for a dame that age," Stub declared. They were down at the track then next forenoon. Hollis and two other seniors were also present.

Siggy came along.

"Careful, Siggy," old Ivy drawled Hollis. "Have a heart. She may be somebody's mother."

"How did you mean that, Hollis?" Siggy asked, turning very white.

"Mister Hollis and you know damn well how I meant it, you sap."

There was a sharp crack and Hollis got such a sock on the jaw that he popped over, bounced up and popped back.

"That's all wrong. If it's a fight, the fact is announced and it is fought out, not slugging like that. The penalty is to be jumped on and slugged. The two brother seniors of Hollis jumped to the task.

They got their heads cracked together by Siggy, then they got slugged severely and beautifully, and when Stub Martin jumped in he also got a sock.

"What the on-and-on do you boys on-and-on-and-on mean?" yelled Siggy, the erstwhile lady-like lemon lolly-pop. "Can't a chap go walking with his own mother without having her insulted?"

He was crying mad now and using profanity that was amazing.

"I'll take the whole lot of you cads on and I'll..."

They rushed in and held him.

They began to apologize. They meant it. They offered to go to his mother and abjectly apologize.

Siggy understood then. When questioned he admitted that his valet for years had been a bodyguard, who secretly pitied him and taught him to fight and swear.

That night Siggy was called out for Blat Gappa.

DUDE DRUMMER MEETS UP WITH LAMAR SLICKER

(From the "Forty Years Ago" Items in Lamar, Mo., Democrat.)

"Last Wednesday night Lamar was honored by the presence of a swell dude drummer, all dressed up in a new suit of clothes In the afternoon he astonished the small fry by hiring a carriage and taking in the sights. In the evening after dark he offered to pay for a $2.50 obligation, at the same time handing out a $20 bill with the vain hope that there was no possibility of making change A young man present offered to go up the street and get the change. He took the bill and has not been seen since. Neither has the $20 been seen by the drummer. This so enraged him that he hired another carriage, drove all over town looking up young men to see if he could identify the fellow who took the bill to make change. He fumed and tore around, threatened attachment and arrest. Early the next morning he was still investigating, but without avail. That fellow is as green as a goard. He is too green to burn."

Police to Blame for Fourth's Terrible Toll

Thanks to a supine police department and a spineless council, Pittsburgh yesterday had one of the most dreadful Fourth of July celebrations in its history. The hospitals report more than 70 cases of persons injured by fireworks in the city and suburbs. Goodness only knows how many persons were burned and hurt, whose injuries were treated at their homes and not reported. And the worst of it is that the full toll of the tragedy will not be known for several weeks—not until the record of deaths from tetanus in July is compiled.

Responsibility for this sorrowful situation rests chiefly on the police, and secondarily on Council. The public safety department practically ignored the ordinance which forbids unauthorized persons to discharge fireworks. Director of Public Saftey James M. Clark had announced with flourish of trumpets that the ordinance would be ruthlessly enforced. Superintendent of Police Peter P. Walsh sent the ordinance out over the police wires without comment. And that was virtually all that there was to that. A mere handful of persons were summoned to Morals Court for letting their children have fireworks. Thousands were allowed to shoot with impunity.

Council is to blame for its wishy-washy policy of letting fireworks be sold generally, while seemingly prohibiting their use. Year after year the question of restricting the sale of the dangerous playthings comes up, and year after year Council yields to the dealers who say they have a stock on hand they would like to dispose of.

The dealers have been given all the time and opportunity to sell their explosives that they deserve. There is no excuse on this score for delaying to enact a new ordinance with teeth in it. It should be done now. If action is deferred until next year the old whine about the dealers wanting a chance to dispose of their stock will be raised again.

And not only Pittsburgh, but the boroughs and townships should act. Now—now while the memory of this maiming of children is fresh with us—now while scores of suffering persons anxiously await the arrival of the day when they can be pronounced out of danger from lockjaw—now while the shame of the thing is still vivid, let action be taken that will safeguard us from another such desecration of Independence Day and make it what it should be, and what it was intended to be, a day of rejoicing instead of tragedy.

Vacation Dangers

Other Local Matters of General Interest Discussed Briefly.

Now that the Fourth of July has passed, vacation season is in full swing. The State Department of Health says statistics show there are more accidental deaths in summer than at any other seasons, so it behooves everyone to be extra careful. Prudent persons will guard not only against automobile accidents and drowning, but also against painful sunburn and ivy poisoning.

Closing of a Connellsville bank is attributed by Secretary of Banking Peter Cameron to "the utter stagnation in the bituminous coal producing industry" in Western Pennsylvania. And the stagnation is at least partly due to unfair railroad rates which give Southern competitors of Pittsburgh coal operators an advantage to which they are not entitled. The situation confirms the wisdom of the city's intervention in the rate case. The welfare not only of the coal operators but of the whole community demands that every effort be made to obtain an equitable readjustment of the lake cargo rates.

*The prospect for honest elections has been con*siderably brightened, thanks to the activities of the Allegheny County Bar Association's election frauds committee. The Board for the Assessment and Revision of Taxes has instructed the county assessors, in making the triennial assessment, that the former practice of placing on the assessment lists names furnished by district political workers will not be tolerated. That is one step forward. The bar committee's plan to test registration qualifications also promises to be beneficial. There is encouragement for the belief that by the time we get voting machines we will be fairly well protected against fraud.

In their introductory testimony at the Public Service Commission hearing the Allied Boards of Trade made out a strong case for bus service to the suburbs at a reasonable rate—a rate lower than the 25-cent fare charged by the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company. The street car service in a number of directions out of Pittsburgh is inadequate. That has been thoroughly demonstrated. It is hard to imagine what kind of defense can be offered for the situation. Certainly, if continued, it will cramp Pittsburgh's development.

*We salute the former soldiers, sailors and ma*rines attending the Sun-Telegraph's picnic at Kennywood Park today for the fine spirit shown by their committee in inviting former members of the German, Austrian and Bulgarian forces in the World War to attend. Such generosity of feeling only 12 years after the conclusion of a struggle marked by such bitterness is unusual, and is to be welcomed as convincing evidence that the war wounds have healed.

Twenty-eight congregations of Oakland and the East End are to give a demonstration in favor of law enforcement at a union church service in Carnegie Music Hall tomorrow night. Fine! It is to be hoped there will be a big turnout. But it would be still finer if the meeting would frankly recognize that there are some laws that cannot be enforced and should be repealed—the Blue Law of 1794, for example. In buying gasoline or riding street cars to go to the meeting some of those who attend probably will be contributing to the violation of that law!

Things are a good deal better than some of our pessimists on business conditions suppose. The reports that are being made by Pittsburgh banks of their condition in June 30 are commended to the crape-hangers' attention. There is nothing depressing in the news that the first 12 to report showed an increase of more than 10 per cent in their deposits during the last three months.

A check made by Boy Scouts for the Better Traffic Committee shows that of 4,862 motorists who entered Friendship avenue, during a period of ten and a half hours, more than 55 per cent ignored the "Stop-Through Traffic" signs, not coming to a dead halt as the law requires. It is another example of the tendency to pay no attention to annoying regulations if no harm can be foreseen as likely to result from violation, and is a warning to the lawmakers to go slow in adding to our list of prohibitions. Unless the police are prepared to arrest drivers for ignoring the "Stop-Through Traffic" signs, it would be better to put up at the most dangerous intersections red and green lights, which are generally obeyed.

The End Of the Rainbow -:- Drawn by Nelson Harding

It's easy money schemes
For making poor investors rich
Are only empty dreams,

The "pot of gold" at rainbow's end
To which dupes have been led
Does not contain the promised hoard
But gilded bricks instead.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

The environment may be said to pick over the germ-plasm of a species and weed out the genes to which it is antagonistic.

The process is always going on; there is no perfectly adapted species. Living things are continually adapting themselves more and more closely to the conditions under which they live. Now it is clear that in every generation the dominant genes will be scrutinized and either struck out or allowed to pass.

H. G. Wells

But the recessives may slip by. They may lurk in the race concealed by dominants and only present themselves for inspection once every three or four generations. In a word, they will be less intensively picked over than the dominants.

So that the dominants, on the whole, will be a better, more tried bunch than the recessives; the recessives, on the whole, will be the skeleton in the nuclear cupboard of the race. This, in a nutshell, is the reason why inbreeding, by bringing a scum of recessives to the surface, will in most cases lower the average standard of the stock.

And now let us note a case in which these principles were used deliberately for the improvement of a stock. East and Jones, working in America with maize, secured intense inbreeding by making the plants fertilize themselves for twelve generations.

Out came the recessives, and the plants separated into a number of true-breeding lines. There were strains with round or flat, colored or colorless cobs, with long or short ears, with more or less seeds on the ear, with large or small grains.

And the skeleton in the race-cupboard came out also; there were stunted strains and infertile strains, yellowish and albino strains, strains particularly susceptible to fungus diseases, strains unable to stand weight because of their malformed roots, strains with distorted ears. Thus the genes were sifted out and isolated.

After this had been done the most desirable strains were picked out and recrossed with one another, and thus a breed was obtained with all the fine characters of the original stock, but purged of the concealed recessives which made them throw up the sporadic abnormalities that defaced almost any field of maize.

Thus inbreeding may be used to purify a stock of the harmful cargo of recessives that it is smuggling. It is a long and expensive process, but it can be justified by the good quality and uniformity of the final product.

It has already been found to pay commercially with maize and sugar-beet, an advantage both to farmer and seedsman. We can be sure that in the near future the method will be applied to many other plants, and in a modified form to animals, with altogether profitable results.

With regard to the question of human marriages, there is little to say. The whole business of human breeding is at present so haphazard that it is difficult to write with any precision of what we should or should not do. Man has evolved recently and rapidly, and is so mixed and cross-bred that we may expect his stock of undesirable recessives to be considerable. From this point of view inbreeding looks dangerous.

When there is any suspicion of a harmful recessive in a family, inbreeding should certainly be avoided. But is is not in any sense harmful in itself. For several generations, cousin-marriages between the closely related, Darwins, Wedgewoods and Galtons were frequent.

Charles Darwin himself married his cousin; and among his children and his grandchildren alike there have been several distinguished bearers of the same penetrating yet patient scientific capacity which characterized him, his cousin Francis Galton and his grandfather, Erasmus Darwin.

Perhaps in years to come our descendants will look with intelligence over their pedigree, and if there is a probability of recessive genius in a family and no reason to suspect a grave recessive taint, they will deliberately encourage inbreeding.

A rather grim Utopia might be devised in which for some generations, on the pattern of East and Jones's maize, inbreeding would be made compulsory, with a prompt resort to the lethal chamber for any undesirable results. A grim Utopia, no doubt, but in that manner our race might be purged of its evil recessives forever.

SAMUEL LANGLEY

By Archibald Henderson

One of the constructive and creative figures in the history of the airplane is Samuel Langley, famous secretary of the Smithsonian Institution. If he had never put his hand to the task of airplane construction or made any studies of the mechanics of flight, he would still be remembered as a distinguished scientist. Through a series of untoward accidents, coupled with certain imperfections in his airplane, disaster attended his attempted flight with a passenger on board.

These experiments, on failing, became the theme of public derision. With a heedless cruelty not unworthy of an ancient Roman mob, the American public jeered at Langley, denominated his work "Langley's folly," and made this distinguished scientist the target of unbridled derision. This cruel and inconsiderate treatment is believed to have hastened his death. Yet, but for a few obstacles which might have been overcome, Langley might at least have shared with the Wright brothers the immortality of solving the problem of mechanical flight.

Samuel Pierpont Langley was born at Roxbury, Mass. August 22, 1934. It is said that, as a boy, he speculated frequently upon the way in which birds use their wings. After going through the Boston High School he turned his attention at once to practical affairs, lacking the means of securing a college education. He thought of himself as a builder, a construction engineer, being attracted to this profession by his aptitude for mathematics and drawing. After seven years he had saved enough to devote himself to the study of science, and in particular to astronomy. For three years he was busy studying astronomy and building telescopes. At the age of 30 he made a foreign tour, visiting various astronomical observatories and studying scientific conditions abroad. Upon his return he accepted a position as assistant at the Harvard University.

At the age of 36 he was appointed professor of mathematics at the United States Naval Academy. A forunate circumstance for him was his election as director of the then new Allegheny Observatory at Pittsburgh, where he was able to devote himself exclusively to his favorite study, astronomy.

The smoke of Pittsburgh, which obscured the stars and made their observation and study difficult and unsatisfactory, caused Langley to devote his attention to the brightest of near luminaries, the sun. The studies in solar radiation, which he carried on for a long period, give eminence to his name as a scientist.

Langley directed various government eclipse expeditions, introduced the use of standard time on American railways, made careful studies of sunspots and investigated the difficult subject of solar radiation. Through the aid of a grant from the Rumford Fund he succeeded in inventing an ingenious instrument for measuring heat, known as the bolometer. It was so sensitive that it could register the heat given off by a single candle at a distance of a mile. By means of this instrument he demonstrated the existence in nature of "cold light."

Langley constructed a small model of an airplane which made two entirely successful flights. He published important researches on mechanical flight, aerodynamics and wind pressure. Langley invented the first successful power-driven airplane. It was only by the narrowest margin that he failed to make an airplane which would carry a passenger.

"Bugs" Baer Says:

Rose-Colored Glasses

Sorry that President Hoover put those 1,500 wine glasses in storage until we had the refusal of several of them.

"Bugs" Baer

Those 1,500 laughing decanters have been in the White House since Washington hotfooted the frozen Delaware.

Presidents have pointed at them with pride and then tried to point at other things with very little success.

Most Presidents have been drinking men. We admit it. We bow our head in shame. And come up with foam on our chin.

Then they were loaded to the muzzle with clear, cold, sparkling water, so popular among beavers and goldfish.

To be brought out again by some future generation under happier auspices.

We don't know why we do it but we cannot help figuring out six glasses to a bottle. We have studied history, which always included the White House.

And we can visualize those dainty articles of the glassblower's craft. The ones with shallow cups and long shanks. Ah, they were for champagne. The little ones for vermouth, bitters and cognac.

The very teentsy-weentsy ones for anisette. The frosted ones for absinthe. And those big steins for gin and rye.

Now we have to sing the Stein Song when we see a grapefruit. But we are glad that the President storaged those 1,500 glasses. It shows that his heart is in the right place even if the architect did make a mistake about the cellar.

Some day, in a newer clime and generation, and under brighter and fresher skies, there may be a use for those happy eyedroppers.

There may be a future President who may want to bend his elbow in a gesture of peace with his fellow men.

And when he sees those 1,500 glasses all in a row he will fall into a happy swoon because he did not realize that he has been elected by such a big majority.

Abroad With A New Yorker

By O. O. McIntyre

PARIS: Paris is the hiving place of professional criminals from all over the world and yet it is one of the best policed cities. Its espionage system with every concierge a police spy makes a criminal's escape from Paris well nigh an impossibility.

In face of all this its laxity in controlling the perverted rascals who dog the footsteps of foreigners—especially Americans—to sell obscene art and act as cicerones for peep shows offers one of the city's most unusual complexities. A strict law against such overtures is apparently ignored.

Along the porticos of the rue de Rivoli, around the express company offices and other places where foreigners are numerous, the stinking vultures are as thick as flies around treacle. They pop out to solicit lone women as well as men with pornographic post cards and lascivious suggestions.

Most of them are Greeks, Armenians, Argentines and Turks. A very slim number are French. They are without exceptions dope sellers and agent provocateurs for the satined and mirrored brothels. The most ghastly murders of innocent strangers are the result of initial contacts with these roaming libertines.

Every now and then a maimed and bloated body is found floating in the Seine. In innumerable instances the police reports show "the victim was last seen talking to a stranger near the Continental Hotel." From then on the trail is lost in the hidden labyrinths of the underworld.

This morning as an experiment I walked leisurely along the rue de Rivoli from the Place de la Concorde to the Jeane de Arc monument. In that possible half mile five different and skulking whisperers sidled up with their insinuations. Naturally insulting them is impossible. They merely shrug and vanish. And I wonder why they invariably wear black hats?

While living in an apartment in the avenue Henri Martin several years ago it was the custom of the concierge, Madam Cecile, and her dog Blanchette to come out of the dark hallway cubby hole to sit on the curb bench at twilight. Last evening we drove by No. 22, our former abode, near dusk and Madam Cecile and Blanchette were in their customary place. The light of recognition cam slowly to Madam Cecile but she finally greeted us with typical French enthusiasm. And Billy and Blanchette sniffed each other joyously. We learned that our neighbors Madam Faure had moved to Neuilly, Monsieur Perdeau was in Aix for the cure and that Louis, our house servant, had married and returned to Germany. All in all it was a pleasant little homecoming. But only vulgar Americans fraternize with the concierge.

I saw Harry Thaw and his bodyguard flashing around the circle of the fashionable Place Vendome in a smart limousine with an equally smartly attired driver. Nor could I help from remembering that Stanford White was sailing for a happy vacation on the morning following his death atop Madison Square Garden.

With my well known flair for nice clean fun I have been chuckling all day over the idea of hanging up a sign, say over the entrance of the Ritz, reading: "French Spoken Here" and then skippity-hopping home like everything.

One of the most interesting of the ancient streets to me is rue Mouffetarde, back of the majestic Pantheon. It slithers its narrow and tortuous way through depressing squalor from a tiny court yard. I am told that some of its inhabitants have not left the boundaries in 10 years. The sidewalks click with the wooden shoes of incredibly old men and women and it is lined almost solidly with shadowy drinking dens. Apaches, with red and yellow mufflers, are plentiful.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

She writes: "I am a woman of 38 and in good health, but I am haunted by a fear of death, Miss Robinson. No one guesses it. I act as jolly as any one, but all the time I have this secret dread. Are other people like that?"

Most of us are, I suspect. And yet, when one thinks about it, that fear is one of the most foolish things in life. WHY SHOULD WE SO DREAD DEATH WHEN WE DIE SO OFTEN DURING LIFE?

Already you have died many times, stranger. The body you were born with no longer exists. It had vanished by the time you were 7 years old. And a new body, new in every particle, had taken its place. Not an ounce of your original self remained. By another seven years that second body had also vanished and had been replaced by a third. If you live to be 70 you will inhabit at least 10 different bodies and each of these bodies will, in turn, vanish. They will die as surely as though smallpox or pneumonia carried them off.

What is true of your body is also true of your mind—and to an even more amazing degree. You may, in a lifetime, inhabit 10 bodies, but each day—if you live eagerly and courageously—you inhabit a new mind. Remember the mind you had at 15? That may only be a dozen years ago, but already that mind is a dim thing to you—unreal as a ghost. Its ideas and attitudes seem absurd to you now.

You think of it with amused condescension as you think of a blundering baby. You think of it as though you had passed to another star and were looking back to the blundering, babyish life here—as though you had died and were looking back, across the grave, with freed, enlightened eyes.

And you have died! You are looking back across the grave. Hourly you die, hourly you are born. People, looking at your body moving about, believe that you are a living person. But actually within your body and your mind you are constantly being born and dying and being born again.

Dying is no more mysterious than living. The step into the coffin is not any more grave or significant than the step into tomorrow. I suspect it is very much the same step—only through a stranger door. And always we must pass through doors before we can come into the next room. Always we must pass through great and little deaths before we can come into new life.

Do not fear death any more than you fear life. They are both a tremendous challenge—as birth was a challenge. Fear only that you may not be brave enough to meet that challenge—for the only death that's worth worrying about is the failure to live life.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS.

Summer

The Spring is gone, and the Springtime rapture
Is spent . . . so soon!
Never now can the hear' recapture
That April tune,
That lilt of bird-song and silver showers
That gave to earth
Through April's emerald-tinted hours,
Its elfin mirth.
But Summer has come in all its splendor
So men forget;
Brings no regret.

Its fruits and flowers
In fields and meadows and orchards vying
Through sun-sweet hours.

If Spring was the bud, then the blossom is Summer
And as primrose to rose
Was the promise of Spring to this lovely newcomer
Whose sweets now unclose.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Do you think, when you have made a visit and are asked to prolong it, that your host or hostess is perfectly sincere in wishing you to stay longer?

In the majority of instances it is a matter of politeness—a sort of form that you are expected to understand when they say, "Do stay longer."

It may be true that they wish it were possible for you to remain longer while at the same time knowing that it would inconvenience them greatly if you did.

To make guests feel more at home and welcome, of course little is said of duties or obligations to be fulfilled after the termination of a visit.

Then the matter of household duties in these days of few servants and where the members of the family must attend to the daily routine and entertainment.

Even where there is plenty of outside help it is hard to keep the help good natured when meals and menus must be elastic or impromptu to accommodate varying numbers.

The visiting season is at hand. Make your sojourns short and be a popular guest, amiable, thoughtful of others' comfort, not disrupting and burdensome.
